

Kocher's Banks Field Day Scene

The banks of the Kocher River at Künzelsau were to echo today with unaccustomed sounds of their first big American athletic and military event, the Field Day of the 255th Inf.

For the occasion the broad field in the river below Künzelsau Castle has been renamed „Yank Field“.

Besides the usual sports events a program of military tests was arranged for the day by Lt. Ralph B. Bond, athletic-recreation officer of the regiment, who is assisted by Cpls. Alex H. Seigal and Mordecai Bauman.

A&P Plat. teams were to compete in erection of a 70-foot-long corduroy foot bridge over the Kocher. In-and-out-of-action contests were scheduled to cover the 105, 57, light and heavy mortars and light and heavy machine gun teams.

Communications men were to be tested in competitions involving wire sections, message center crews and radio sections. Wiremen were required to make a ground tie, climb an 18-foot pole, make an overhead tie, cross to another pole and make other overhead and ground ties.

M/C men were required to set up a code converter and encipher test messages. The radio contest involved setting up a radio for ground operation and set on test frequency.

Field-stripping and reassembling the M1 rifle formed another competition, and a run-creep-crawl-grenade throw was another test. Combat drill, a medic litter race, and a 200-

Readers are reminded that, although BLOOD AND FIRE now may be mailed home, it may not be mailed free of postage. The free mailing privilege does not extend to whole newspapers.

BLOOD AND FIRE usually can be mailed in a sealed envelope — just like a letter — for 3 cents or by air mail for 6 cents. The 1½-cent rate for unsealed copies ordinarily will provide slower service.

Resorter's Gun Has 20 Notches

His buddies in Co. C, 255th Inf., advance S/Sgt. Edward C. Thomsen as their candidate for the title „one-man army“. Sgt. Thomsen has been a member of every patrol the company ever has sent out — and only partly because of his ability to speak German.

Thomsen, single-handed, captured six Jerries and killed five more in the raid on Bliesbrücken Feb. 23. Once, while searching an old barn for hay for his foxhole, Thomsen was jumped by five Germans. His carbine was slung across his back and he had to take them on with his fists. After he had knocked down two, the other three ran off and later were captured.

Thomsen has 15 prisoners and 20 dead Jerries to his credit. He wears the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Sgt. Thomsen's home is in Elderon, Wis. He attended the University of Wisconsin in 1939—40, in civilian life was a guide for tourists and is the owner of a Northern Wisconsin summer resort.

Russians March In 253d Parade

The solidarity of feeling between Americans and Russians was given vivid expression Wednesday at Wertheim when four companies of Russians marched with men of the 253d Inf. in a Memorial Day retreat parade.

Most of the 9000 men and women housed in a huge DP camp nearby broke into spontaneous singing of the „Internationale“, the Soviet anthem, at the conclusion of the review and ceremony in which Gen. Hibbs awarded 16 Silver Stars.

Nearly every European nationality is represented in the camp, which consists of the barracks of a recently-bombed German airfield, but the Russians were the only ones who took part in the parade itself. The four companies had rehearsed with the doughboys the previous day. The Russians marched past the reviewing stand with a slow formal stride similar to the old German goose-step or that of the guards at St. James' Palace, London.

Two of the Russian companies were dressed in a blue serge uniform similar to the old US blue fatigues, but with red stripes on the trousers. The other two companies were not in uniform, and some of the men did not even have shirts.

Capt. Peter Makavenko, a Soviet division artillery officer, was in the reviewing group with Gen. Hibbs; Brig. Gen. Frederick M. Harris, Assistant Division Commander, and Col. Morris O. Edwards, the regimental commander.

63d Takes Over Synagogue Saved from Burning

Soldiers of the Jewish faith in the 63d Div. are attending services in a German synagogue in Bad Mergentheim which, by chance, was saved from Nazi demolition and the keys to which have been turned over to Chaplain Aaron Kahan.

Even more important in their religious services is the synagogue's Torah, or Law of Moses, which throughout the anti-semitic campaigns of Nazi Germany remained hidden in the home of a friendly Catholic family. In the absence of a rabbi in Bad Mergentheim, the Torah and the keys to the synagogue have been turned over to Chaplain Kahan by the city.

Dr. Karl Herz, mayor of Bad Mergentheim, addressed an open letter to the rabbi, now believed to be in Palestine. He informed the rabbi that the synagogue, with its seven-branched candlestick with Star of David, was spared because burning it would have endangered the whole town, and that the Torah had been saved.

To insure that American and British troops heard the town's official version of the story, Dr. Herz had the letter published in English as well as German.

„I can assure you,“ he wrote, „that the greater part of the population of Bad Mergentheim did not take any part in these terrible misdeeds and that they saw with inward wrath this crime which dishonors our German people for all time.“

„I hope that many of our Jewish residents will come back and that they may collaborate with us in order to rebuild a free and better Germany, delivered from the Nazi plague and from racial and national hatred.“

As late as 1933 there were 308 Jews in the town of about 6000 persons. On Aug. 20, 1942, the 17 who had not fled or been killed were taken away by the Nazis. The last head of the Jewish community, a 68-year-old merchant named Ferdinand Würzburger, asked a Catholic to hide the Torah until there again was a Jewish community in the town. Dr. Alfred Kahn, last rabbi of the district, emigrated to Palestine with his wife in 1936.

Build Red Cats Around 3 Vets

Three veterans of baseball at Camp Van Dorn are the nucleus around which T/Sgt Hal McCullough, Co. D, must rejuvenate the 253d Inf. Red Cats.

The three are Sgt. Paul Wilder, Co. I, S/Sgt. Robert Smith, Co. M, and McCullough himself.

The Red Cats took to the diamond for the first time on European soil Tuesday as 17 candidates reported at Lauda. McCullough was enthusiastic over Pfc. Roy Bower, Co. B, prospective first baseman. Bower, who played with the Charleston, S.C., Rebels and was approached by the New York Giants before his induction, worked out in impressive style during the opening training session.

T/5 Bill Garland, Sv. Co., who hails from Newport, Pa., is the Cats' only pitching prospect. Wilder is slated for his old job behind the plate. McCullough, football All-American at Cornell in 1938-39 and a Brooklyn Dodger in 1941, and Smith will return to the outfield.

Others who worked out included Sgt. Ray Fink, Co. K, Tripoli, Ia., 3b; Pfc John Green, Co. K, Turbeville, S.C., 2b; Cpl. Robert Lindholm, Co. K, Denver, outfield; S/Sgt. Dick Fairison, Co. L, McClure, O, outfield, and Pfc. Red Hawks, Regt. Hq. Co., St. Louis, infield. Fairison, former Ohio State University fielder, played one game with the Cats at Van Dorn.

Missing from the lineup are many of the Mississippi mainstays. Oscar Miller, the former Cincinnati Reds pitcher who managed the 253d outfit

Missed the Boat

One pass to Paris that was not appreciated was Capt. Clarence R. Johnson's.

Capt. Johnson, CO of Sv. Co., 255th Inf., returned from the French capital to find that he had missed the boat, literally. He had been chosen as one of the first officers to be sent back to the States under the re-employment plan, but was in Paris and could not be contacted in time.

Athletic events scheduled included dashes of 50, 100 and 220 yards, quarter-mile and half-mile relays, a 1 1/2-mile cross-country run, piggy-back race and baseball throw.

Passes to Brussels, in addition to the regular quota, were offered as top prizes. In team competition, the winning team was to draw lots to select the winner of a single pass, the other members to receive other prizes.

Lt. Col. James E. Hatcher, regimental commander, was named marshal of the field day program. Lt. Col. John R. Smoak, executive officer who is commanding the regiment while Col. Hatcher is on leave, was referee, and Maj. Howard F Baker, regimental S-3, was named clerk of the course.

Quick Thinking Saves Wireman

It has been quite a while since this happened, but Sgt. Victor C. Albrecht, communications sergeant of Co. A, 255th Inf., still is grateful that Co. D machine gunners think twice before pulling the trigger.

Sgt. Albrecht was laying wire to a new outpost site one night, not realizing he might be mistaken for a Kraut in the darkness. When he came into range of a Dog Co. gun, the wary gunners took aim, but they phoned the Able CP at the same time. A quick check by telephone kept their fingers off the trigger.

The Medal of Honor has been awarded 223 times in this war; 162 of the medals have gone to the Army, 100 of them to infantrymen.

The Jap believes he is destined to rule the world. The title of a Shinto hymn he sings before going into battle is "Hereafter there shall be naught but Japan".

(King Kong) Kohler is somewhere else in Germany. Bob Arnott, also commissioned since leaving Van Dorn, is on special duty with Division Special Services.

Jebsheim's Pups Bear Great Names

Jebsheim, the German Shepherd who joined the 254th Inf. just after its break through the Siegfried Line, gave birth to six pups on Mother's Day.

Named for the Alsatian town where the 254th received its baptism of fire, Jebsheim followed the boys across the Rhine and the Danube, but no one suspected her condition until unmistakable signs appeared at Rothenburg. Maj. Abraham Glatzer, the regimental surgeon, was present at the delivery of the pups, three male and three female. The mother makes all her trips in the surgeon's jeep, which is driven by T/5 Robert McClennen, of Baltimore.

254th history is written in the six pups' names. The females rejoice in the feminine names of Danube, Rhine and Neckar. Two of the males are Siegfried and Colmar; the third staggers around under the name Hill 216.

Signal Team Has Narrow Margin

Softballers of 563d Sig. Co. held a narrow margin of leadership in the Special Troops league at the beginning of this week, following their 7-5 victory over DAC. Signal had won four out of five starts.

Hard on their heels was Ordnance, with three out of four. Recon and Quartermaster tied in percentage, though QM had played six games and Recon only three. The nadir position was held by the DCP team, with five losses in as many games scheduled.

The standings:

	W	L	Pct.
563d Sig.	4	1	.800
763d Ord.	3	1	.750
63d QM.	4	2	.667

253D Plans Burlesque „Carmen’ As Show for All Division Units

Editor's Note: Sometimes a great press agent, like the late Dexter Fellows of the circus, describes his forthcoming production so extravagantly that no prosaic editor can improve on it. Altered only by the demands of the paper shortage, the following prospectus flowed from the pen of T/5 Frederick (his stage name is Fredd, with two Ds) Wiener:

A burlesque version of Bizet's „Carmen” in GI Tempo will be presented to Blood and Fire personnel in the Division's first variety production since VE Day.

T/5 Fredd Wiener, special services assistant in the 253d Inf., announced the cast of the show would include newly discovered talent picked from the entire regiment. Wiener, who is directing the production, also will play the leading role of Carmen.

Done in „Hellzapoppin” technique, the 253d's „Carmen” has a riotous plot and will be produced with a single set, the courtyard of a German inn. The show is tentatively scheduled to open next Friday and will be presented before all Division units. Production is supervised by Lt. Robert Bogan, CT Red special services officer.

Matching the gay tunes and ribald comedy is a collection of extraordinary costumes obtained from Germany's fabulous Scala Theater, assuring additional brilliance.

Cpl. Ray Richardson, Med. Det., who sang in numerous Chicago night clubs and with the Chicago Civic Opera, will play „Don Juan”. Cpl. William Thomas, Co. E, will portray „El Toreador”. Pvt. Al LaVecchia, Co. E, has been cast as the heart interest.

Another member of the cast is T/Sgt. Harold Edwards, Co. G, formerly of Arthur Murray's studio and a dancer in Fox Films.

Pfc. Anselmo Chico, Co. L, will do an „adagio jitterbug”. Pfc. Attilio Savelli, Co. G, and Pvt. John Forlano, Co. E, headline a comic wrestling act and Cpl. Joe Jackmauski, Regtl. Hq. Co., will lead a band of stooges.

Music will be furnished by a small jam band and by the Hq. Co. Sextet.
