PREFACE

The idea of a history of the Ninth Marines was originated by Major General Shepherd when as Colonel Shepherd, commanding the Regiment, he had a chronology kept for that purpose. After the General brought the 6th Marine Division back to Guam from the Okinawa campaign it was the privilege of the Ninth to entertain General Shepherd and the officers of the 6th Division in honor of the original commander who had given the Regiment its permanent tone and largely set the standards it tried to achieve.

In conversations with the General he mentioned on several occasions his interest in seeing that the Regiment recorded its history for the benefit of the living and representatives of the deceased whose lives had been tied to the Ninth in the great Pacific Ocean operations.

In these hurried days when hostilities have ceased and organization breakup seems imminent, the Regimental Staff and others of the command have undertaken in the best manner possible to fulfill, at least partially, the hope expressed by General Shepherd that the Ninth would not die forever when its official life ceased. We hope that we have carried on to the end with the standard initially set. We leave to others to judge the performance of this body of officers and men from the amount and nature of ground taken from the enemy and the price paid in life.

In the hectic years now past, we have seen the supreme test applied. From the ruthless trial of war the memory of faces in pain, death, anxiety, and determination brings back the grandeur of those lives whose accomplishments have given identity to the Ninth Marines. We agree that this height of human endeavor deserves immortality and submit these pages as our effort to perpetuate the abundant revelations of true nobility disclosed by this body of Americans in the searing crucible of war.

PRESIDENTIAL CITATION

(Approved February 25, 1946. Not yet published when this book was printed.)

The President of the United States takes pleasure in awarding the Presidential Unit Citation to

NINTH MARINES (PLUS DETACHMENT FROM 3D ASSAULT SIGNAL COMPANY)

3D MARINE DIVISION, FLEET MARINE FORCE

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION

For extraordinary heroism in action with the enemy during the operation for Iwo Jima, Volcano Islands, from 25 February to 16 March 1945. During the period 25 February to 16 March 1945, the 9th Marines operated continuously in the front lines in combat against the enemy. Attacking on the morning of 25 February, the 9th Marines in a furious three-day assault shattered the enemy's main line of resistance north of Motoyama Airfield No. 2, decisively cut his communications, and rendered inevitable the final success of the campaign. That success was gained in spite of terrain which conferred every advantage on the defenders, and in the face of positions prepared by the enemy with every artifice, every installation, and every weapon available to provide a defense as nearly invulnerable to assault as enemy ingenuity could devise. The cost of that success in casualties was more severe than that in any other single action in which the Division participated. Every company commander and a crippling proportion of the other key personnel were killed or wounded. In the normal course of human experience, the Regiment could not have been expected soon again to wage a vigorous campaign, but resuming the attack on the following day, the 9th Marines continued a steady advance. Later in a bloody two-week operation, the Regiment also reduced a principal portion of the prepared positions occupied by the enemy's reserve. In spite of enormous losses, although the exhausting strains of the previous fighting had brought the surviving officers and men to the limit of human endurance, the Regiment rose gallantly to the situation, successfully executed a night attack in terrain so difficult as to make maintenance of direction and control very nearly impossible, and by the evening of 16 March, the last important enemy stronghold on Iwo Jima was entered by the 9th Marines. Advancing continuously against the fiercest and most skillful enemy yet encountered in the Central Pacific, and accepting without hesitation losses totalling two thousand eighty-nine officers and men, the 9th Marines very materially contributed to the successful culmination of an assault operation which is considered to have been the most difficult in the history of the U. S. Marine Corps. The gallantry and determination in action of the 9th Marines were extraordinary and reflected the highest credit upon this gallant Regiment and the United States Naval Service.

GENERAL A. A. VANDEGRIET
Commandant of the Marine Corps

GENERAL A. A. VANDEGRIFT, USMC

General Alexander Archer Vandegrift, eighteenth Commandant of the Marine Corps, was born March 13, 1887, at Charlottesville, Virginia, the son of William Thomas and Sarah A. Vandegrift.

He attended the University of Virginia from 1906 to 1908, and was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps in January 1909. The Commandant attained his present rank on April 4, 1945, thus becoming the first Marine officer on active duty in the history of the Corps to be appointed a four-star general.

General Vandegrift has served in Cuba, Panama, Nicaragua, Mexico, Haiti, China, and in the South Pacific; at sea aboard the USS Minnesota, USS Virginia, USS Delaware, and USS Chester, and at various Marine posts in this country.

As a second lieutenant on duty in Nicaragua, he participated in the bombardment, assault, and capture of Coyotepe in October 1912. April of 1914 saw him with the U. S. occupation forces at Vera Cruz, Mexico. In November of the following year, he was fighting hostile Cocos in northern Haiti. From 1916 to 1918, and again from 1919 to 1923, he served with the Gendarmerie d'Haiti. He was awarded the Haitian Distinguished Service Medal and twice was awarded the Haitian Medaille Militaire for his services.

After a tour of duty and advanced study at Marine Corps schools in the United States, General Vandegrift was sent to Shanghai, China, in February 1927, as Force Operations and Training Officer under Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler. He also served at Peking and Tientsin while in China.

From January 1929 to August 1933, he served as Assistant to the Chief Coordinator, Bureau of the Budget, in Washington. From September 1933 to June 1935, he was Assistant Chief of Staff of the then recently formed Fleet Marine Force. He became Executive Officer, and then Commanding Officer, of the Marine Detachment at the American Embassy, Peiping (Peking), China, during the critical period between August 1935 and April 1937.

From June 1937 to November 1941 he was on duty at Headquarters, U. S. Marine Corps, in Washington. Part of this period he was Secretary to the Major General Commandant, and later was Assistant to the Commandant. In November 1941 he joined the Fleet Marine Force at New River, North Carolina. His promotion to major general came in March 1942.

The forces he joined at New River were those he led ashore at Guadalcanal, Tulagi, and Gavutu, August 7, 1942, thus opening the first major American offensive against the Japanese. By October he had won the coveted Navy Cross, which was presented to him on Guadalcanal by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet.

On July 30, 1943, he was promoted to lieutenant general and it was announced he had been named Commanding General of the I Marine Amphibious Corps.

The Marines who established the initial beachhead at Empress Augusta Bay, Bougainville Island, November 1, 1943, were commanded by General Vandegrift. After the beachhead had been consolidated, he relinquished command to Major General Roy S. Geiger, USMC, and returned to the United States.

For his services in the South Pacific, General Vandegrift was awarded the Medal of Honor by President Roosevelt on February 4, 1943.

General Vandegrift became Commandant on January 1, 1944, succeeding General Thomas Holcomb. The latter, in turning over his command at his retirement, recalled:

"Following his promotion to brigadier general, I appointed General Vandegrift Assistant to the Commandant, in which position he gave me several years of faithful service. Later, I made up my mind that if I had any say in the choice of my successor, it would be General Vandegrift."

General Vandegrift holds the following decorations: Medal of Honor, Navy Cross, Presidential Unit Citation with one blue star, Expeditionary Medal with three bronze stars, Nicaraguan Campaign Medal, Mexican Service Medal, Haitian Campaign Medal (1915), Haitian Campaign Medal (1919-20), Victory Medal with one bronze star, Yangtze Service Medal, American Defense Service Medal, Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal with four bronze stars, two Haitian Medaille Militaire, Haitian Distinguished Service Medal, and Peruvian Air Medal First Class. He holds an honorary degree of Doctor of Military Science from Pennsylvania Military College, and honorary degrees of Doctor of Law from Harvard University, Brown University, and John Marshall College. The British government has conferred on him the Order of the Bath.

General Vandegrift and his wife, Mildred Strode Vandegrift, reside at the Commandant's Quarters, Marine Barracks, Washington. The couple has one son, A. A. Vandegrift, Jr., who was graduated from Virginia Military Institute in 1935, entered the Marine Corps, and now holds the rank of lieutenant colonel.

MAJOR GENERAL ALLEN HAL TURNAGE, USMC

MAJOR GENERAL ALLEN HAL TURNAGE, USMC

Major General Allen Hal Turnage served with the 3d Marine Division from December 1942 to September 1944. Between the lines of his military history, one may read the unusual story of an unassuming man who won his way to the top through his courage, initiative and ability to perform the tasks to which he was assigned.

He was born in Farmville, North Carolina, January 3, 1891, a son of William J. and Ora Turnage. His Welsh ancestors came to America in the early eighteenth century and settled in what is now Pitt County, North Carolina. After attending school at Farmville and Horner Military School at Oxford, General Turnage attended the University of North Carolina, where he gained a reputation as an outstanding baseball player.

In 1913, at the age of twenty-two, he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. After attending the Marine Officers' School at the Navy Yard, Norfolk, Virginia, for two years, he was ordered to Haiti with the first Marine units where from 1915 to 1918 he served with the Second Marine Regiment, and as a company commander in the Haitian gendarmerie. He was promoted to first lieutenant in August 1916 and to captain in October 1917. With the temporary rank of major, he went to France in September 1918 where he commanded the 5th Marine Brigade machine-gun battalion, returning to the United States in August 1919. After a short tour of duty at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, he was assigned to the Fifth Marine Regiment at Quantico, Virginia, serving as adjutant of that famous World War I unit and as instructor at the first Field Officers' School at Quantico, from 1920 to 1922.

From 1922 to 1925 he again served with the Gendarmerie d'Haiti, and from 1925 to 1929 he was assigned to duty at the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, and with the Division of Operations and Training, Headquarters U. S. Marine Corps, in Washington. He was appointed to the permanent rank of major in July 1927. During the next three years he served with the Pacific Fleet on the staffs of Admirals Frank Schofield and J. R. Poinsette Pringle. In the latter half of 1932 he served as Executive Officer to Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward on the United States Electoral Mission to Nicaragua. Again returning to the States, he was on duty with the Division of Operations and Training at Marine Corps headquarters, until 1935. He was promoted to lieutenant colonel in November 1934 and to colonel in January 1939. From 1935 to 1939 he was successively Director of the Marine Corps Basic School (for newly appointed second lieutenants) at the Marine Barracks, Philadelphia Navy Yard; Commanding Officer of the 1st Battalion, Fifth Marines, at Quantico; and Executive Officer of the Fifth Marines.

In the spring of 1939 he was sent to China, as Commanding Officer of the Marine Forces in North China, with headquarters at the American Embassy at Peiping. As the senior foreign officer of embassy guards in Peiping during the critical period when France fell before the onrush of Hitler's armies and the Japanese intensified their aggression against China, the tact he displayed in handling a very difficult and critical situation won the high praise of Nelson Johnson, U. S. Ambassador to China, and Admiral Thomas Hart, Commander in Chief of the Asiatic Fleet.

Two years later, about seven months before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, he was recalled to Washington and assigned the important job of Executive Officer and later Director of the Division of Plans and Policies at Marine Corps headquarters. From June to November 1942, as a brigadier general, he was in command of the Marine Corps base at New River, North Carolina, and as Assistant Division Commander, supervised the initial training of approximately two-thirds of the troops of the 3d Marine Division at that station.

General Turnage joined the newly organized 3d Marine Division at its headquarters in San Diego on December 1, 1942, and in February 1943 sailed for the Southwest Pacific in command of the rear echelon. On Guadalcanal in September 1943, just prior to the Bougainville campaign, when his Division commander, Major General Charles D. Barrett, was elevated to command of the I Marine Amphibious Corps, General Turnage was promoted to major general and assumed command of the 3d Marine Division. In the landing attack and seizure of the Empress Augusta Bay area on the west coast of Bougainville, he commanded all the ground forces, some 25,000 officers and men. The strategy involved in this operation was a bold one, quite different from "island hopping." It called for a surprise landing on a particularly difficult area, and the possession of bases from which we could establish air superiority over the Northern Solomons, cut off the scattered Japanese forces still existing in our rear, and threaten Rabaul, the great enemy base for troops, supplies, and naval forces for the entire Bismarck Archipelago. The tactical operation under such strategy was simple in outline and very difficult in execution. Against strong enemy resistance, General Turnage's forces had to establish a beachhead, push inland to and beyond the airport site, and set up perimeter defenses. They had to maintain continual patrols to prevent the massing of enemy forces at any one point on that perimeter. As the perimeter grew in depth, special troops had to set up defenses to protect the airport both from the sea and from the air, and maintain an uninterrupted flow of supplies to the edges, a problem in construction and supply which was really tougher to solve than that of actual occupation. The swamps, the climate, the dense jungle, the numerous streams, presented almost insuperable problems in engineering that could have been solved only by American ingenuity plus the guiding hand of a great leader. When the command was turned over to the Army on December 15, 1943, the sector had been developed into a strongly defended beachhead within which had been constructed extensive base facilities, roadnets, and one completed and two partially completed airfields.

In the landing attack of the III Amphibious Corps to recapture Guam, in the Marianas group, General Turnage quickly pushed his 3d Division units well inland from the beach areas, thereby preventing many more casualties from the thousands of rounds of enemy shells that were concentrated on those areas. After five days of strong resistance from hill and cave defenses the Japanese launched a heavy counterattack in full force in an attempt to push the Marines back into the sea. By repulsing this major assault of the Japanese North Force, in which thousands of enemy soldiers were killed, General Turnage's 3d Marine Division broke the backbone of further major opposition on the island. In just twenty-one days after the landing all organized resistance had ceased. Guam was again in American hands.

Shortly after the successful conclusion of the Guam campaign, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, General Alexander A. Vandegrift, recalled General Turnage to Washington in September 1944 to assume the duties of Director of Personnel, U. S. Marine Corps. In July 1945 the Commandant appointed him Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps.

In addition to several campaign ribbons, General Turnage wears the ribbons representing the Haitian Distinguished Service Medal; the Dominican Medal of Merit; the Nicaraguan Distinguished Service Medal; the Navy Cross; and the Navy Distinguished Service Medal. On April 13, 1946, his Alma Mater, the University of North Carolina, conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

MAJOR GENERAL GRAVES B. ERSKINE, USMC

General Erskine entered the Marine Corps as a second lieutenant in 1917 and went to France later that same year as a platoon leader in the Sixth Marines. He fought through Belleau Wood, Bouresches, and Soissons; a wound received at Saint Mihiel led to his evacuation back to the United States just before the Armistice.

In the interval between the two wars the General served in Haiti and Santo Domingo and aboard the USS Olympia, with brief tours ashore between 1920 and 1925. From 1928 to 1930 he served in the Guardia Nacional de Nicaragua, and later as executive officer of the Embassy Guard, Peiping, China, from 1935 to 1937. During the periods of shore duty in the United States he attended and graduated from the Army Infantry School at Fort Benning, attended two years at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and served as instructor at the Company Officer's Course of Marine Corps Schools in Quantico, the Basic School at Philadelphia, and in capacities as Chief of Section of the 1st, 2d and 3d Sections of the reorganized Marine Corps Schools in Quantico.

Prior to Pearl Harbor, General Erskine served successively as Executive Officer, Fifth Marines, G-4 and G-3 of the 1st Marine Brigade, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and Quantico, and later Chief of Staff of the 1st Marine Division.

At the time of Pearl Harbor he was serving as Chief of Staff of the Amphibious Corps, Atlantic Fleet. He continued on this duty until 1942 when he was assigned duty at San Diego as Chief of Staff of the Amphibious Corps, Pacific Fleet, and the Fleet Marine Force, San Diego Area. During this period, under General Holland Smith's direction, he participated in the amphibious training of Army troops for the Kiska and Attu operations and participated in the landing on Kiska.

When the V Amphibious Corps was organized in September 1943, he served as Chief of Staff of that Corps, and par-participated in the planning and seizure of the Gilberts and accompanied the assault forces which took Kwajalein, Saipan and Tinian the following year. When the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, was organized, immediately after completion of the seizure of Saipan, General Erskine remained on duty with the V Amphibious Corps during the seizure of Tinian and was assigned additional duty as Chief of Staff of the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, and continued these duties until promoted to the rank of Major General upon completion of the Tinian operation. He then assumed command of the 3d Marine Division in October 1944, and commanded that Division during the hard-fought campaign on Iwo Jima in early 1945.

General Erskine afterward served in Washington, D. C., as Administrator of the Retraining and Reemployment Administration, although retaining his Marine Corps status by a special act of Congress.

General Erskine's decorations include: the Navy Distinguished Service Medal; the Legion of Merit with Gold Star; the Pacific Campaign ribbon with three battle stars; the World War II Medal; the American Defense Medal and the American Campaign Ribbon; the Silver Star; the Purple Heart (France 1918); the World War I Victory Medal with clasps for Aisne, St. Mihiel, and Defense Sector; the Expeditionary Medal with two Bronze Stars; the Second Nicaraguan Campaign Medal; the Nicaraguan Medal of Merit; and the French Fourragere.

BRIGADIER GENERAL WILLIAM EDWARD RILEY, USMC

Brigadier General William Edward Riley, USMC, distinguished himself in World War I by gallantry in action and in World War II by his expert planning of amphibious operations.

Born in Minneapolis, Minnesota, February 2, 1897, General Riley was educated in Minneapolis public schools and at the College of St. Thomas at St. Paul. He entered the Marine Corps on June 22, 1917.

He was wounded twice in World War I, slightly in the Belleau Wood action on June 12, 1918, and seriously on July 19, in action near Parcy-Tigny in France. His second wound came when he was leading a company of the Sixth Marine Regiment in a charge, after his company commander had been killed. In each of the above actions he was awarded a Silver Star Citation.

He won also the French Croix de Guerre with Gold Star and was cited by the War Department and in general orders of the 2d Division, AEF, for bravery in battle. He is also entitled to wear the French Fourragere.

In the period between wars, he served at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, in Haiti, and at various posts in the United States. He was honored by the Republic of Haiti for his services in that country.

He is a graduate of the Army Infantry School, the Army Command and General Staff School, and the Naval War College. From 1940 to 1942 he was on the staff of the Commander in Chief, Atlantic Fleet, and then served on the staff of the Commander in Chief of the United States Fleet until July 1943, when he was transferred to Admiral Halsey's command. He was Assistant Chief of Staff, Plans, on the staff of Admiral Halsey during the years 1943-45, for which he was cited twice.

In May 1945 he joined the 3d Marine Division as Assistant Division Commander, and assumed command of that division in October 1945. Upon disbandment of the Division in Deember of that year he returned to the States for duty at Marine Corps Headquarters.

His decorations include two awards of the Legion of Merit; two Silver Star Citations; two Purple Hearts; World War I Victory Medal with three battle clasps; the Haitian Campaign Medal (1919-20); Expeditionary Medal (Haiti, 1929-31); American Defense Service Medal; Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal with four stars; Philippine Liberation Medal with two stars; American Campaign Medal; World War II Victory Medal; French Croix de Guerre with Gold Star; French Fourragere; and Haitian Order of Honor and Merit.

Dear Colonel Kenyon,

In behalf of the officers of the Sixth Marine Division, I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the delightful party given by the officers of the Ninth Marines last Saturday night. I was deeply touched by the honor which you and your officers paid me personally.

To me there can never be another Regiment like the "Striking Ninth". I saw it grow from infancy into manhood, and its accomplishment in battle have more than justified my conviction that it was the best Regiment of Marines that ever left the United States. It is most gratifying to see the comradeship and spirit for which this Regiment was famous perpetuated under the able leadership of its present commander. I feel sure that the Ninth Marines will continue to excel and that its achievements in battle in the future will equal those of its glorious past.

Again thanking you for your generous hospitality, I remain

Sincerely yours,

/s/ LEMUEL C. SHEPHERD, JR.

CHAPTER 1
ORGANIZATION AND INITIAL TRAINING
FEBRUARY 1942 TO OCTOBER 1943

*Be brave, be brave, ye sons of men;
Lift freedom's banner high
As many bleed and die of old
To raise it to the sky.
Let every tyrant be o'erthrown,
And right, not might, hold sway;
That for all nations of the earth
May dawn a brighter day.*

—J. GILCHRIST LAWSON.

The Ninth Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, was organized at Quantico, Virginia, November 20, 1917, as one of the infantry regiments of the Advanced Base Force which had been ordered by the Navy Department for duty in the Caribbean area for the possible protection of advanced naval bases and the Panama Canal during World War I. The Eighth Marines, with which the Ninth was closely associated during the World War I period, had just been organized, in October, 1917.

The Ninth Regiment at the time of its organization was under the command of Major Rush R. Wallace. Only five days later, however, Lieutenant Colonel F. L. Bradman took command of the regiment and Major Wallace was placed in command of the 1st Battalion. The Ninth was made up of the following companies: 14th, 36th, 100th, 121st, 122d, 123d, 124th, 125th, and 126th.

Major E. A. Osterman joined the Ninth Regiment on December 1, 1917, and took command of the 2d Battalion. Major Ross E. Rowell (now Major General) joined on December 16th and took command of the 3d Battalion. Captain James T. Reid was assigned as Regimental Adjutant, on December 8, 1917.

On December 19, 1917, the entire Ninth Regiment, with a strength of approximately 1,000 officers and men, embarked on board the USS Von Steuben at Newport News, Virginia, and sailed for Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, to assist in the intervention then in progress in that country. The Regiment arrived and disembarked at Guantanamo on December 25, 1917.

Colonel Thomas C. Treadwell joined the Ninth Regiment on January 24, 1918, and relieved Lieutenant Colonel Bradman of command. Lieutenant Colonel Bradman took charge of drill and instruction. The entire time that the Ninth Regiment was at Deer Point, Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, was spent in routine drill and target practice.

The 36th and 100th Companies were detached on July 31 and became part of the Barracks Detachment at Guantanamo. The 154th, 155th, and 156th Companies were organized on August 13, 1918.

As trouble was anticipated in Mexico at the time, where it was feared the Germans might take advantage of the situation to interrupt oil production in the Tampico area, the Ninth Regiment, together with the Eighth Regiment, embarked on board USS Hancock (July 31, 1918), and sailed for Galveston, Texas, where they arrived a week later and went into camp at nearby Fort Crockett, for which arrangements had been made with the Army authorities, and remained there throughout the period of World War I.

Upon arrival of the Ninth Regiment at Fort Crockett, August 6, 1918, from Cuba, the Eighth and Ninth Regiments, and headquarters, were formed into what was termed the 3d Provisional Brigade, of which Brigadier General J. E. Mahoney took command in October 1918.

Colonel George C. Reid joined the Ninth Regiment, August 18, 1918, and relieved Colonel Treadwell of command. Lieutenant Colonel T. Backstrom was promoted from rank of major and relieved Lieutenant Colonel Bradman of drill and instruction. Lieutenant Colonel Bradman and Colonel Treadwell were detached August 13, and 17, respectively.

The Ninth Regiment embarked on board the USS Hancock, April 10, 1919, for Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, where it arrived and disembarked on April 25, and was disbanded the same day.

During its long stay at Galveston the Ninth Regiment carried on routine schedules of training and guard duty, and was maintained in a high state of efficiency. While the call for duty in Mexico never came, the presence of the large force of Marines in adjacent Texas no doubt served a purpose, and had a salutary effect.

The Eighth Regiment which also was disbanded in April 1919 following the termination of the duty in Texas, was reorganized in December 1919 for duty in the tropics (Haiti); but not so the Ninth.

On December 1, 1925, the Ninth Regiment was reorganized as a Reserve regiment, Central Reserve Area, with Lieutenant Colonel J. K. Tracy in command, with Headquarters at Chicago, Illinois, with Headquarters Company, Service Company, and three battalions and aviation force, stationed at various large cities in the Middle West. It was disbanded on September 1, 1937.

The Ninth Marines was reactivated under the command of Lieutenant Colonel W. Baynard Onley, USMC, on February 12, 1942, as an integral part of the 2d Marine Division.

Formation began with the establishment of a Headquarters and Service Company and the 3d Battalion. Personnel for these units were furnished from the Second Marine Regiment and consisted of one-third of Headquarters and Service Company, Second Marines, and the 3d Battalion, Second Marines, under the command of Major Edwin C. Partridge, USMCR.

On March 1, 1942, the 1st Battalion, Ninth Marines, was formed under the command of Major William H. Hughes, USMC. Personnel for this battalion came from other organizations of the 2d Marine Division, the greatest percentage being from the 3d Battalion, Sixth Marine Regiment. From March 1 to April 1, 1942, the average strength of the Ninth Marines was 50 officers and 1,851 enlisted men.

On March 16, 1942, Colonel Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., was assigned as commanding officer of the Ninth Marines, succeeding Lieutenant Colonel W. Baynard Onley, who assumed the duties of regimental executive officer.

On April 1, 1942, the 2d Battalion was organized under the command of Major Durant L. Buchanan, USMCR. The Regimental Weapons Company was simultaneously formed, completing the Regiment. From April 1 to June 15, 1942, the average strength of the Regiment was 99 officers and 3,003 enlisted men.

Under the direct supervision of the regimental commander, the Ninth Marines began its initial training period on the 1st of April with the purpose of developing in each individual unit the qualities of morale and discipline, health and endurance, technical and tactical proficiency, initiative and leadership. Accomplishing these objectives, emphasis was placed on advanced tactical instruction and the development of companies and battalions into hard-striking, well trained, fighting teams, imbued with esprit de corps.

Regimental schools for technical and specialist training were inaugurated to train selected NCO's and PFC's as instructors for the various units. Colonel Shepherd also scheduled semiweekly officers' schools to prepare better the company and junior officers for their duties in combat. Problems in tactics and amphibious operations were fashioned and submitted to each officer for solution. Schools were staged at Camp Elliott in bayonet, hand grenade, automatic rifle, the Thompson and Lewis machine guns, caliber .30 and .50 machine guns, 60- and 81-millimeter mortars, rubber boat operation, defense against chemical attack, communications and combat intelligence.

On May 1, 1942, the Regiment took over and conducted Division schools in scouting and patrolling, field fortifications and infantry weapons. Foremost among these were the scout-sniper schools at River Camp, which men from each battalion and the Regimental Intelligence Section attended. In these schools troops studied scouting and patrolling, sniping, field fortifications, demolitions, camouflage, night patrolling and use of compass. Particular emphasis was placed on physical conditioning with commando methods being taught by instructors who had attended British commando schools. When adequate instructors had been developed, training for battalions, and all newly joined recruits at the Regimental Field Combat School, was prescribed.

Included in the initial training was a program of swimming instruction and qualifications conducted by all units of the Regiment. Physical development was also stressed by regular and continual conditioning exercises to develop and harden men for field service under combat conditions.

Upon completion of the initial training period, field exercises and combat-team maneuvers with battalions and reinforcing units were staged.

The 1st and 3d Battalions of the Ninth Marines with reinforcing units were formed into combat teams and conducted amphibious training in the San Diego--La Jolla area during May and June, 1942.

The new Regiment experienced a depletion of strength on June 15, 1942, when it was ordered to furnish a cadre of six officers and 755 enlisted men to assist in the formation of the Twenty-second Marine Regiment, then organizing at Camp Linda Vista, California. Personnel for this purpose was drawn from the 2d Battalion and Headquarters and Service Company. In July the Regiment was further reduced when it supplied men for the Twenty-third Marine Regiment at the Fleet Marine Force Training Center, Camp Lejeune, New River, North Carolina. The average regimental strength between June 15 and July 15, 1942, was 114 officers and 2,207 enlisted men. From July 9 to August 1, 1942, the strength had fallen to 90 officers and 1,500 enlisted men. On August 1 a gradual replenishment of personnel began that continued until about November 14, 1942, when the Regiment reached authorized strength.

On August 1, 1942, the Ninth was reinforced by the attachment of the 1st Battalion, Twelfth Marine Artillery Regiment. On August 3 the Ninth was detached from duty with the 2d Marine Division and assigned to independent duty as part of the Amphibious Corps, Pacific Fleet. On August 20 the Regiment, with its reinforcing units, was ordered from Camp Elliott to the new Marine Corps Base at Camp Pendleton.

There, in the broad expanse of what was formerly the old Santa Margarita Ranch, the Ninth settled down to a new combat training routine. Battalion and regimental attack and defense exercises were conducted. Hikes became a regular part of the program to condition men for combat. The routine also included the firing of all weapons, live hand-grenade throwing, technique employed in jungle warfare, personal hygiene, first aid and field sanitation, defense against air and mechanized attack, scouting and patrolling, establishment and relief of outposts at night, camouflage measures, use of rubber boats and combat firing problems. As new recruits were assigned to the Regiment they attended indoctrination schools and were trained to align their degree of proficiency with that of the older men. A regimental field combat school was organized from the instructors and outstanding graduates of the former 2d Division Scout-Sniper School.

On September 16 the Ninth was detached from the Amphibious Corps, Pacific Fleet, and designated the advance echelon of the newly organized 3d Marine Division. In the latter part of October additional supporting units were assigned and the reinforced Ninth Regiment was formed into an outfit of three combat teams, commanded by infantry battalion commanders. Each combat team participated in amphibious exercises in the San Diego—Oceanside area for two weeks. The two main landings were made under the cover of darkness. In the final exercise, two complete combat teams landed under regimental control with all supplies and equipment and conducted a 48-hour maneuver extending inland eight miles from the beach-head.

During November and December the Regiment continued its intensive training with emphasis on individual marksmanship instruction and combat firing. A snap-firing course was constructed in a wooded area with disappearing targets. To familiarize all officers and men with simulated battle conditions and develop coordination between infantry and supporting units, each battalion conducted a combat firing exercise with all supporting weapons firing overhead as the troops advanced.

What might be described as the first phase of the training of the Regiment was concluded on Christmas Eve, 1942, with a very fitting ceremony. The reinforced Regiment was paraded and presented with regimental colors by Major General Charles D. Barrett, USMC, Commanding General, 3d Marine Division. Even the rain which fell during the event could not keep this trim, disciplined Marine regiment from making an excellent impression on the observers.

On January 1, 1943, the reinforcing units in their entirety were attached to the Ninth Regiment. They were:

- 1st Battalion, Twelfth Marines (Artillery)
- Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion, Nineteenth Marines
- Company A, Nineteenth Marines (Engineers)
- Company D, Nineteenth Marines (Pioneers)
- Company G, Nineteenth Marines (Construction Battalion)
- Company A, Third Service Battalion (Motor Transport)
- Company A, Third Tank Battalion
- Company A, Third Amphibious Tractor Battalion
- Company A, Third Medical Battalion
- Company C, Third Special Weapons Battalion (Antitank)
- 1st Platoon, Battery A, Third Special Weapons Battalion (Antiaircraft)
- 1st Platoon, 3d Scout Company, Third Hq. Battalion
- 1st Platoon, Service and Supply Co., 3d Service Battalion
- 1st Band Section, 3d Headquarters Battalion

The new units constituted an important part of the reinforced Regiment. Their manpower strength totaled about 2,500, which, added to the Ninth's original 3,000, resulted in a powerful combat force of 5,500 well-trained troops.

Before the Regiment left for duty overseas, some changes were made in assignments so as to place every individual in the position where he would be best fitted and could act with the greatest efficiency.

A few weeks before the Regiment left the States, Colonel Shepherd suggested the design for the "Striking Ninth's" emblem to reveal the spirit, objective and purpose of this fighting force.

The emblem consists of a bald eagle with outstretched wings carrying three chain links in each claw, the motto "Striking" on a ribbon running through its wings, a wreath, a shield with a lightning bolt flashing through a large figure nine and another ribbon lettered "Ninth Marines" below the shield. The chain links typify the interlocked, interdependent battalions forming the backbone of the Regiment. The eagle itself and the flashing lightning represent the striking power of the Regiment.

January 24, 1943, was a memorable day in the history of the organization for it was then that the Regiment sailed on the USS Mount Vernon for New Zealand. After eleven uneventful days, the Ninth arrived in Auckland on Friday, February 5 and disembarked the following Sunday.

Because of the impossibility of finding suitable space large enough to accommodate the entire Regiment, separate sites were assigned for each of the battalions and reinforcing units. The camps were widely scattered, a distance of over twenty miles separating headquarters from the most distant battalions. Regimental headquarters was located at a race track near Pukekohe, a town about thirty miles south of Auckland.

Training, within the limitations imposed by geography, was ordered. Basic training covered refresher and indoctrination courses in firing all weapons; including the Lewis machine guns (on modified courses, when proper ranges were not available); live hand-grenade throwing; extended order, with particular emphasis on the technique of jungle warfare; scouting and patrolling at night; fifteen- to twenty-five mile hikes; personal combat and physical conditioning.

For more advanced training, there were unit problems involving squads, platoons and companies, and exercises in attack and defense, both day and night. In addition, practice was given in bivouacking and subsisting in the field on a minimum of drinking water and food, and in the operation of rubber boats.

From April 26 to 30 a jungle warfare problem was conducted emphasizing the employment of a combat group in the seizure of a beachhead and subsequent operations to subdue the local hostile force. Two battalions were in the attack and one on defense, and terrain most nearly resembling that likely to be traversed later in combat was chosen for the exercises. The principal gains accruing from this exercise lay in the opportunities afforded for observing both offensive and defensive tactics, the functioning of individual command groups of all echelons under simulated combat conditions, the operation of units under cover of darkness and under conditions of jungle warfare, and in studying the units living in the field on diminished rations. Sixty-mile hikes later became a part of the training.

Several changes in the command of units were effected while the Regiment was in New Zealand. Lieutenant Colonel Buchanan was succeeded as commanding officer of Regimental Weapons Company by Major Jess P. Ferrill, Jr., of Tampa, Florida, who had been serving as the company's executive officer.

Lieutenant Colonel Cushman, promoted to that rank from major, assumed command of the 2d Battalion to succeed Lieutenant Colonel Hankins who went to other duty with the I Marine Amphibious Corps.

Promoted before leaving command of the 3d Battalion, Colonel Thaxton was appointed Intelligence Officer of the I Marine Amphibious Corps.

Shortly before the Ninth left New Zealand, its reinforcing units were returned to their original organizations; consequently, the Ninth no longer could be termed a reinforced unit.

June 29 was an historic day for the Regiment. In the early morning hours five transports, bearing the Ninth and several of its erstwhile attached units, departed from the Auckland harbor bound for Guadalcanal. The voyage was uneventful. Arriving at Guadalcanal on July 6 the regiment disembarked near Koli Point and landed at Tetera Village.

The Regiment established camp in a coconut grove three miles from Tetera Village, inland about twelve miles southeast of famed Henderson Field. With the Ninth was the advance echelon of the 3d Marine Division. Later other regiments in the Division arrived and set up camps in the huge grove.

On July 19 the Ninth lost its commanding officer, Colonel Shepherd. A colorful review was staged in a large field near the grove where Major General Barrett pinned the stars of a brigadier general on Colonel Shepherd's collar. Brigadier General Shepherd had been assigned to take over new duties as assistant commander of the 1st Marine Division.

Succeeding Brigadier General Shepherd was Colonel Craig who pledged himself to "carry on the traditions of the Ninth Regiment which I know, in the days to come, will defeat the Japs." This prophecy was later to be fulfilled in three major engagements.

Patrols through dense jungles became the principal Guadalcanal training program; hardening the men for action sure to come. Several days were required to get the new camp set up for proper functioning. Officers and enlisted men worked together in pitching tents and getting equipment ready. Large work parties became a daily necessity. Another vital function of the personnel was serving in garrison duty at several points on the island.

The Ninth Regiment, trained and fit at the close of the first year and a half of its existence, stood ready to face the big job which still lay ahead, filled with enthusiasm and determination to live up to its motto, "The Striking Ninth."

Training ended temporarily for the Ninth Marines on August 30 when the Regiment became the island working party. Five weeks were spent in unloading cargo, hauling it to the various camps and reloading it for distribution throughout the island. The Teter Camp was closed except for a small rear echelon while the unit moved to scattered camps along the beach near Lunga Point.

Training recommenced on October 1 following the regiment's return to its original camp. Ten days were spent in both regimental and battalion problems, firing problems and artillery demonstrations in preparation for the oncoming operation. On October 11 equipment was issued, checked and crating begun while operational plans were worked out. A week later, October 18, the Ninth Marines, Reinforced, went aboard the Navy transports American Legion, Crescent City, Fuller, and Coast Guard transport, Hunter Liggett.

The final phase of training was a dress rehearsal at Fila, Efate, New Hebrides. A beach was picked with terrain that was believed to resemble the "real thing" and the regiment landed, simulating the actual operation that was to come. The ships were unloaded in four hours, a simulated Condition Red sounded and the men dived for foxholes.

On October 28 the Crescent City stopped at Havana Harbor, Efate, for a new boom. On the 29th all the ships put to sea guarded by destroyers. Life aboard the transport, as usual, was crowded and hot. Men cleaned their rifles, read or talked, but few lay below in their bunks.

Drinking water was rationed until the last day. Although the food generally was the usual canned and dehydrated diet, on October 31 a steak dinner with all the trimmings was served.

The men of the Ninth Marine Regiment knew their job! They had rehearsed every step; they had been shown the maps with all terrain features; they knew approximately where the enemy was, and they knew how to meet him and kill him. They were confident of their ability.

Passing the coast of New Georgia on October 31 the whole convoy was formed. That night Japanese planes bombed the Manos beachhead, where a New Zealand brigade had landed on October 28, dropping flares near the convoy. The planes did not attack the convoy, apparently not sighting it.

General Quarters aboard ship blared at 0500. The intermittent buzzing sound had tolled the knell of the final phase of training of the Ninth Marine Regiment.

Now it was the real thing!

CHAPTER 2

THE BATTLE FOR BOUGAINVILLE

*What did you see out there, my lad,
That has set that look in your eyes?
You went out a boy, you have come back a man,
With strange new depths underneath your tan.
What was it you saw out there, my lad,
That set such deeps in your eyes?*

—JOHN OXENHAM.

Darkness still hovered over Empress Augusta Bay, Bougainville, when the large guns commenced shelling the beach and two islands off shore. Douglas dive-bombers dropped their bombs on enemy installations at Cape Torokina. The sound of gunfire almost drowned out the ship's loudspeaker system as men formed at the various cargo nets preparatory to debarking.

H-hour was changed from 0700 to 0730. It grew light as troops went over the side, down the nets and into the bobbing, waiting Higgins boats. The boats cast off, their human cargo crouched low. Finally the boats assembled and headed ashore in waves. Landing with the Ninth Marines on Bougainville were the following additional units:

1st Battalion, Twelfth Marine Regiment

Detachment H&S Battery, Twelfth Marine Regiment

1st Battalion, Nineteenth Marine Regiment (less Companies B and C)

Companies D and C, Nineteenth Marine Regiment

Company A, Third Motor Transport Battalion

Companies A and E, Third Medical Battalion

Beaches Red 1, 2, 3, and Green 1, 2, were crossed without opposition and a line set up which furnished protection for the shore parties on Beaches Yellow 3 and 4.

First to see action was the 4th Platoon of Regimental Weapons Company, when they supported the 3d Raider Battalion of the Second Raider Regiment in securing Puruata Island.

The 3d Raider Battalion secured the island by 1800 November 2 with the loss of 6 killed in action and 18 wounded. The night of November 1 the Japs had tried without success to infiltrate the Raiders' lines. The next day they swept around the island and at 1610 sent the following message:

3d Raiders have combed the island for Japs. Much clothing, eating utensils, packs, blankets found. One bivouac of 20 and one of 50 also raided. Total Japs killed: 29. Others must have swam from island. Establishing beach defense.

The first air attack came at 0826 November 1 when the beaches were strafed by three Zeros. One officer was killed and three enlisted men wounded on the beach and two sailors were killed and one wounded in the landing boats.

Unloading went slowly because of the heavy surf. Seventy boats were pounded on the shore, turned sideways and swamped. The working parties carried all sorts of equipment, rations and ammunition to shore, often through surf that broke around the men's shoulders.

The troops inland encountered no Japanese resistance though the 2d Battalion advanced through a recently abandoned Japanese patrol post consisting of several huts and a large native garden. They were in swampy, heavy jungle terrain. A patrol started for the Laruna-River and later reported no contact. At nightfall the partially unloaded transports departed to return next day. Paradoxically, there were no air raids by Japanese planes that night.

The Third Marine Combat Team had landed on the left flank of the Ninth and fought its way past Japanese pillboxes on Cape Torokina. By dusk the Japs had evacuated the Cape.

At daylight, November 2, the 1st Battalion drew in its flanks and from 0830 to 1530 moved via amphibious tractors to a bivouac area near Cape Torokina preparatory to relieving the 1st Battalion, Third Marine Regiment on the next day. The ships returned and were unloaded. Supplies for the Regiment were moved to beach Yellow 1 as the Ninth Marines prepared to relieve the Third Marine Regiment.

During the night of November 2-3 the 3d Raider Battalion received sniper and machine gun fire from Torokina Island. Next day two platoons of the Raiders were landed on the island after a fifteen-minute shelling by the 1st Battalion, Twelfth Marine Regiment, and the island was secured without casualties.

The regimental command post moved to the edge of a swamp at the start of the Piva Trail, two hundred yards in from the beach. Japanese papers, clothing, food and medical supplies were still in the shelled buildings which were later torn down. Members of Headquarters and Service Company added

Japanese soy crackers, canned beef in soy sauce and canned smoked salmon to their diet, finding them extremely palatable. Seabees (Naval Construction Battalions), began to repair the Torokina airstrip.

During the day the 2d Battalion moved into position at the rear of the Raiders on the Piva trail. The 3d Battalion remained on Beach Yellow 1 on the right of the beachhead and came under the operational control of the Third Marine Regiment. At nightfall the 2d Battalion had tied in with the 1st Battalion which had extended the beachhead fifteen hundred yards east of Cape Torokina and sent patrols to the Piva River.

Next day, November 4, all battalions continued patrolling. Enemy snipers fired at the 2d Battalion lines but hit no one. The Raiders established a roadblock on the Piva Trail. One Japanese was killed by the Torokina River patrol from the 1st Battalion.

The Raiders' roadblock on the Piva Trail was hit several times on November 5 and 6. Japanese planes also continued their nightly bombing of the beach, and several bombs whistled close to the Ninth Marines' area but no casualties resulted.

Company K, Ninth Marines, and a platoon from regimental Weapons Company were the first members of the Regiment to meet and defeat the Japanese in a long fire fight or battle.

In the early dawn of November 7 the Japanese landed on the left flank beaches. Members of regimental Weapons who saw them failed to fire their 37 mm. antitank guns because the landing Nips were believed to be friendly troops. At 0615 a two man patrol from regimental Weapons advanced about 150 yards and met an officer who identified the barges as Japanese. Half an hour later the left flank gun opened up with canister and high explosive on the enemy coming along the trail, wiping out the advance party.

That same day the Japanese attacked the roadblock held by the Raiders with rifle fire and four machine guns. Two Marines were wounded and the Japs retired leaving eight dead. Mortar fire from the 2d Battalion, Ninth Regiment, supported the Raiders.

Supply to both the 2d Battalion and the Raiders was extremely difficult because the rains and traffic had turned dirt trails into quagmires. For at least two weeks afterward, or until a trail was hacked out along the present route of Marine Drive, only tractors and amphibious tractors could negotiate the trail; other vehicles became stuck fast. The tractors hauled ammunition and rations forward and evacuated the wounded to the beach; without them the operation would not have been a success.

On November 8 the Raiders passed through the roadblock and attacked to the north, while the 4th Platoon of regimental Weapons and two tanks reinforced the roadblock. At night, being unable to advance, the Raiders withdrew behind the roadblock. Orders were received from Major General Allen H. Turnage, commanding general, 3d Marine Division, to clear the Japanese from the roadblock, commencing at daylight November 9.

With Colonel Craig, commanding officer of the Ninth Marines, coordinating the attack on the Japanese positions forward of the roadblock on November 9, the 3d Raider Battalion attacked with two companies abreast astride the Piva trail following a fifteen minute artillery preparation by the 1st Battalion, Twelfth Marine Regiment. The 2d Battalion, Ninth Marines, followed in support with one section of tanks and one halftrack from regimental Weapons in reserve. The attack advanced slowly at not more than one hundred yards an hour. Flanking maneuvers were restricted by the swamp. Messages received at the regimental command post said that the Raider casualties were estimated at from forty to fifty with twelve killed. Approximately two hundred Japanese dead were claimed. A later message credited the artillery and mortars with killing many Japs, finally estimated at one hundred. Between 0930 and 1130 four Raiders were killed in action and nine wounded.

Next morning (November 10) a coordinated artillery, bombing and infantry attack drove the enemy back past Piva Village. Following fifteen minutes of artillery preparation from 0910 to 0925, and a delay of ten minutes to allow a Raider patrol to withdraw, a squadron of twelve planes bombed and strafed the fringes of Piva Village as well as the trail.

By 1100 the 2d Battalion had occupied Piva Village, organized a perimeter of defense and dug in. The 1st Battalion dug in astride the Numa-Numa trail 250 yards east of the Numa-Numa and Piva trails junction.

Supply dumps were immediately organized. Many dead Japs were dug up by the amphibs and reburied by the Marines. The 2d Raider Battalion was detached from the Ninth Marines and placed in Division reserve. Between 2130 and 0100 that night relays of Japanese bombers repeatedly attacked the beachhead.

The advance continued unopposed on the 11th and all units dug in. On November 13 the Ninth extended its lines generally along the west bank of the Piva. The 2d Battalion, Twenty-first Marine Regiment, passed through the Ninth Marines' lines at 0800 continuing up the Numa-Numa trail and at 0930 was fighting the Japanese just past a coconut grove two thousand yards forward of the Ninth's lines, where the Numa-Numa trail forked right. The Twenty-first Marine Regiment was halted at the bank of the Piva River and had 8 killed in action and 74 wounded, some of whom were treated in the Ninth Marines' aid station. Eventually the Japanese withdrew after suffering heavy casualties. During the battle some mortar fire fell to the left forward of Company A, Ninth Marines, without causing casualties. The supply situation became critical until the new Piva trail was completed.

The next few days were spent patrolling the front, looking for bridge sites across the Piva and learning the terrain for the next advance. On the 17th a patrol from Company C, Ninth Marines, contacted the enemy five hundred yards in front of their lines. Two men were killed in the action and two wounded before the patrol could effect a withdrawal.

The Japanese continued to bomb the beachhead but did not hit the Ninth Marines. Bombs fell into the 1st Battalion, Twelfth Marines' area, directly behind the Ninth, knocking out one gun, killing two men and wounding two. A lone enemy plane strafed the trail at 0800 November 16 and on the 17th one man in Company I was injured either by an enemy strafing or fragments from antiaircraft guns.

On November 20 the 3d Battalion, Third Marine Regiment, which had moved through the 2d Battalion, Twenty-first Marine Regiment, fought its way past pillboxes and dugouts on the east-west trail. A day later the Ninth Marines advanced to a general north-south line one thousand yards east of the Piva River and tied in with the Twenty-first Marine Regiment on the left flank.

A regimental Weapons listening post 250 yards in front of their lines on November 23 heard a strange voice on the phone say "Drum Operator," in a broken accent. A short time later the forward observer saw a Jap one hundred yards to his front disappearing into the woods going northeast. He was apparently unarmed but was carrying something, possibly a telephone. A patrol next day checking the wire found a splice twenty yards beyond the listening post. This was the only reported case of wire-tapping by the Japanese during the Ninth Marines' stay on Bougainville.

Lieutenant Colonel Sabater, commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, Ninth Marines, was stricken with appendicitis and was evacuated on November 22. He was succeeded as commanding officer of the battalion by Lieutenant Colonel Randall, executive officer of the 3d Battalion.

Thanksgiving Day was celebrated with a turkey dinner for all hands on November 24. Included on the menu were cranberry sauce, Irish potatoes, peas, fruit, coffee and candy. With their Thanksgiving dinner barely digested the 1st Battalion moved out toward the "Battle of Hand Grenade Hill," one of the Ninth Marines' major engagements.

After four days of fierce fighting, during which time "Hand Grenade Hill" was taken, the Ninth Marines completely relieved the Third Marine Regiment and continued their advance, reaching a new forward line on November 28. Intensive patrolling to the high ground forward was begun. Behind the lines the Seabees and Nineteenth Marine Regiment continued to build a road along the east-west trail at a slow pace.

A 3d Battalion patrol on December 2 worked to the top of Hill 1000 but made no contact with the enemy. They found a disassembled Japanese 75-mm. field piece 150 yards down the northeast slope of the hill and emplacements for about a company of Japanese. Patrolling continued by all units. Many dead Japanese were found and buried by the Marines. Another 75-mm. gun was found fifty yards away from the first one. It had a 61-inch-long barrel and was horse drawn.

The 3d Battalion moved up to a point near Hill 1000 on December 7 and two days later the 1st and 2d Battalions moved into their final positions on Hill 1000.

All units of the Ninth Marines dug in, placed overhead cover on their foxholes and laid down land mines and barbed wire. At the junction of the Marine and Army lines a shower was made by slightly diverting a waterfall. Some Marines improvised hammocks from camouflage nets in which to rest during the day.

Patrolling continued actively. A sniper was located behind the lines and was killed after he had wounded two men. A Company L patrol was pinned down on December 12 by Jap rifle and machine-gun fire and a platoon sent out to flank the enemy also was temporarily isolated. Eventually the Japs withdrew, leaving one dead Jap officer and considerable documents. The same day the right-flank platoon of Company C made contact with three Japs, killing one.

Christmas Day was celebrated on the front lines with Mass conducted by Lieutenant Leonard White, USN, Catholic chaplain, and with services conducted by Lieutenant Joseph A. Rabun, USN, Protestant chaplain.

Thousands of rounds of ammunition, wire entanglements and sandbags were packed to the top of Hill 1000 for use in consolidation of the position. For one area alone, 75,000 sandbags were put into place. More cover was added to the front lines and connecting trenches dug for the Army, which took over on December 27.

The Marines moved to an assembly area halfway between Hill 1000 and the beach to await embarkation the following day. Two cans of beer per man, the first they had tasted since leaving Guadalcanal, were issued. On the 28th of December the Ninth Marines boarded ship, leaving behind them a perimeter that was never expanded but that with its fighter and bomber strip held the Japanese at bay in the area for the duration of the war. They reached Guadalcanal on December 30.

Returned from Bougainville to Guadalcanal, the Ninth Marines, now a veteran unit with combat action under its belt, moved into its former camp at Tetera.

After the camp area was cleared, the Regiment immediately went into training, a new program beginning on January 10, 1944. In preparation for a proposed landing on Kavieng, the training schedule was a long, arduous one, terminating approximately on April 1.

The training for Kavieng was almost completely different from the jungle fighting which characterized the Bougainville campaign. Kavieng had a large town, so street fighting was stressed. Also much of the terrain would be flat and open, far different from the thick, verdant jungle of the Solomons. Platoon, company and battalion exercises were held, assault and reduction of pillboxes was practiced and landings were made by LVT's.

Then, when it was time for the ships to be loaded, the Kavieng campaign was cancelled.

Immediately afterwards, the Ninth commenced training for an assault landing on Guam. Battalion and regimental exercises, which carried out the contemplated scheme of maneuver, were held. Two regimental problems and two landing exercises were held in April and May.

The highlight of the training schedule for Guam was a full-scale Division landing exercise at Cape Esperance, Guadalcanal. The Division hit the friendly beach and moved inland just as they would on D-day on Guam's beach. Later, a logistical landing was made at Tetera Beach.

The dress rehearsal completed, the veteran Ninth Regiment again was ready for combat.

CHAPTER 3

THE BATTLE FOR GUAM

*They say it was a shocking sight,
After the field was won,
For many thousand bodies here
Lay rotting in the sun;
But things like that, you know, must be
After a famous victory.*

—ROBERT SOUTHEY.

It was still dark the morning of June 2, 1944, when early reveille was sounded for the last time on Guadalcanal for the Ninth Marines. The men arose, ate a light breakfast, donned their packs, and fell out in the company streets. Marching down the road to Tetera Beach, the infantrymen could look back and see the coconut grove where they had lived before their baptism under fire at Bougainville and where they had returned for rest and then additional training for the coming battle of Guam.

In the harbor were, among many other ships, the APA's President Hayes, Jackson and Adams, which were to carry the Ninth's landing teams; and AP President Monroe and AKA Titania, to which task units were assigned.

That morning, the Ninth went aboard. The next day, the troop transport convoy got under way.

The Ninth was reinforced for the landing attack at Guam, in the Marianas Islands. Reinforcements included:

1st Battalion, Nineteenth Marine Regiment (less Companies B and C)

Company D (Pioneers), Nineteenth Marine Regiment

With its reinforcements, the Regimental Combat Team was scheduled to land on the right flank sector of the 3d Marine Division on Beach Blue, between the Asan River and Asan Point on the northwestern coast of Guam.

On June 10, the transport convoy arrived at Kwajalein, in the Marshall Islands and on June 13 proceeded to Guam. En route to Kwajalein, the men were told the startling news that Allied forces had landed on the beaches of France and the long-awaited invasion of Hitler's European fortress was underway.

Because of an anticipated naval battle in conjunction with the Saipan invasion, the Guam campaign was delayed and on June 17 the convoy turned and proceeded again to the Marshalls, putting in at Eniwetok on June 20. Here the Regiment remained for twenty-seven days.

Working parties were put ashore on the various isles of the atoll and cleared underbrush for recreation areas. After the areas were completed, the men drilled and engaged in calisthenics daily.

Once again, the convoy left with its warship protection for Guam on July 17.

It was dark the morning of July 21 (D-day) when the troop-laden transports and escorting warships, comprising the task force, arrived on the station off the one-time U. S. naval base. The men stood on deck and watched the bright red and orange gun flashes from the warship decks, as the Navy softened up the island.

Just at daybreak, the troops debarked while naval gunfire continued to lay down a terrific barrage on the beach. Planes joined in the assault and strafed and bombed Japanese defense positions ashore. So overwhelming was American air power that not a Jap plane was in the air.

At 0828, the Ninth stormed ashore in a column of landing teams. The Landing Team 3 was in assault, supported by the Landing Team 2 with the Landing Team 1 being in reserve. The first troops of the Ninth landed with little opposition on the immediate beach. Pre-invasion shelling and bombing had leveled the beach area, knocking out nearly all Japanese defense emplacements. Not one of the many concrete buildings along the beach road was left standing.

But getting to the beach from the edge of the coral reef, 150 yards off shore, was a difficult and hazardous task. From emplacements on a ridge overlooking the beach, approximately 700 yards inland, the Japanese blasted landing craft in the bay with mortars and artillery. Amphibian tanks were employed to transfer troops from Higgins boats across the coral reef to the beach. These were special targets of the Japs' emplaced weapons, and heavy casualties were suffered by direct and near hits on these tanks. Supplies and ammunition were also unloaded under heavy fire.

However, once ashore, assault troops quickly pushed inland across rice paddies, three hundred yards from the beach. Snipers harassed the troops and occasionally machine guns stopped progress. The Japs were firing from high ground on the right flank and to the front, while a mortar barrage followed the troops as they advanced.

The initial mission of the Landing Team 3 was to seize the high ground to the front. When this was accomplished, they would be passed through by Landing Teams 1 and 2. At 1350 that afternoon, the objective was secured, and at 1415 Landing Teams 1 and 2 advanced to attack the second objective on the right flank.

In this area, the Ninth met stubborn resistance and was stopped four hundred yards short of its intermediate objective. By 1830, all units, after gaining contact with the Twenty-first Regimental Combat Team on the left flank, were dug in for the night. During the night, the Japanese kept the island lighted almost like day with flares, and made several small scale infiltration attempts.

The Regiment suffered 231 casualties on D-day. Resistance encountered had consisted mainly of small groups of Japs in caves on Asan Point and the ridge overlooking the beach, plus sporadic artillery and mortar barrages. In their cavern fortresses, the Japs fought to the last man with snipers being extremely active.

Orders to continue the attack the next morning—July 22—at 0700 were issued by Major General Turnage, commanding general of the 3d Marine Division. The Ninth's objectives for the day were D-2, D-3 and Cabras Island.

By 1000, Landing Teams 1 and 2, attacking abreast, had secured objective D-2, meeting only light opposition. In groups of ten to twenty, the Japanese were entrenched in foxholes and caves along high ground near the coast. Reserve companies mopped up all Japs by-passed by the assault troops.

Landing Team 3 was assigned to take Cabras Island. Preceded by naval gunfire, artillery, air support and armored amphibians, the assault waves landed on the island at 1425 in amphibian tractors, and by 1800 patrols had reached the western tip of the island. In the meantime, Landing Teams 1 and 2 had advanced just short of objective D-3.

For the first time since December 1941, the American flag flew over Piti Navy Yard.

The Japanese withdrew the bulk of their troops from the Ninth Marines' zone of action, and left behind only small groups in caves and on high ground. These tenacious enemy troops fought a tough delaying action.

On the morning of July 23, Landing Team 2 relieved the Twenty-first Regimental Combat Team's similar unit as Division reserve. The Landing Team 3, relieved of the defense of Cabras Island by the 14th Defense Battalion, took Landing Team 2's position at 1230. Action was light during the third day of the operation. Patrols, sent into enemy territory in front of Landing Teams 1 and 3, reported only negative information.

Once again action was confined to intensive patrolling on July 24. The Ninth Combat Team merely maintained its position on the Division beachhead and awaited orders to continue the attack. However, the regimental Scout Platoon advanced to a point within 1,500 yards of the 1st Provisional Brigade beachhead before being stopped by heavy mortar fire.

A general attack by the Third, Ninth and Twenty-first Combat Teams was carried out on July 25. The climax of the all-day attack was reached at 1550 when a Ninth Combat Team patrol reported contacting the Twenty-second Marine Regiment of the 1st Provisional Brigade. The day's advance started at 0700, with Landing Teams 1 and 3 attacking abreast. By 0845, objective D-3 had been seized. At 0915, the attack was continued against high ground north of the Aguada River, and at 1500, after encountering only sporadic resistance throughout the day, Landing Teams 1 and 3 were on the high ground digging in for the night.

The Battle of Fonte Ridge actually began on July 25, when Landing Team 2 was attached to the Third Marine Regimental Combat Team and moved into position at 0600 to pass through the Landing Team 1 of the Third Combat Team. For the attack, a terrific artillery, naval gunfire, mortar and machine-gun preparation was commenced at 1520.

After four days of protracted fighting the Battle of Fonte Ridge was ended successfully, by 1130, on July 29. Fleeing Jap remnants were picked off by mortars and small arms as they scurried down the forward slopes of Fonte.

Initial relief arrangements were begun at 1300 with the Third Combat Team participating and by 1800 complete relief was effected. The battalion detached from the Third Combat Team entrenched itself and established a perimeter in Division reserve in the Asan Forks area.

During the battle, 907 Japs were killed. Landing Team 2 lost 62 men killed in action and 180 were wounded.

It appeared that the Japanese had recognized Fonte Hill as the strategic high ground along the entire D-3 line and the final beachhead line, and knowing its importance, held it in force with about one battalion. Therefore, when it was seized, the enemy reacted strongly and pressed eleven separate counter-attacks, day and night, preceded by mortar, grenade and field piece barrages. Many Jap officers, including a lieutenant colonel, were killed, and numerous dumps, hospitals, and command posts were captured.

As usual, the Japs organized the high ground, using mortars and automatic weapons. On the reverse slope they used caves for protection against artillery. However, by using naval gunfire on the reverse slope, and close overhead machine-gun fire, Marines reached the top of the hill before the enemy could get back to their positions. Thus, most of the battle was fierce hand-to-hand fighting to retain the top of the hill and to push on to the military crest of the reverse slope. Additional pressure was forced upon the enemy by means of an advance which, for three days, constituted a salient projected forward some five hundred yards in front of the rest of the lines.

Two reserve companies had seventy-five per cent casualties and one reserve company had fifty per cent casualties. The battalion as a whole suffered forty per cent casualties during this terrific battle.

That evening at 1700, the 3d Battalion, 307th Infantry,

U. S. Army, passed through the Ninth Marine lines from the Brigade sector.

On July 27 an Army battalion was attached to the Ninth Regimental Combat Team, relieving Landing Team 3 which moved to an assembly area in the rear of its lines and prepared to relieve Landing Team 3, Twenty-first Marines. One company was attached to the Twenty-first Marines' Landing Team, and the remainder of the battalion went into Division reserve. Company K met action that day when they cleared Japs out of caves in the rear of the Twenty-first Combat Team's right flank. The company lost 6 men killed and 14 wounded. An undetermined number of Japanese were killed.

The Ninth Regimental Combat Team's zone of action was enlarged on July 28, and it was ordered to attack objective D-4 and seize the remainder of the Division's final beachhead line. At 0800, Landing Team 3, Ninth Regiment, attacked intermediate objective O-1, with the Twenty-first Marines' landing team protecting the left flank. The objective was taken in thirty-five minutes, and an hour later, another general attack was ordered to take objective D-4. Landing Team 1, Ninth Marines, and Landing Team 3, 307th Infantry, were to push ahead and meet the forward elements of the Army 77th Division from the Brigade sector before darkness. In order to consolidate the final beachhead line, Landing Team 3, Ninth Marines, was to capture Mount Chachao and the remainder of the ridge line. An enemy infantry company, entrenched atop Mount Chachao and the ridge leading to it, was engaged in battle and annihilated.

Then, the Ninth Marines' landing team sent a patrol forward to meet the 77th Division. Contact was established and Company B, of Landing Team 1, Ninth Marines, was ordered to report to Landing Team 3 to fill a gap there between the Ninth Marines and the 77th Division. By 1745, the Marine and Army landing teams had contacted forward elements of the Army Division, and by 1800 the final beachhead line was firmly established and all units were digging in for the night. Both sporadic and organized resistance had been faced during the day's fighting; however, only a minimum of casualties was suffered.

Landing Team 1 went into regimental reserve on July 29, while on that same morning, Landing Team 3, of the Army, was detached from the Ninth Combat Team. The Ninth's movement to Hill 532 was completed by 1545; during the day, Landing Teams 1 and 3 sent out patrols, and a Company B patrol brought in thirty natives. Fighting all night, Landing Team 3 killed many trapped Japs trying to escape from the vicinity of the final beachhead line.

Only normal patrolling activities were carried out by the Regiment on July 30, while awaiting further orders from Division.

During the first ten days of the operation, the Regiment had suffered 628 casualties.

The 3d Marine Division's attack was resumed on July 31. From its final beachhead line position, the Division advanced toward the northern sector of the island and succeeded in pushing the Japs to the sea.

The big push started at 0630, with Landing Teams 1 and 3 of the Ninth Regimental Combat Team attacking abreast. Both landing teams reached their initial objective at 0955, and ten minutes later continued the attack to the next objective. Only small groups of the enemy were encountered during the morning's advance, but at 1415 Landing Team 1 ran into stiffer opposition, knocking out two Jap tanks, and having one man killed in action and three wounded. Units of the Ninth Combat Team were on objective D-1 by 1510. A patrol made contact with the Twenty-first Combat Team three hundred yards beyond the left flank, and this gap was filled by Company C. On the right flank, Landing Team 3 tied in with the Army's 77th Division. At 1800, all units were in contact and digging in for the night. During the day's advance over rugged terrain and dense jungle, only sporadic resistance had been met.

The attack was continued from objective D-1 to D-2A by Landing Teams 1 and 3 on August 1. During the morning, scattered opposition from stragglers and small units was encountered, and at 1200 Landing Team 1 was on the objective. At 1300, they tied in with Company K on the right flank. Also at noon on that day, Landing Team 2 reverted to the Ninth Regimental Combat Team from Division reserve. Landing Teams 1 and 3 continued the attack from D-2A to D-2 at 1450 and reached their objective at 1640. Landing Team 2 bivouacked in Regimental reserve. Highlight of the day was the seizure of Tiyan air-strip by Landing Team 1.

The attack was resumed at 0630 on August 2. An hour later, Landing Teams 1 and 3 reached the objective at D-3A, continued the attack to D-3E, which was occupied by 1000. Landing Team 2 sent out a patrol through the Division's right boundary to reconnoiter for units of the 77th Division. The Ninth Regimental Combat Team pushed forward again at 1350, advancing its left flank line. Landing Team 3 advanced its left flank to tie in with Landing Team 1, and established its right flank securely.

Thus the stage was set for the Battle of Finegayan.

The Marine attacking force was comprised of the 1st Battalion, Ninth Marines; tanks of Company B, 3d Tank Battalion; and the 1st Platoon, Ninth Marines Regimental Weapons Company.

The Battle of Finegayan commenced at 0910 on August 3, when Company B encountered an estimated platoon of Japs 1000 yards northeast of Road Junction 55. Company B immediately attacked the enemy, employing two tanks supported by fire of company weapons. The Japanese had machine guns entrenched along the road in the vicinity of Road Junction 177 and riflemen had taken cover in ravines and ditches, in palm groves, and in heavy brush. The Jap position was overrun, and it was learned that the enemy force was a rifle company and not a platoon. One hundred and five enemy dead were counted in the area.

At 1600 the same day, a motorized reconnaissance force comprised of one company of Twenty-first and one company of tanks passed through the Landing Team 1's position. Four hundred yards beyond Road Junction 177, they encountered heavy enemy fire. After a two-hour fight, they withdrew, but they had neutralized a strong roadblock.

That night and during the early morning hours of August 4, minor resistance was encountered along the Landing Team 1's front. About 2130, two enemy tanks broke through the Marines' left flank at Road Junction 177 and ran over the trail of a 37mm. antitank gun. The fire of the 37mm. was ineffective, and the Jap tanks, undamaged, turned into the rear of the Third Combat Team's lines. However, no enemy tank fire was directed into the Landing Team 1's lines, and later in the night the tanks withdrew through the Third Regimental Combat Team's area.

On the morning of August 4, Landing Team 1 resumed the attack at 0700. Initially, the attack proceeded with little opposition. But at 1045, Companies A and C, moving across the main road, drew heavy fire from antitank weapons, 75mm. guns, machine guns and rifles. The terrain was covered with dense brush ten to twenty feet high, and enemy positions were extremely difficult to locate. All enemy heavy weapons were firing generally parallel to the ground, and appeared to be in considerable depth. Many men said they could hear artillery shells whiz sharply overhead when they were lying in foxholes, or on the flat ground.

By 1100, Company C had crossed the road, and, by 1315, Company B was placed on the left flank to close the gap between Landing Team 1 and the Third Combat Team. Company B was relieved by the 1st Battalion, of the Twenty-first Combat Team, at 1700.

Scene of the heaviest fighting was the area occupied by Company A. Before darkness set in, the company was reinforced by two Company C platoons and one machine-gun platoon. The remainder of the 1st Battalion withdrew to Road Junction 177 to be in Regimental reserve.

The night passed quietly, with only a few enemy stragglers attempting to infiltrate the Marines' lines.

Once again on the morning of August 5, the attack was begun at 0700. Company A, which was attached initially to the Landing Team 3, led the attack. By 0830, the company reverted to Landing Team 1 control and the attack continued. The object was to seize the road and eliminate the roadblock. Heavy opposition was encountered and bloody fighting ensued in the dense brush.

At 0830, Company B was placed on the left flank, and each company was supported by one platoon of tanks. At 1200, Company C relieved Company A on the right flank.

The nature of the fighting that took place here in the thick, verdant jungle can best be imagined by this one of many similar incidents: A camouflaged Jap medium tank was fifteen yards from one of our tanks before it was discovered and destroyed. Our tanks were subjected to heavy antitank fire, but the brush prevented enemy observation except on the road.

The flanking movement on the Jap position continued, and, at 1800, Companies B and C were across the road. One remaining Jap 75mm. gun was destroyed at 1900 by a half-track, which had been attached late in the afternoon. Company A was placed on the right flank to close the gap between Landing Team 2, and Company K was attached on the left flank to close the gap between the Twenty-first and Ninth Regimental Combat Teams.

The following morning—August 6—the attack was again continued. One antitank gun was captured beyond the road, and the roadblock itself was effectively destroyed.

During the battle, Landing Team 1 had 10 men killed in action and 42 men wounded. The enemy had 241 men killed. Jap equipment captured included one medium tank, two 105s, six 75mm. guns, two 47mm. antitank guns, two caliber .30 heavy machine guns (Hotchkiss type), two Lewis machine guns and four Nambu type machine guns.

Landing Team 1 was flanked during the battle by units of the Twenty-first and Third Regimental Combat Teams on the left, and Landing Teams 2 or 3, Ninth Regimental Combat Team, on the right.

The end of the Guam campaign was now in sight. All remaining Japs, except for small, disorganized groups that had been by-passed, were trapped in the northern end of the island.

New tactics were employed for the final advance, which began on August 7. The Regiment advanced in a column of landing teams on trails through the jungle. The area not actually covered in force was patrolled. Identical tactics were employed the next day, with the column lined up in the following order: Landing Teams 3, 2 and 1. Japanese resistance was met throughout the day by the leading landing team.

On August 9, Landing Team 2 led the Regimental column, followed by Landing Teams 1 and 3. At 0935, Landing Team 2 was ordered to halt its advance and to send patrols along a fence line leading to Savana Grande. In the meantime, a heavy artillery barrage was placed on a reported Japanese concentration; after the barrage, the commanding officer of the Ninth Regimental Combat Team ordered Landing Teams 1 and 2 to attack abreast in a generally northeasterly direction. The attack started at 1520, and advance elements of both landing teams reached the cliffs on the north coast of Guam by 1800.

The Marines had pushed all the way to the ocean. That evening, a patrol, sent to Savana Grande and Piti Point, reported only negative information.

All organized resistance had now been wiped out; the campaign was ended. Next came the return movement.

Patrols covered the entire Regimental zone of action on August 10. Again, results were negative.

On August 11, the Ninth Regimental Combat Team moved out to bivouac positions. En route, patrols killed some Japanese stragglers. The next day, the reinforced regimental unit, minus Landing Team 1, arrived at the bivouac area in the vicinity of Finegayan. Patrols combed the zone of action and once again killed only a few Jap stragglers. Landing Team 1 remained in the previous bivouac area and patrolled the northern portion of the Ninth Regimental Combat Team's zone of action.

During August 13, 14, and 15, patrols were sent out to kill or capture all enemy personnel in the area.

The Striking Ninth had completed its second campaign in the war against Japan. Bougainville and Guam now were bases from which to carry on that war.

CHAPTER 4

ACTIVITY ON GUAM PRIOR TO THE IWO CAMPAIGN

*On this green bank, by this soft stream,
We set today a votive stone;
That memory may their deeds redeem,
When like our sires, our sons are gone.*
—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

The Guam campaign officially ended, the Ninth Regiment set up a picturesque camp on the beaches just south of Ylig Bay in a coconut grove. Tents were neatly spaced in orderly rows; a theater, including a stage for "in the flesh" variety shows, was built on the water's edge, and a rifle range, later used by the entire Division, was established. Concrete decks were laid in the messhalls and a large post exchange was built. This was probably the best camp on the island and certainly was the best the Ninth Marines had had in its short but illustrious history.

In the meantime, roadblocks were maintained on the camp's flanks because Jap stragglers still were in the vicinity.

Even after a new training program started, men of the regiment continued to improve the camp, building a beautiful, large chapel out of palm fronds with the assistance of natives, and clearing the jungle for a huge athletic field which included a baseball diamond and basketball court.

The men worked on the camp during the entire month of September and the first training program commenced on October 16, 1944.

During the period immediately following the Guam campaign, Colonel Craig, the regimental commander who had brought the Ninth through its baptism of fire at Bougainville and led its veterans on Guam, was transferred to the V Amphibious Corps. He was succeeded by Colonel Howard N. Kenyon (the regimental commander at the time this history of the Regiment was prepared.)

A training program to indoctrinate replacements and refresh veterans was begun on October 16. The training was designed to bring the men up to the peak of combat efficiency and to reorganize and replace leaders lost during the battle for Guam. The program was based on a 30-hour week—six hours on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday; three hours on Wednesday and Saturday mornings. Two hours were allotted each week for the various unit commanders of the Regiment to stress such training as they deemed necessary.

Each Saturday morning was devoted to inspections, disciplinary drills, maintenance of equipment and material, and ceremonies. Men were awarded medals won for the Guam campaign at Regimental, battalion and individual ceremonies. Officers and men awarded the Navy Cross and Legion of Merit were presented their medals by Major General Graves B. Erskine, 3d Division commanding general, at a special ceremony.

The training program had a wide scope. Each man was coached to be an expert in the use, care and functioning of the weapon with which he was primarily armed, and all personnel were given practical courses in the use of all organic weapons of the Regiment. Each individual was thoroughly trained in his assigned duties and those of all other men of his unit. Subjects covered included scouting, patrolling, use of cover and concealment in all types of terrain, hasty building of fortifications, camouflage, construction of weapons emplacements, use of demolitions for the reduction of enemy pillboxes and caves, removal and neutralization of mines and booby traps, the technique of rifle fire, basic tactics of squad, platoon and company, day and night security measures, field sanitation and first aid, a working knowledge of enemy infantry weapons, chemical defense and proficiency in map reading.

Nearly sixty per cent of the men engaged in the training program were veterans of one or two operations.

Special schools for officers and noncommissioned officers were held at least once weekly, stressing preparation and delivery of the training program, duties and responsibilities of leaders, issuing of clear, concise, positive, oral and written orders, as well as a review of combat lessons learned through recent campaigns. A flamethrower school was conducted and a Regimental officers' school was held from time to time on subjects of interest to the entire command.

On afternoons and holidays, an athletic program was put into effect. A Regimental baseball league was formed, with the champions later entering a Division tournament. Each company had a basketball team and a volleyball aggregation; horseshoe pitching was also one of the favorite sports.

It was learned that Jap stragglers were beginning to form into bands on the northern end of Guam, so the 3d Division planned a sweep of the island to seek out and destroy or capture all of the enemy remaining on the island. The sweep began on October 24, 1944, at 0600 with the three infantry regiments abreast. The Ninth Marines were in the center of the line.

On D-minus-1-day, the Ninth moved to the assembly area southwest of the line of departure. The regiment's strength was composed of the 1st and 3d Battalions and the 1st Platoon, Company A, 3d Engineer Battalion. The sweep was confined between the Agana-Pago Bay Road and the line of departure.

At 0835 on October 24, the Regiment jumped off on the sweep. Less than an hour later, Company L killed two Japs when they refused to surrender. The enemy were armed with a bayonet and an American hand grenade. Before noon, Company B killed a Jap armed with a grenade and a second Jap escaped. Two more Japs were killed by Company A during the first day of the sweep.

The next day, the Regiment advanced across open terrain and camp areas for one thousand yards before reaching heavy underbrush. Three Japs were killed, one each by Companies A, B, and I. One of the enemy was armed with a Jap rifle and all three Japs were in good physical condition. Company A also killed a Jap who was attempting to pass through the Marines' lines under cover of darkness.

On the morning of October 26, the third day of the sweep, a Company C man was wounded slightly by a Jap who fled after firing. Movement was becoming increasingly difficult because of dense jungle and it was almost impossible to maintain contact between companies advancing in a skirmish line. Five Japs were sighted moving southeast and a 20-man patrol was sent in pursuit. In the early afternoon, Company I killed a Jap and also seized three Jap rifles. Later, Company I flushed three more Japs, but they escaped through the dense brush. Action continued throughout the day; Company B killed a Jap, the Regimental Scout Platoon killed a Jap armed with U. S. grenades, and Company C accounted for two armed Japs, a Marine being wounded by Jap grenade fragments during the encounter and a third enemy soldier escaping.

That night, two propaganda trucks, operating along the Dededo-Ritidian Point Road and the Finegayan-Yigo Road, broadcasted music interspersed with advice in Japanese to any enemy in the area to surrender during the daylight hours.

Three of the enemy were killed on October 27, as the Regiment continued the sweep. Company A killed two of the Japs, one of them being dressed in Marine camouflaged clothing, while a third escaped. Company C killed the third Jap. Company I was fired on by a Jap, who then dropped his rifle and ran.

On the morning of October 28, the Regiment received a report that a native saw from five to ten Japs crossing a road at 0300. The native said the Japs were unarmed but that one of them dropped a gas mask containing a grenade. A butchered cow, its legs and tongue missing, was found in the vicinity. At 0830, a Jap was killed and another was wounded, but he escaped. Pressing through the thick jungle, Company I killed two more Japs that morning, including an officer. Both of the enemy were armed.

Nearing the end of the island, measures were taken to prevent Japs from infiltrating into the cliff area and hiding in caves. Ambushes were set up on trails leading to the cliffs.

Before the operations on the 28th were completed, Company I killed two unarmed Japs, Company L killed its third enemy of the day, Company L killed one and wounded one who escaped, and Company K accounted for one enemy.

On October 29, the sweep was continued through almost impenetrable jungle. During the morning a Jap shelter was located with a fire still burning. Company L wounded a Jap who later committed hara kiri, and Company I killed another. It was believed that these Japs had inhabited the shelter which Company L had found. The first Jap captured during the sweep was taken by Company K that morning. In the encounter, a second Jap was killed. Regimental Weapons ran into more than a dozen well armed enemy, killing one of them. Several more Japs were killed during the day by various companies and the propaganda trucks were used for the third successive night.

Ten of the enemy were killed on October 30, all by Company A; the Japs were well clothed, had ample food supplies, including American "chow," and even had a bottle of mosquito lotion.

The sweep was ended on October 31. Early in the morning, Company A wounded a Jap armed with a rifle, and Company K killed one of the enemy. Six Japs were killed by noon, as the Regiment swept down the cliff. An LCI gunboat cruised in waters near the beach to stop any Japs attempting to escape by sea. A seventh Jap was killed in the afternoon and two were captured.

The sweep was ended and the Ninth Regiment returned to its Ylig Bay camp.

After a two-day rest, the Regiment embarked on a new training schedule on November 3. The six-week program was divided into two phases—organizational and combined training.

The principal missions of the program were to indoctrinate replacements, instill aggressiveness and initiative on the part of unit leaders, to reach the peak of combat efficiency and to complete training of all units in preparation for a landing and operations inland against the Japanese.

The field portion of the training program included fifty per cent field firing.

The aim of the combined training phase was to insure close coordination between infantry and tank teams; infantry, tank and artillery teams; infantry and engineer teams; air and ground teams and infantry and naval gunfire teams.

Each battalion conducted a combined firing exercise, using all supporting weapons of the battalion and attached units. A regimental field exercise was conducted, also.

A total of thirty-eight hours a week was devoted to training, including four hours for night exercises. Schools were held in use of mortars, machine guns and rocket launchers, while officers' and noncommissioned officers' schools were continued, also.

During the 1st of December, the Regiment conducted exercises with the Twelfth Regiment, an artillery unit of the 3d Marine Division. The Ninth advanced in the wake of an artillery barrage, while tanks were used to demonstrate the effectiveness of artillery when employed properly in close support of tanks.

One of the highlights of the period between the Guam and Iwo Jima campaigns was the Division rifle match. The Ninth's riflemen copped the Division championship by piling up 851 points, two more than the Third Regiment which took second-place honors.

The Ninth also did well in the Division boxing championship, taking two titles. A Texan from Fort Worth, Private First Class "Buster" Burrell, and a Louisianian from LSU, Private First Class "Frenchy" LaSalle, won the light-heavyweight and lightweight honors, respectively.

Before the final training schedule began for the forthcoming Iwo Jima campaign, the Ninth Regiment observed its second Christmas overseas. Christmas Eve Mass at the Regimental chapel was attended at midnight by an overflowing crowd, and on Christmas Day a turkey dinner with all the trimmings was served. The Yuletide was as happy as it could possibly be away from home. A beer ration was issued to the men and several tents had Guamanian "iron" trees (which look a good deal like American cedars), decorated with ration cans and ribbons from Stateside packages.

In January, old officers of the Regiment held a party on the recreation ground, celebrating their second overseas anniversary. Officers stationed on Guam, but no longer attached to the Ninth, were also in attendance.

During January, the Regiment buckled down to intensive training, putting the men in tip-top shape. Conditioning hikes were made, featured by a 19-mile, two-day forced march across the rugged, hilly island.

One of the highlights of the training program was an amphibious landing exercise staged by the 1st Battalion for Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who had moved his headquarters from Pearl Harbor to Guam.

Night problems were held with the officers and men reviewing every phase of combat training. Finally, a week before they embarked for Iwo Jima, the men of the Ninth struck their tents and moved into shelter halves.

The Ninth Regiment was confident that it was prepared for the coming battle. The intensive training, a feature of which had been the reduction by small units of simulated Jap pillboxes and other defensive installations such as would be found on Iwo Jima, had accomplished its purpose.

CHAPTER 5

THE CORPS' BLOODIEST BATTLE

*They were true glory's stainless victories,
Won by the unambitious heart and hand
Of a proud, brotherly, and civic band,
All unbought champions in no princely cause
Of vice-entailed corruption; theirs no land
Doomed to betray the blasphemy of laws
Making Emperors' rights divine, by some draconic clause.*

—LORD BYRON.

With loading plans completed and preliminary preparations made, ship-loading commenced on February 8, 1945. Ship assignments and units were as follows: the 1st Battalion aboard the USS Fayette, the 2d Battalion aboard the USS Knox and the 3d Battalion aboard the USS Leedstown. Additional detachments of reinforcing units and cargo were loaded on the USS Fremont, USS Harry Lee, USS Alamack and the USS Warrick.

The Ninth Regimental Combat Team was composed of the Ninth Regiment, reinforced by the following units:

- Company A, Third Engineer Battalion
- Company A, Third Pioneer Battalion
- Company A, Third Motor Transport Battalion
- Company B, Third Medical Battalion
- Detachment, Third Joint Assault Signal Company
- Detachments, 28th and 34th Replacements Drafts

Cargo-loading and embarkation of troops was completed by 2000, February 10. The Ninth Combat Team convoy got under way from Guam to Iwo Jima on the morning of February 17, arriving in the reserve area on February 19, D-day.

The Ninth's mission as a regiment of the expeditionary force reserve was to land, on order, on any of the designated landing beaches, and plans were formulated accordingly.

On D-plus-5, orders for landing on Iwo Jima were received aboard the USS Knox at 0130 and debarkation of troops commenced at 0830 that morning.

THE POWER AND THE PRICE: The power of the invasion armada in the background stands out in ironic contrast with the scene on the Iwo beachhead. Marines of the 3d Division, covered with their ponchos, lie on the beach they gave their lives to win. The battle still rages a few thousand yards away. (Official Marine Corps photo by Corporal R. Impenachio.)

Twenty-four LCMs were employed to land each battalion and assault vehicles. First ashore was the 2d Battalion, followed by the 1st and 3d Battalions, respectively.

Due to the fact that the Regiment landed on previously established beaches, there was no tactical disposition of units. LCMs had to be used because heavy surf conditions made it impossible to use smaller craft. The landing was made on a beach area which was roughly the boundary between Beaches Red 2 and Yellow 1, later redesignated as Black Beach. From two to three LCMs landed at a time.

On the following day, February 25, the Ninth Combat Team was committed to action, passing through the lines of the Twenty-first Marine Regiment. Following a heavy artillery barrage, the 1st and 2d Battalions attacked abreast at 0930, the 1st Battalion being on the right. Heavy fire from along the entire front met every advance the Ninth made.

The Ninth Regiment now was participating in the bloodiest, fiercest fight in the Marine Corps' 168-year history, battling on a volcanic island doorstep to Japan, only 750 miles from Tokyo, headquarters of the Jap empire.

Mount Suribachi, a still active 560-foot volcano at the Ninth Marines' back, already had been taken by the 5th Marine Division. To the front lay a myriad of fortresses the like of which had never before been encountered in any battle anywhere.

As a unit of the 3d Marine Division, the Ninth Regiment was to make glorious history on the volcanic ash of this barren, ugly but important island. They were to remain in action for a total of eighteen of the twenty days that the 3d Division was on the front lines. They were to participate in the valiant capture of Motoyama Airfield No. 2 and the subsequent continuous attack to the north and east end of the island until the cessation of organized resistance. And finally, they were to engage in tedious mopping-up operations, wiping out Japanese remnants of a once powerful force still holding out in caves.

The first few minutes of the morning of February 25, when the Ninth Regiment moved up to the lines on the southern edge of Motoyama Airfield No. 2, provided ample evidence of things to come. The resistance, such as was to prevail throughout the several weeks of action, was of the fiercest type.

The Ninth faced a heavy curtain of small-arms fire from exceptionally well concealed positions—so well concealed, in fact, that the men were unable to locate the source of the fire until within twenty-five yards of the emplacements. Areas in defilade to one enemy automatic weapon were covered by others and they presented a difficult problem to the attacking Marines. In addition, enemy mortar, artillery and rocket fire was well zeroed in on all approaches to his positions. Many times the fire was so intense on advancing troops that it caused severe casualties and stopped any movement at its inception.

For three days, the Ninth fought on and around bomb-dimpled Motoyama Airfield No. 2, a battlefield of wild carnage. Here, Colonel Howard N. Kenyon's Striking Ninth helped to break one of the Japs' strongest defenses on the island. In the violent fight, the Regiment suffered heavy casualties, but despite bitter Japanese resistance the 2d Battalion smashed forward as much as one thousand yards in some sectors and the 1st Battalion pushed the enemy back approximately two hundred yards, fighting furiously for every inch of ground gained. The 3d Battalion, which participated in some of the bloodiest fighting of the campaign, was held in reserve.

In direct support of the Ninth in the history-making battle were waves of planes which were in the air all the daylight hours, weather permitting. The planes blasted the Japs with rockets, bombs and machine-gun fire, but failed to dislodge the enemy from their deeply entrenched positions. It required the riflemen, machine-gunners and mortarmen to capture the Jap-held territory.

Tanks assisted the land attack, hitting heavily fortified enemy pillboxes. When the tanks crossed the flat airfield runways, they drew heavy antitank, artillery and mortar barrages. Some of the tanks suffered direct hits, bursting into flame and throwing up dense, black smoke. Infantrymen near the tanks were dealt a merciless pounding.

Vehicles crossing the airfield were like wooden ducks at a shooting gallery. Ambulance jeeps, evacuating wounded and dead, and Weasels (amphibious supply vehicles which worked wonders in the volcanic ash) darted across the airfield runways and dodged bomb craters while shells literally chased them. A Weasel, speeding across No Man's Land, suffered a direct hit, and men riding in the trailer leaped out with their clothing afire. Marines nearby rushed to the flaming men's aid and threw sand on them, extinguishing the flames.

Jap snipers and machine-gunners shot sheets of steel at infantrymen as they advanced from shell hole to shell hole. When a man so much as exposed a hand, he drew fire.

Enemy artillery maintained a sporadic barrage on the supply area immediately back of the front lines. While shells exploded nearby, men worked steadily to keep a constant flow of supplies going to the infantrymen in the front lines.

Front-line first-aid stations were also under Jap fire. Doctors administered to patients even while volcanic ash, thrown into the air by exploding shells, showered upon them. Corpsmen heroically risked their lives to give Marines first aid under fire. Stretcher-bearers braved flying steel to evacuate wounded even after dark on the flare-lighted battlefield.

While the fight raged on the airfield, the Ninth Regiment's men could look back and see other Leathernecks burning and blasting Japs still hiding in caves on Mount Suribachi. They could see the bright fire of the flamethrowers and Old Glory flying on top of the volcano.

The assault and capture of each Jap position was a major battle. Exemplifying the kind of bloody fighting that took place was Company B's capture of Hill Peter, a knoll on the northeast side of Motoyama Airfield No. 2.

Hill Peter was important to the Japs because it commanded a view of the entire Marine-held southern portion of Iwo Jima. From its heights, enemy artillery observers directed fire on American lines.

The hill was a Gibraltar on land, a veritable fortress. On its side, the Japs had two deeply entrenched caliber .50 dual-purpose antiaircraft guns. On the crest were five caves and near the bottom were three more underground citadels—all connected by interlocking trenches.

Five tanks assisted in the taking of the hill, which was captured finally after three days of furious fighting. Four of the tanks were destroyed by a field piece located on a cliff three hundred yards to the front.

Flamethrowers and riflemen knocked out the three caves at the bottom of the hill and took a ridge near the crest. Then, a squad made a direct attack on the northern slope, but was hit by a Jap 75mm. shell. Four of the infantrymen were killed instantly, and the squad had to withdraw to cover in shell holes. The Marines then hit the Japs with mortar, machine-gun, rifle and grenade fire. Finally, two squads attacked from the rear of the hill, employing flamethrowers and demolition pole charges, and succeeded in knocking out the casemates on top of the hill.

On the third morning of the fight for Hill Peter, the finale was enacted. Five Japs, all that remained of the force of more than fifty that garrisoned the fortress, attempted to escape down the northern slope. They were slaughtered as soon as they left the protection of their trenches.

Each battalion, each company, each platoon and each squad of the Ninth Regiment participated in the same kind of violent battling on Iwo Jima.

The 2d Battalion, advancing on the left flank of Motoyama Airfield No. 2, met heavy resistance from small-arms fire from well-dug-in and concealed pillboxes on a ridge. In this area, tanks were able to render valuable assistance with point-blank fire on enemy installations. Tank activity was confined to a small area because of the terrain and enemy fire, but the presence and fire support of two or three tanks was a decided advantage. Company G, on the 2d Battalion's left flank, advanced two hundred yards after sustaining serious losses. During this time the right flank of the battalion made similar gains against heavy resistance.

At 1430 the first day of the attack, the 3d Battalion was committed to action, being assigned the mission of flanking the strong enemy positions holding up the 2d Battalion. The 3d Battalion crossed the airfield between the 1st and 2d Battalions and in a rapid thrust succeeded in advancing four hundred yards. However, the push was halted abruptly as the enemy poured well aimed, intense mortar and artillery fire on the advance elements, interdicting them from the support elements. The fire was so intense that it caused adjustment of the position by the 3d Battalion, which moved to the north edge of the airfield, tying in between the 1st and 2d Battalions.

Action of the same nature continued for two more days on Motoyama Airfield No. 2. Each morning an artillery and naval gunfire preparation was laid down on enemy positions. Tanks were used in increasing numbers, especially on the left flank, aiding the advance materially. Infantry troops fought close-in, using flamethrowers and antitank rockets to good advantage.

At the close of the third day of action, the Regiment had captured the airfield and commanding terrain in proximity to it, advancing the Division's front lines from 800 to 1,200 yards. Features of the action were the skill, determination and aggressiveness displayed by the troops of the Ninth; the unprecedented tenacity and defensive resourcefulness displayed by the enemy; the decisive aid rendered infantrymen by tanks; and the excellent coordination of all supporting units with infantry maneuvers.

Following this action, the Ninth Regiment went into Division reserve, being relieved by the Twenty-first Marines at 0815, February 28.

The second phase of the Ninth Marines' action on Iwo Jima began on March 1 at 1645 when the 1st Battalion relieved the 3d Battalion, Twenty-first Marines. Here, an attack was launched on a strongly fortified position manned by an estimated enemy infantry battalion less one company (the Jap 145th Infantry) plus tanks. The enemy had organized an area of roughly 600 by 800 yards due east of the village of Motoyama, the only settlement on the island. In this area, the enemy resisted savagely for sixteen days, fighting to the last man. The Japs fought from well concealed caves dug deep into rock, and from large bunkers, each protected by mutually supporting pill-boxes which were in turn protected by rifle pits and deep holes dug straight down into the earth to a depth of fifteen to forty feet.

The 1st Battalion made small gains before being stopped by small-arms fire to the front and right front. The Regimental front line at the time was about five hundred yards east of Motoyama, running north and south, and was three hundred yards wide. This was the outer defense of the enemy strong-point.

On the morning of March 2 at 0800, the 2d Battalion moved into position on the left flank and attacked abreast with the 1st Battalion. The attack was preceded by thirty minutes each of naval gunfire and artillery preparation. Both battalions were able to move forward initially, but were stopped soon by intense enemy fire. Another attack by both battalions at 1530 the same day, again preceded by artillery and naval gunfire barrages, netted small gains as a result of heavy small-arms fire. At intervals, intense enemy mortar and artillery fire fell on the battalions, inflicting numerous casualties. Supporting artillery was dropped close to the front lines in an attempt to counteract the enemy fire, but Jap machine-gun positions, even closer to the front lines than artillery could safely be placed, continued to pin down the attacking battalions. Tanks from Company C, 3d Tank Battalion, supporting the 1st Battalion, succeeded in knocking out a number of enemy installations late in the afternoon of this day.

On March 3, 4 and 6 attacks were made against enemy positions in this area. Each day the 1st and 2d Battalions attacked abreast after the usual heavy artillery, air and naval gunfire preparation. Despite the preparatory fire which included 1,500 rounds for preparation by the artillery alone, no large gains were made. Supporting fires were not confined to preparations, but continued almost constantly. Still the enemy persisted to hold firm and apparently was unaffected. Through the granite-like defense, the Ninth managed to eke out a gain of a mere 150 yards. After three days of battering, the Japs showed no decrease of resistance. The regimental frontage during this period was about five hundred to six hundred yards running north and south, and the center of the front lines was about six hundred yards due east of Motoyama village.

A surprise attack was planned to break the Jap defense.

On the night of March 6, the Regiment received orders for an attack to jump off at 0500 the next morning, thus taking advantage of about one hour of darkness. The 3d Battalion, attached to the Twenty-first Marines at the time, was to attack at the same hour in a southeasterly direction from a position on the left flank of the 2d Battalion. Its objective was to seize Hill 362. The attack was launched under cover of a smoke preparation, apparently having its desired surprise effect. The battalions advanced up to two hundred yards all along their fronts. However, by 0800 the 2d Battalion's two assault companies and the 1st Battalion's left flank company were pinned down by fire from the front and from by-passed positions to the rear. It was here that Companies E and F of the 2d Battalion suffered their severest casualties of the campaign. About noon, the enemy counterattacked in the 2d Battalion sector behind a screen of heavy mortar fire. The 2d Battalion's reserve company, with tanks in support, was quickly moved into position and aided in repulsing the attack. Assault platoons of Company F were pinned down by enemy fire for more than thirty hours and were finally rescued from their hazardous position by tanks which were skillfully moved into the area and brought out the few remaining riflemen and their company commander. Meanwhile, Company C, of the 1st Battalion, attacked and seized some high ground on the right of the battalion sector. But the enemy soon placed effective and heavy mortar fire on the height, inflicting a loss of 44 of the 54 attacking troops and forcing a withdrawal. One of the most important gains of the campaign was made during the day when the 3d Battalion captured Hill 362.

During the preceding four days of action tanks of the 3d Tank Battalion proved to be the most formidable supporting weapon of the Ninth. Their use was restricted by two features—terrain, and well sited enemy antitank guns which disabled tanks in some instances with one shell. The former difficulty was overcome to some extent by clearing roads with tankdozers and armored bulldozers; the latter difficulty by overrunning antitank gun positions. Antitank mines also constituted a serious hazard which was difficult to overcome because enemy fire made mine removal almost impossible. Special engineer-infantry teams, and tank-infantry teams were improvised because of the mined roads. In this area, at least 15 tanks were disabled. Nevertheless, tank support was the deciding factor in the action.

With the seizure of Hill 362, the Regiment was able to surround partially the enemy resistance which now remained in front of the 1st and 2d Battalions.

On March 8, the 3d Battalion, Twenty-first Marines, temporarily attached to the Ninth, passed through the 1st Battalion and attacked in conjunction with the Ninth's 3d Battalion which held the left flank. The 2d Battalion held its ground, and, with the assistance of tanks, began a systematic cleaning up of the resistance to its front. The Ninth's 3d Battalion began an attack from Hill 362 to the coastline, reaching its objective on the morning of March 10. Meanwhile, the 3d Battalion, Twenty-first, on the Ninth Regiment's right flank, hammered at what later was found to be the approximate center of the enemy position. Artillery and rockets did little to soften the resistance and the use of tanks, limited by rough terrain, was very restricted. On March 9 and 10, the Twenty-first's 3d Battalion continued its battering in the face of fierce resistance, and succeeded in forcing small gains. These gains, although they did result in the overrunning of some positions, did not noticeably decrease the enemy's defensive power.

It was decided to envelop further this Jap strongpoint by attacking the ridge from the south rather than frontally, and then to push to the coast on the right of the Regimental zone of action, joining with the Ninth's 3d Battalion on the beach. Orders were issued accordingly to the 1st Battalion and it jumped off on an attack to the north at 1535 on March 10. The attack was met immediately by small-arms fire and the battalion pushed only to the ridge's base, where it tied in on the left flank with the Twenty-first's 3d Battalion.

The next day, the 1st Battalion was ordered to contact the Ninth's 3d Battalion on the beach at the approximate center of the regimental zone of action. In order to accomplish this, the 1st Battalion was to attack in a northeasterly direction, seize the ridge, and then move east. The push started at 0730. At 1515 the 1st Battalion made physical contact with the 3d Battalion and began mopping up toward the high ground overlooking the beach. The two battalions made contact just south of Hill 362 on Hill 202-A which the 3d Battalion captured in a rapid advance from a point just east of Hill 362 against slight resistance. The high ground eight hundred yards off the beach was organized for the night, and the beach itself outposted. During the day, the Twenty-first's 3d Battalion attacked eastward against the ever-strong defenses in its area, but was unable to make any measurable advance.

On March 12, the enemy still held out in two strong pockets—the area one thousand yards east of Motoyama, a pocket about four hundred yards square; and at the extreme southeast end of the ridge in an area about two hundred yards square. Colonel Kenyon decided to by-pass the latter pocket for the time being since it was both small and isolated and offered no serious trouble. The Regiment was to concentrate on the larger and far more heavily defended pocket.

The disposition of the Ninth's troops on the night of March 11 was as follows: the 3d Battalion, Twenty-first, was facing eastward with a frontage of two hundred to three hundred yards, and the 1st and 3d Battalions of the Ninth, were facing westward with a frontage of about six hundred yards. Some five hundred to six hundred yards separated these forces who were, in fact, facing each other. The ground between the forces contained the remaining large remnants of Japanese in the 3d Marine Division zone of action. The 2d Battalion of the Ninth, in Division reserve, was just east of Motoyama and had been engaged the past few days in mopping up the northernmost remaining enemy. The battalion also formed a line approximately four hundred yards long which presented a stop-gap for any enemy withdrawal or escape westward from the strong pocket.

The situation was thus when orders were given for an attack in a westward direction with the 1st and 3d Battalions of the Ninth abreast, at 0700 on March 12. The 3d Battalion, Twenty-first, was to act as a holding force, the same as the Ninth's 2d Battalion.

The push started. The 1st Battalion met strong resistance and advanced slowly. Tanks were committed to action, but their use was again restricted by rough terrain. An armored bulldozer cleared a road for the tanks, but at most only two tanks were able to operate at the same time. The 3d Battalion, Ninth, had somewhat easier going to the north where resistance was light, especially on the right flank.

The attack was continued on March 13 and again the following day. The 1st Battalion relieved the engaged elements of the 3d Battalion, Twenty-first, on the morning of March 13, and the latter reverted to control of its own regiment at 0930. The 1st Battalion finally was able to make progress, and with the use of tanks succeeded in knocking out many well fortified positions. Meanwhile, the 3d Battalion, Ninth, had cleared its zone of action and had withdrawn on the morning of March 14 to the vicinity of Hill 362, there to commence systematic mopping-up operations. At 1530, the 2d Battalion reverted from Division reserve to the Ninth's control and at 1745 passed through the 1st Battalion in an attack on the remaining enemy pocket which at this time had been reduced to an area of only 150 square yards. At 1100, Weapons Company commenced mopping up the remaining resistance on the ridge. The enemy here was well dug in—holed up in caves along the seaward cliff face of the ridge and on the southeast tip on the crest. The Jap force was not large, but it was tenacious and resisted to the last man.

On March 15 and 16, the 2d Battalion and Weapons Company continued their mopping-up actions against the two pockets. The 2d Battalion employed a large flamethrower tank which was attached to the 5th Marine Division, using it to excellent advantage. This tank, shooting a flame 125 yards, proved to be the weapon that worked when all others failed. Its long flame-range as well as the area covered by one burst were the contributing factors to its remarkable success.

Organized resistance was declared vanquished on March 14, but the Ninth Marines continued mopping-up operations until April 4, at which time it was relieved of tactical responsibility by the 147th Infantry, U. S. Army.

The U. S. government officially took possession of Iwo Jima on March 14 with a proclamation issued by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. The simple ceremony and flag-raising was attended by high-ranking officers of the Marine Corps, Navy and Army.

Mopping-up the Jap remnants on the northern end of the eerie island, where smoke from sulphur mines arose from the ground, was a difficult job. From caves the Japs sniped at the Marines and had to be burned out of their underground fortresses. Patrols were sent out daily and ambush teams were set up at night. The Japs left their caves at night to search for water and the ambushes proved profitable.

One night during the last week of March, the Japs staged their only Banzai charge. Leaving their cave hideout near the western beach, 196 of the enemy attacked a Negro Seabee camp, and killed several pilots of Motoyama Airfield No. 2, bivouacked in the area. All of the Japs were killed.

The Japanese language officers of the S-2 section worked tirelessly during the mopping up operations, persuading Japs to surrender. In the mop-up period, approximately 75 Japs gave themselves up. Too, the Ninth Regiment had the distinction of having two Japanese officers do the unusual and surrender formally. The enemy officers relinquished their Samurai swords to First Lieutenant Lawrence C. Vincent of the Regimental S-2 section.

In some instances, the mopping-up operations almost became major battles. Companies I and K engaged in a tough three-day battle to knock out a pocket of Japs on a ridge.

The Ninth Regiment suffered heavy casualties during the campaign and replacements were taken from the 28th and 34th Replacement Drafts. The men were new from the States, had no combat experience and weren't familiar with their leaders. However, they had determination and courage which enabled them to fill the gaps left by the veterans. The line companies were so hard hit that replacements were even furnished by H&S Company. Not a company commander in the entire Regiment escaped being a casualty and hardly a platoon leader who started the campaign saw it end.

No one escaped the horrors of the Iwo Jima campaign. The Regimental command post had one of the most harrowing experiences when a portion of the CP's perimeter, bivouacked on the crest of a hill in the sulphur-mines area, was blown up at night by Japs trapped in caves which honeycombed the height. The terrific explosion threw some Marines as high as 15 feet into the air and buried several alive. Rescue parties quickly uncovered the buried men. Many Marines were injured by flying boulders, which ripped blackout tents to shreds and pinned men in their foxholes. However, only one man was injured seriously enough to be evacuated immediately. More than a score remained on duty after receiving first aid. The Japs, by-passed and trapped in the caves by the fast-moving Ninth infantrymen, refused to surrender and preferred to blow up the caves with demolition charges and aerial bombs cached in their underground fortresses, thereby sealing themselves in tombs of their own making.

While some of their comrades the world over paused in battle on Easter Sunday, April 1, the Ninth Marines on the newly won island, just three air-hours from Tokyo, attended sunrise services atop hallowed Mount Suribachi where, one month previously, Leathernecks had raised the American flag. The men took time off from their mopping-up and patrolling operations to observe this blessed day and honor their fallen comrades. Transported to the base of the historic 560-foot height in trucks, marines, soldiers and sailors climbed the steep, wind-swept slopes of the volcanic cone to the crest overlooking the cemeteries of the 3d, 4th, and 5th Marine Divisions. The rows of white crosses in the volcanic ash gave added impetus to the sacred service. Hardly a Marine in attendance hadn't lost a buddy in the taking of the island.

On April 6, the 1st and 2d Battalions, Regimental Weapons Company and H&S Company struck their improvised shelters, filled their foxholes and moved to the southwestern beach preparatory to embarking for the Regiment's home base at Guam. The night was spent on the beach, with the Army and Seabee units encamped nearby providing hot coffee for the Marines. On the morning of April 7, the Ninth Regiment, minus the 3d Battalion, which was left behind for several additional days to assist the Army in mopping-up operations, boarded the USS Randall, a new and comfortable ship with a congenial crew and fresh chow. Once aboard, the grimy Marines, stained black and yellow by the volcanic ash and sulphur of the island, took hot showers at the very first opportunity.

Standing on deck, the Marines took their last look at Iwo Jima. They understood why some news commentators had termed it "Marine Island" and "Unadulterated Acres of Hell." They also understood why the island had been taken. Overhead were huge B-29s, carrying the war to the Japanese homeland, and the sky was full of sleek, fast Mustangs, protection for the Superfortresses.

Once again in the Pacific, the Marines had completed a job well done. The Ninth Regiment was content to know that it had played a vital role in the toughest battle of the war.

CHAPTER 6
PEACE AND DISBANDMENT

*Let martial drums now muffled be,
And battle flags be furled;
The parliament of Man now meet
To celebrate the world.*
— J. GILCHRIST LAWSON.

After the Iwo Jima campaign, the Ninth Regiment, upon reaching Guam, moved from its former camp on the beach to a verdant area in the west-central mountains of the island.

The task of building new quarters completed, training, interspersed with athletics and other diversified entertainment, was resumed for what was rumored to be the greatest invasion of all time.

Replacements, many fresh from the States, joined the Regiment and under the tutelage of experienced officers and battle-tested noncommissioned officers were soon whipped into shape.

There were night problems, long daytime hikes, multiple instructions on weapons and tactics and practice sessions at the Division rifle range. Refresher courses on the flamethrower and grenades were scheduled, and lessons were also made imperative for unqualified combat swimmers.

Not all was work, however; sports, movies, parades, presentations of awards and other intra-Regimental activities were part of the preparation for an invasion which never materialized.

During this period, a chapel was built with both officers and men of the Regiment serving as volunteer laborers. When the edifice was completed, Colonel Kenyon formally dedicated it to the Striking Ninth's heroes who had died at Bougainville, Guam, and Iwo Jima. Chaplains Fred Brink, James Glasser, Vincent Lonergan and Thomas Tuohy were the first "pastors" of this strikingly beautiful chapel. Constructed of white frame, it was situated on a high ridge overlooking Bougainville Road, the Regiment's main artery.

Movie, stage and radio stars Charles Ruggles, Gene Autry, Gertrude Lawrence and Mary Bryan headlined a variety of stage performances, and the latest released films were shown at the outdoor theater, situated in rear of the H&S Company office.

The Ninth Regiment was signally honored when the Division's swimming pool and parade field were named for two of its officers—First Lieutenant Wilcie A. O'Bannon of Los Angeles and Captain Francis L. Fagan of Columbus, Wisconsin, respectively.

Main streets, drives, lanes and athletic fields within the Regiment's area also carry the following names of Ninth heroes: the regimental parade and athletic field was designated as Crawford Field for Captain William K. Crawford of Calvin, South Dakota, and a similar area in the 3d Battalion zone was named Krosky Field for Pharmacist Mate Second Class Robert E. Krosky of Bridgeport, Connecticut.

Streets were named for:

Sergeant George Tuthill—St. Louis, Missouri

Private First Class Wildred Frolich—Tecumseh, Michigan

First Lieutenant Dale Pollak—Los Angeles, California

Corporal John H. Silva—Jamaica, L. I., New York

First Lieutenant Harry Jones—Yorkville, Tennessee

Sergeant Clifford V. Hauff—Toppenish, Washington

Sergeant Clarence Sobba—Clayton, Missouri

Corporal Murray M. Johnson—Shannon, Mississippi

Lieutenant Kenneth R. Thompson—St. Paul, Minnesota

Sergeant William R. Ralls—South Minneapolis, Minnesota

Corporal J. C. Fox—Richmond, California

(The above named men are not listed according to rank but in the order that the aforementioned streets and sites were named for them.)

The troops were steadily developing into a keen fighting unit and were practically prepared for action when information was received that the Japs had surrendered unconditionally.

The official word reached the area about 0830 on August 14, 1945. There was no mass celebration; the good news was welcomed enthusiastically, but at the same time, quietly and soberly.

After the initial excitement had subsided, conditioning marches and instructions on military government and law constituted a main portion of the training schedule; in addition there were the engrossing topics of rotation and discharge. At first, the requirement for discharge was either 85 points or 38 years; later, this was changed to 70 points or 35 years, etc., and, later further reduced to 60 service "ration" points.

It was during that immediate postwar period that a new high in scuttlebutt (rumors) was recorded in the ordinarily sane Ninth Regiment.

As this narrative closed the Regiment had heard unofficially that its military existence would be terminated before the end of 1945. All hands were somewhat disappointed in being left out of the final chapter of the Pacific war—the landing in and occupation of Japan—but this loss was more than compensated by the prospects of an earlier landing in the United States!

The Striking Ninth had taken three strikes—Bougainville, Guam and Iwo Jima—but it was not out! It was in the game to the final inning!

COLONEL WILLIAM BAYNARD ONLEY, USMC

Colonel William Baynard Onley was born August 18, 1896, in Clayton, Delaware, the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Z. Onley.

He was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps June 6, 1919, having previously served as a midshipman at the Naval Academy. In December of 1919, he was sent to Officers' School for Service Afloat at Norfolk, Va.

Upon graduation he saw duty aboard various ships of the Navy. For his service aboard the USS Huntington in World War I, he received the Escort Clasp and Bronze Star Medal. He saw subsequent service at Guam, Nicaragua, and China.

In 1937, Colonel Onley was made commanding officer of the Marine Detachment aboard the USS Yorktown. He also served with the 2d Marine Division overseas. Colonel Onley attained his present rank in October 1943. When the Ninth Marine Regiment was activated as part of the 2d Marine Division, Lieutenant Colonel Onley was placed in command.

On March 16, 1942, Colonel Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., was assigned as commanding officer and Colonel Onley took over duties as executive officer.

He was later named commanding officer of the 2d Battalion, holding that position until June 15, 1942, when he was transferred to the 3d Battalion to take a similar post there.

Upon his return to the states, Colonel Onley (having since received his promotion from lieutenant colonel) was later assigned as executive officer, Montford Point Camp, Camp Lejeune, North Carolina.

MAJOR GENERAL LEMUEL C. SHEPHERD, JR.

Major General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., commanded the 6th Marine Division from its activation September 7, 1944. He led the Striking Sixth in the last land offensive of the Pacific war on Okinawa.

The General was born February 10, 1896, in Norfolk, Virginia. After graduation from Virginia Military Institute with a B.S. degree in 1917, he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps in April of the same year. He was promoted to first lieutenant in August 1917; to captain in July 1918; to major in April 1932; lieutenant colonel in July 1935; to colonel August 1940; to brigadier general on July 16, 1943, and attained his present rank September 8, 1944, with the rank to date from February 1, 1944.

The General sailed for France with the Fifth Marines in June 1917. He took part in three major battles, the Aisne, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne, and served in two defensive sectors, Toulon-Troyons and Chateau-Thierry. He was wounded in action in the vicinity of Le Mares Farm, again at Belleau Wood and a third time in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

After serving in the Army of Occupation in Germany he returned to the United States in August 1919.

In December 1920, General Shepherd was appointed aide-de-camp to the Major General Commandant and from February 1921 to July 1922 was detailed as junior aide at the White House.

In addition to sea duty aboard the battleships Idaho and Nevada, his foreign service included duty with Fourth Marines, China, and four years in Garde d'Haiti.

From 1937 to 1939, General Shepherd commanded the 2d Battalion, Fifth Marines, 1st Marine Brigade and was actively engaged in development of amphibious operations.

In March 1942, General Shepherd was assigned regimental commander of the Ninth Marines and took the Regiment overseas in January 1943.

After his promotion to brigadier general in July 1943 he was assigned as assistant division commander of the 1st Marine Division. He participated in the initial landing at Cape Gloucester, New Britain, December 25, 1943, and was in command of troops in the Borgen Bay area. For this latter action and subsequent capture of famed Hill 660 he was awarded the Legion of Merit.

General Shepherd was assigned as commanding general of the 1st Provisional Marine Brigade in April 1944 and led that unit into combat on Guam in July 1944. The brigade later received the Navy Unit Citation for Guam. General Shepherd became commanding general of the 6th Marine Division upon its activation September 7, 1944.

In addition to the Legion of Merit, the General holds the Navy Cross, Army Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters, French Croix de Guerre with Gold Star, French Fourragère, Montenegrin Silver Medal of Bravery, Victory Medal, Occupation of Germany Medal, Marine Corps Expeditionary Medal with Star, Yangtze Service Medal, Haitian Distinguished Service Medal and Order of Honor and Merit.

COLONEL EDWARD A. CRAIG, USMC

Colonel Edward A. Craig commanded the Ninth Marines from July 19, 1943, to September 22, 1944, through the Bougainville and Guam operations, receiving the Bronze Star Medal for Bougainville and the Navy Cross for Guam.

The Colonel was born November 22, 1896, in Danbury, Connecticut, son of Colonel Charles E. Craig, MC, U. S. Army, retired, of San Antonio, Texas. Colonel Craig was commissioned a second lieutenant in August 1917, and first served with the Eighth Regiment until 1919 when ordered to Haiti. In the same year he was promoted to captain and ordered to duty in Santo Domingo, returning to the U. S. in 1921. In 1922 he commanded the Marine Barracks, N. A. D., at Bremerton, Washington; in 1923 he served at Cavite and Olongapo; in 1924 on the USS Huron and ashore in Shanghai.

In 1926 he served with the Fourth Marines at San Diego and from there was ordered as aide to the Major General Commandant. From Washington he proceeded to Nicaragua in 1928 on temporary duty and 1929 on duty with the Guardia Nacional de Nicaragua.

Upon return to the U. S. in 1931, Captain Craig served at San Diego at the Recruit Depot. He returned to Nicaragua in 1932 as a member of the American Electoral Mission where he was commended for services in the ensuing elections. In the same year he returned to San Diego. He was promoted to major in 1934. After duty in the Marine Corps Reserve and with the FMF he completed the Field Officers' School in Quantico in 1938 and returned to San Diego, being promoted to lieutenant colonel in the same year.

Returning from sea duty in 1940, he was ordered to duty at Marine Corps Base, San Diego, and promoted to colonel in 1942. After commanding Service Troops, 3d Marine Division, he assumed command of the Ninth Marines. In 1944 he was transferred to the V Amphibious Corps. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for services as operations officer of the V Amphibious Corps at Iwo Jima.

COLONEL HOWARD N. KENYON, USMC

COLONEL HOWARD N. KENYON, USMC

On Iwo Jima the Ninth Marine Regiment—the “Striking Ninth”—played a vital role in the capture of the gray volcanic rock, and attained success despite severe losses.

Commanding officer and leader of the Regiment in the Pacific's fiercest battle was Colonel Howard N. Kenyon, awarded the Navy Cross for service in that action. Assuming command of the Ninth after the Guam campaign, Colonel Kenyon directed the Regiment's training and preparation for its dramatic part in one of history's most dramatic fights. The Ninth drove back the Japanese to take Motoyama Airfield No. 2 after resistance there had slowed the attack, then broke down one of the enemy's strongest and most obstinate areas of defense by capturing Hill 362.

Prior to leading the Ninth on the Iwo battle ground, Colonel Kenyon's military career, with the exception of comparative skirmishing during the Haitian occupation and Nicaraguan uprisings, had been instructor in Marine Corps Basic School, staff work and commanding officer of ships' detachments and of Marine barracks. Before taking over the Ninth Marines he had attended the Army and Navy Staff College in Washington, D. C., and, in 1943, the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, after a tour of duty at Marine Corps Headquarters.

Colonel Kenyon's span in the Corps began in 1921 when, upon graduation from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, he was awarded the Dr. Henry Van Dyke prize and commissioned a second lieutenant. He had previously attended Oklahoma A & M College and Marion Military Institute, Alabama. Promotion to first lieutenant came in August of 1925 after he had served in 1924 and 1925 as captain, Gendarmerie d'Haiti (Constabulary Detachment).

He served in Nicaragua in 1928, commanding the 20th Company in Nueva Segovia during the occupation of El Chipote and the 16th Company in the Jinotega area during the electoral supervision. He received two letters of commendation for his services in this operation; one from the Major General Commandant and one from the Secretary of the Navy and the Nicaraguan Medal of Merit from President Jose Moncada. He commanded Marine ship detachments aboard the USS Hartford, USS Demeter, USS Asheville and the USS Southern, and on May 29 of 1934 was commissioned a captain. He was stationed in Quantico, Virginia, in that year on detail as intelligence officer of the 1st Battalion, Fleet Marine Force.

Colonel Kenyon served also in Philadelphia, Boston, Charleston and Yorktown, Virginia. From 1939 to 1941 he commanded Marine Barracks, Coco Solo, Canal Zone, and in 1943-44 was District Marine Officer under Vice Admiral Cooke, Tenth Naval District, San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Colonel Kenyon's career is the Marine Corps, but he has two important hobbies—law and genealogy. He is the author of a genealogical book, begun in 1919 and published in 1935. His membership in historical and genealogical organizations includes the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Society of the Cincinnati and the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. He is a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society and in 1939 was elected a fellow of the Institute of American Genealogy.

He was admitted to the bar, Oklahoma Supreme Court, in 1925, to the United States Supreme Court and to the Virginia Supreme Court in 1935; the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia in 1936; the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, the U. S. Court of Claims and the U. S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals in 1937. He was admitted in 1940 to practice before the U. S. District Court for the District of the Canal Zone. In 1946 he was admitted to the Bar of Maryland. While stationed in the Canal Zone he served as representative from Panama on the Committee on Latin American Law of the American Bar Association. In that tour of duty he handled the civil practice for Army and Navy personnel in the Canal Zone. He is a member of the American Society of International Law, the Academy of Political Science of Columbia University, and has been a member of the American Bar Association since 1937.

Colonel Kenyon is a contributor to the United States Naval Institute Proceedings, with an article published in August of 1943 and entitled "Executing the National Policy." Another article in the October 1943 issue was entitled "Integrated War Effort."

Classmates of Colonel Kenyon during his course at Annapolis where, incidentally, he was a member of the wrestling squad, included prominent present day industrial leaders. Among them were Ed Willkie, brother of the late presidential candidate, and Laurence T. Fly, head of the U. S. Communications Commission.

His father, Lt. Col. Nathaniel C. Kenyon, enlisted at La Salle, Illinois, upon President Lincoln's first call for 75,000 volunteers and served under General Grant when Grant formed his initial command. The elder Kenyon was commissioned a captain while a prisoner of the Confederates and was exchanged in time to lead his company in the assault on Vicksburg. During the siege of Vicksburg he was hit in the head by a musket ball, pronounced dead, recovered and married while on 30-day sick leave. After participating in several engagements he attained lieutenant colonel in December of 1864.

While serving as mayor of Gueda Springs, Kansas, after the war, N. C. Kenyon was deputized to assist in capturing a bandit. This led to his being reported dead for a second time after being shot in making the arrest. A letter of condolence to his supposed widow from a former Union captain is among the Colonel's family papers. Successfully surviving this report of his death, the elder Kenyon made the run at the opening of the Cherokee Strip in 1893. Howard N. Kenyon was born on May 16, 1898, in the Township of Longwood, Kay County, in what is now the State of Oklahoma, where he owns land and expects to live upon retirement.

EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

COLONEL ROBERT CALVIN THAXTON, USMC

Colonel Robert Calvin Thaxton was born July 2, 1894, in Mason, Texas, and was enrolled as a lieutenant in the Marine Corps Reserve on April 17, 1917. Later he transferred to the Regular Marine Corps.

Colonel Thaxton's career includes service with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during 1918-19 and two separate periods of duty in the Dominican Republic, 1917-18 and 1919-22.

At the time of the declaration of the limited national emergency in 1940 and the subsequent calling up of the Organized Reserves, Thaxton was in command of the newly formed 3d Battalion of the Sixth Marines. In the latter part of the year he was relieved by Lieutenant Colonel Maurice G. Holmes, and was detailed to the USS William P. Biddle as Transport Quartermaster. Subsequently he went overseas to New Caledonia and somewhat later served with the 2d Marine Division.

He has had sea duty on the USS Saratoga, the USS Lexington and several smaller vessels; besides having served at numerous posts ashore. Colonel Thaxton joined Headquarters 1st Battalion as battalion commander.

Colonel Thaxton (then lieutenant colonel) commanded the 3d Battalion following transfer from the 1st Battalion. He was later detached to the I Marine Amphibious Corps, in April 1943.

Colonel Thaxton's decorations include the Victory Medal with France Clasp (France 1917-18), the Expeditionary Medal, Dominican Republic (1919-22) and the American Defense Service Medal (1939-41).

COLONEL JAMES AUSTIN STUART, USMC

Colonel James Austin Stuart was born in Spokane, Washington, March 11, 1899. Spending his youth in Washington,

Idaho and Utah, he graduated from the West High School in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1917 where he received his first military training, as a cadet and later as a cadet officer in the Cadet Corps of that school. In 1918 he was appointed to the U. S. Naval Academy and upon graduation in 1922 began his career in the U. S. Marine Corps. While a midshipman at the Naval Academy he became proficient as a fencer, was the single-stick champion of the Academy in his second-class year and a member of the Intercollegiate Championship Saber Team of 1922. Continuing his interest in fencing after graduation from the Naval Academy, he was a member of the American Olympic Saber Team of 1924, representing the United States at the meets held in Paris that year.

Colonel Stuart's service career in the Marine Corps, beginning in 1922, has been varied and well diversified as to duties. He has seen service both at home and abroad, afloat and ashore. Foreign duty assignments in such places as Haiti and Guam have alternated with service in posts and stations of the United States. He has had duty afloat both in battleships and heavy cruisers. He is a graduate of the Army's Chemical Warfare School at Edgewood Arsenal, the Marine Corps Schools, both Basic and Company Officers' Courses, and of the Postgraduate School, U. S. Naval Academy. In 1937 he taught at the Combined Heavy Cruiser AA and Surface Gunnery School afloat, and from 1939-1942 was an instructor in the Department of Ordnance and Gunnery, United States Naval Academy. In September 1942 he joined the Ninth Marines as executive officer of the Regiment. After participation in the Bougainville campaign Colonel Stuart was promoted to Colonel at which time he left the Regiment to become the operations officer of the 3d Marine Division. During the campaign for the seizure of Guam he took command of the Third Marines and remained in command of that organization until the 3d Marine Division's withdrawal from Iwo.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JAIME SABATER, USMC

Lt. Col. Jaime Sabater, commanding officer of the 1st Battalion, Ninth Marines, was born May 28, 1904, in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico. Raised and educated there, he came to the United States at the age of 18 and entered the United States Naval Academy, where he was graduated in the class of 1927.

Choosing the Marine Corps as his life's work, Colonel Sabater, then a second lieutenant, went to the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C., where he remained on duty for six months. Later he attended Basic School in Philadelphia for one month.

In February 1928 he was sent to Nicaragua when hostilities broke out in that country. He served there for two years with the Guardia Nacional de Nicaragua, an organization of native troops led by Marine officers.

Returning to the United States, Colonel Sabater was assigned new duties with the Signal Battalion in Quantico, Virginia, and six months later went to the Marine Barracks, Portsmouth, New Hampshire, where he remained for six months.

Transferred to Philadelphia, the Colonel entered Basic School where he served as instructor in Spanish and infantry weapons for eighteen months. Returning to Nicaragua, Colonel Sabater served as a member of the Electoral Mission which supervised elections in that country. After six months in Nicaragua, he returned to the Basic School for four months.

The Colonel's sea duty started when he was transferred to the Special Service Squad aboard the USS Sturdivant, USS Jacob Jones and the USS Claxton. The Colonel was a first lieutenant when he later attended a Company Officers' Course in Quantico and was promoted to captain while there.

Assigned to the 2d Battalion, Fifth Marines, in Quantico, Colonel Sabater served two years as the commanding officer of Company G. He was reassigned to duty with the Special Service Squad in Panama with the USS Erie and USS Charleston and was commanding officer of the Marine detachments aboard the ships.

After the Panama duty Colonel Sabater came to Camp

Elliott near San Diego, where he served for two years as a company commander of the Sixth Marines. The outfit was sent to Iceland for duty in 1941 and while there Colonel Sabater was promoted to major.

Returning to Camp Elliott, Colonel Sabater became executive officer of 1st Battalion, Ninth Marines, and was promoted to lieutenant colonel in September 1942. He took over his duties as commanding officer of 1st Battalion, Ninth Marines, shortly after his promotion. He holds the Bronze Star and Purple Heart.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL RALPH M. KING, USMCR

Lieutenant Colonel Ralph M. King was born on September 29, 1903, at Pine Grove, West Virginia. He was an honor graduate of the School of Engineering at West Virginia University, where he was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering. Prior to his service in the Marine Corps he worked for the Columbia Engineering and Manufacturing Corporation.

He was appointed a second lieutenant in the Engineers Reserve of the United States Army in May 1928 and served until February 1929. He was made a second lieutenant in the Volunteers, Marine Corps Reserve in February 1929; was appointed first lieutenant in June 1933; was promoted to captain in June 1935; was commissioned a major in July 1941, and a lieutenant colonel in February 1943.

As a commissioned Marine officer, Lieutenant Colonel King served in the Bureau of Ordnance of the Navy Department and at Marine Corps Headquarters in Washington, D. C.

Lieutenant Colonel King was awarded the Victory Medal (United States, 1918) and the American Defense Service Medal (1939-1941). He holds the Silver Star for Bougainville.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL PAUL WESLEY RUSSELL, USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Paul Wesley Russell of Devils Lake, North Dakota, executive officer of the Twenty-first Marine Regiment, held that post with the Ninth Marines through the Iwo Jima campaign.

Graduate of Bismarck, North Dakota, High School, Colonel Russell attended Jamestown College in Jamestown, North Dakota, before entering the U. S. Naval Academy. At Annapolis he was a member of the Varsity crew, and was graduated from the Academy in June 1930, being commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

He then was stationed successively at: Basic School in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Navy Yard; and at Pensacola, Florida. From April 1933 to June 1935 he served aboard the USS Texas. From the latter date until June 1937, he was with the Fifth Marines at Quantico, Virginia. For the next two years, Colonel Russell was in command of the Marine Barracks at the Naval Ammunition Depot at St. Julien's Creek, Virginia.

His next two years were spent in Shanghai, China, as an officer of the famous Fourth Marines. Returning to the United States, he joined the Eighth Marines at Camp Elliott, California, and sailed with that regiment to Samoa in January 1942 where he remained until August 1942 when he joined the Twenty-second Marines in the Wallis Islands. He returned to Samoa with the Twenty-second Marines in December 1942 as commanding officer of the 1st Battalion.

In August 1943, he returned to the United States and was stationed at Camp Elliott and Camp Pendleton until August 1944 when he again sailed overseas. He joined the 3d Marine Division as executive officer of the Ninth Regiment in September 1944, participating in the battle of Iwo Jima.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILLIAM R. WILLIAMS, USMC

Executive officer of the 3d Marine Division's Ninth Regiment, Lt. Col. William R. Williams, USMC, was commissioned on July 28, 1927. Colonel Williams is a veteran of the thin, early days of American endeavor against the Japanese in the South Pacific. He played football, basketball and lacrosse for

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILLIAM R. WILLIAMS, USMC

St. John's College at Annapolis, Maryland, and was a member of the undefeated all-Marine eleven which won ten games in 1927 from every team that chose to meet it.

Colonel Williams is now 40, and the connection between war and sports in his biography is that he bears wounds as souvenirs of both. Lacrosse, not a game for delicate structures, has left permanent remembrances, and he carries in one hand a piece of the mortar shell which sprayed him with its fragments on January 2, 1944, at Cape Gloucester.

On that day, Colonel Williams' men, who had landed in assault on December 26, 1943, and seized one-third of the perimeter, jumped off to the east. They had the main effort in the attack and one assault company suffered fifty per cent casualties in the one day. The engagement became known in subsequent reports as "the battle of the unnamed river" because few topographical authorities knew a river was there until the Marines had crossed it.

Prior to Cape Gloucester the Ninth's executive officer had taken his battalion into Guadalcanal in September of 1942, after accompanying the 1st Raiders under (then) Colonel Edson as an observer at Tanambogo on September 8. Colonel Williams was battalion commander in the 1st Division's Seventh Marines from September of 1942 until January 1944, when he left the 1st Division after three years that had begun when the unit was organized in Cuba in 1940 and 1941.

During the Guadalcanal campaign Colonel Williams' command had been on the lines for more than one hundred days, in contact with the enemy and never in a reserve position.

He returned to the United States in March of 1944, completing a tour of duty that had begun on April 8, 1942, when he sailed to the South Pacific.

The date of Colonel Williams' present rank will be found in any log of the Pacific war. It is August 7, 1942, the day the Marines landed on Guadalcanal.

After graduating from Basic Officers' School in 1928, he served aboard the historic USS Lexington for thirty-four months. Three notes on the cruise: (1) The carrier tied up at Tacoma, Washington, from December 15, 1929, until the following January 15, supplying the city with light and power which had failed when a dam froze. (2) Skipper of the Lexington for a year was Captain Ernest J. King, who was during the war the highest-ranking man in the U. S. Navy. (3) The ship's crew stood in review for President Hoover at Hampton Roads, Virginia, in 1930.

In 1934, 1935 and 1936 Colonel Williams served for two years on Guam. About all that is left to recall the force of 8 Marine officers and 125 men which occupied the present great base is the steel and concrete sections of the cable station that still stands.

Before joining the 3d Division as executive officer of the Ninth Marines on May 4, 1945, Colonel Williams was commanding officer of the Schools Regiment, Marine Training Command, at Camp Lejeune. He left the U. S. for his second tour of Pacific duty on March 26. His decorations include the Presidential Unit Citation for the 1st Division, the Purple Heart and three battle stars on his Asiatic-Pacific Area Ribbon.

MAJOR WILLIAM RUSSELL HUGHES, USMC

Major William R. Hughes was born May 13, 1901, in Quincy, Massachusetts, where he later attended grammar and high school.

He enlisted in the Marine Corps on January 10, 1920, and was commissioned a second lieutenant in March, 1923.

Hughes was designated a Naval Aviator upon the completion of training at Quantico, Virginia, in 1928. He participated in several successful air shows, and later was awarded the Nicaraguan Medal of Merit, for his services in that country. Hughes has also served in Haiti, Cuba, and Pearl Harbor.

He has coached several Marine football teams, attended a "coaching course" at Duke University, and was a member of the 1923 team at Parris Island, South Carolina.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL CAREY A. RANDALL, USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Carey A. Randall, commanding officer of 1st Battalion, Ninth Marines, was born November 15, 1912, in Gloster, Mississippi, where he was raised. He attended the University of Mississippi and the University of Louisiana, graduating from the latter institution in 1933. He took postgraduate work at the University of Louisiana in 1934-35.

Commissioned a second lieutenant on July 1, 1935, Colonel Randall attended Basic School in Philadelphia and later was assigned to duty at the Marine Barracks, Bremerton, Washington.

In 1937, he was ordered to Shanghai, China, where he was company officer with the Fourth Marines. In 1938 he was transferred to Peiping, China. While there he was promoted to first lieutenant. In July 1939, he was transferred to the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Virginia, and was promoted to captain while on duty there. He has been on duty in the South Pacific since the war started, and was promoted to Major in 1941.

Colonel Randall received the Bronze Star for the Bougainville campaign and the Silver Star for Guam.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JACK F. WARNER, USMC

Commanding officer of the Ninth Marine Regiment's 1st Battalion was Lieutenant Colonel Jack F. Warner, who has been in the Marine Corps since 1937, the year of his graduation from the University of California in Berkeley.

Colonel Warner assumed command of the battalion during the battle for Iwo Jima, taking over on March 14, 1945, and leading the unit through the last days of the fierce fighting before the island was secured and mopping-up patrols had swept out stubborn, last-ditch Japanese resistance.

Born in Ogden, Utah, thirty years ago, Colonel Warner's first command in the Marine Corps, following a year at the Basic School for officers in Philadelphia, was aboard the cruiser San Francisco on which he was second officer of the Marine ship's detachment.

Following the tour of sea-going duty, which included four months in hospitable South American waters, Colonel Warner joined the 1st Marine Brigade which later became the 1st Marine Division, and advanced from platoon leader to company commander in the Fifth Marine Regiment. He was CO of "Item" Company from August of 1940 until June of 1941 when he returned to basic school as an instructor, serving until the following June when the school was closed.

The following two years were spent as instructor at Reserve Officers' School at Quantico, Virginia.

Promoted to lieutenant colonel in April of 1944, the battalion commander left the States in the latter part of 1944 to join the 3d Marine Division and served in the dual capacity of headquarters commandant and commanding officer, Headquarters Battalion.

Colonel Warner is a graduate of Berkeley (California) High School. His decorations include the Asiatic-Pacific Area ribbon and battle star for the battle of Iwo Jima.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL EUSTACE R. SMOAK, USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Smoak was born July 12, 1911, and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in 1933. He had previously been enlisted in the Marine Corps. He holds the Bronze Star for Bougainville and the Legion of Merit and Gold Star. He was executive officer for the Twenty-first Marines at Iwo Jima.

MAJOR FRANK K. FINNERAN, USMC

Major Frank K. Finneran was born on December 6, 1918, in Oklahoma City. In 1941 he was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps and in April 1942 joined the Ninth Marines. He was awarded the Bronze Star for action at Bougainville. He served as executive officer of the 1st Battalion on Iwo Jima and was awarded the Silver Star for action in that operation.

MAJOR KIRBY BRASFIELD VICK, USMC

Executive officer of the 1st Battalion, Major Kirby Brasfield Vick, Linden, Alabama, is a former sea-going Marine with two battle stars—Guadalcanal and Rennell Islands.

Major Vick, graduate of University of Alabama in 1941, completed tours of duty at the Basic School, Philadelphia, Camp Lejeune, aboard the USS Indiana, Transient Center, New Caledonia; and Command and Staff School prior to joining the Ninth Marines on March 29, 1945.

While at the University of Alabama, Major Vick was a member of Delta Sigma Pi fraternity.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JOSEPH F. HANKINS, USMCR

Lieutenant Colonel Joseph F. Hankins, commanding officer of 2d Battalion, Ninth Marines, was born in Vernon, Alabama, July 30, 1903, and was raised and educated there.

Graduating from Agricultural School, Hamilton, Alabama, in 1920, Colonel Hankins attended Florence State Normal School, Florence, Alabama, leaving there in May 1921. He taught grammar school in Lamar County, Alabama, until 1923.

The Colonel enlisted in the Marine Corps in July 1923, as a private and after recruit training became a drill instructor at Parris Island. Later he took over new duties as a rifle range coach.

Throughout Colonel Hankins' career with the Marine Corps he distinguished himself with the rifle and gained a wide reputation for his ability to shoot.

In 1925 he became a member of the Marine Corps Rifle and Pistol Team, a ten-man organization, and continued with the team through 1929. The Marine team won the National Championship for four years during that five-year period. It lost one year to an Army Infantry team.

In 1927 and 1928, Colonel Hankins won the National Grand Rifle Aggregate Award with more points accumulated than any other member of a participating team in the national matches. In 1927, he won the Army Rifle Championship, firing an old bull gun. In that same year, he won the off-hand championship match. Firing 20 rounds at 200 yards, he accumulated a score of 98 out of a possible 100 points.

Colonel Hankins and two other Marines were chosen to represent the Corps on the United States International Rifle Team in 1929 and went to Stockholm, Sweden. Twenty-six nations sent rifle teams to the meet which ended in Switzerland taking first place and the United States second place.

Soon after his return to the United States, Colonel Hankins left the Marine Corps but entered the Reserve. He was a gunnery sergeant at that time. Returning to his home in Alabama, he became a mining engineer, a position he held until May 1937, when he was commissioned a captain and called to active duty by Headquarters of the Marine Corps.

Colonel Hankins remained on active duty as assistant director of Marine Corps Reserve and co-ordinator of Reserve activities until May 1941, when he joined the Fleet Marine Force in Quantico, Virginia. In 1939, he was promoted to major.

The Colonel saw service in Iceland on the 1st Marine Brigade staff and became executive officer of the 1st Battalion, Sixth Marines.

Following his return to the United States, he joined the Ninth Marines and became commanding officer of Regimental Weapons Company. Promoted to lieutenant colonel he was made commanding officer of the 2d Battalion in July 1942. He was killed in action in the Pacific after leaving the Ninth Marines.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL ROBERT E. CUSHMAN, JR., USMC

Dynamic Lieutenant Colonel Robert E. Cushman of Minneapolis, Minnesota, commander of the 2d Battalion through the Guam and Iwo campaigns, was probably one of the most competent battalion commanders in the Striking Ninth.

Twice awarded the Bronze Star Medal, the Annapolis graduate (1936) Marine officer went through all three campaigns with the Ninth Regiment. He was awarded the coveted Navy Cross for heroic achievement on Guam, and again recommended for the Navy Cross for services at Iwo Jima.

Prior to coming to the Ninth Marines, Lieutenant Colonel Cushman was in command of the Marine detachment aboard the USS Pennsylvania. While with the Ninth, he was author of several outstanding articles on amphibious operations, most of which were published in the Marine Corps Gazette.

While a Major, he was an executive officer of the 3d Battalion, later joining the 2d Battalion to take the same post.

Following the transfer of Lieutenant Colonel Joseph H. Hankins and his own promotion to the rank of lieutenant colonel, Colonel Cushman assumed command of the battalion.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL DORRANCE S. RADCLIFFE, USMC

After spending considerable time in sea duty, Lieutenant Colonel Dorrance S. Radcliffe of Reno, Nevada, joined the Ninth as commander, 2d Battalion.

Lieutenant Colonel Radcliffe is a graduate of Annapolis, having entered the Marine Corps immediately following graduation in 1938. He served with the Ninth only a few weeks.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WILBUR F. MEYERHOFF, USMC

Commanding officer of the Ninth Regiment's 2d Battalion, Lieutenant Colonel Wilbur F. Meyerhoff of Rochester, New York, a veteran of twenty-two months' service in the South Pacific earlier in the war. Colonel Meyerhoff served two tours of duty in this theater.

The thirty-two-year-old Colonel, one-time soccer star at Rochester University, was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1936 but did not go on active duty until the latter part of 1940.

He was elevated to his present rank from major on April 15, 1945, while serving as battalion executive officer in the Twenty-first Marine Regiment of the 3d Marine Division and immediately thereafter became CO of the 2d Battalion, Ninth Marines.

Prior to joining the 3d Division in April 1945, Colonel Meyerhoff had been at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina, for approximately a year.

He was stationed in Hawaii, American Samoa, Guadalcanal, New Caledonia, the Russell Islands and Bougainville with the 3d Marine Raiders. He also was on duty briefly in the Caribbean.

Colonel Meyerhoff wears the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with two stars (Guadalcanal and Bougainville) and the American Defense Medal.

He was graduated from the University of Rochester in 1935 where he captained the soccer team his senior year and was a member of the Varsity basketball squad.

Shortly after his graduation he was selected—as one of the nation's outstanding college graduates—to attend the General Motors Institute at Flint, Michigan. He studied there in 1936 and 1937, and upon completion of the course went to work for General Motors.

At the time of his activation into the Marines, Colonel Meyerhoff was an executive in the auditing department of the General Motors Company at Buffalo, New York.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL SAMUEL D. PULLER, USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Samuel Duncan Puller, veteran of the Bougainville campaign and the landings in the St. Matthias group, was born October 28, 1905, at West Point, Virginia. He served as executive officer of the reactivated Fourth Marine Regiment.

The Colonel enlisted in the Marine Corps June 4, 1929, following graduation from St. John's College, Annapolis, Maryland, and attained the rank of second lieutenant March 25, 1932.

In addition to service at various bases throughout this country, Lieutenant Colonel Puller has served in China, the Panama Canal Zone, and aboard ships of the battle fleet. He holds the Marine Corps Good Conduct Medal, the Yangtze Service Medal, the American Defense Medal, and the Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal. He was killed in action in the Guam campaign.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WENDELL H. DUPLANTIS, USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Wendell H. Duplantis was born June 27, 1913, at Eldorado Springs, Missouri, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Duplantis.

He received his commission as a second lieutenant in January 1936, having served previously with the National Guard of Nevada. He saw three years of sea duty aboard various ships of the Navy. Lieutenant Colonel Duplantis (then a major) become executive officer of the 2d Battalion upon the appointment of Lieutenant Colonel Robert Cushman as battalion commander. The Regiment was at that time in New Zealand.

Following his promotion to lieutenant colonel, he was placed in charge of a battalion in the Twenty-first Marines. On April 15, 1945, Colonel Duplantis was detached to the States to the Commanding General, Marine Training and Recruiting Center, San Diego Area. He came overseas on January 24, 1943, with the Ninth.

For service on Guam, with the 3d Marine Division, he was awarded the Silver Star Medal. While serving on Iwo Jima, he won the Gold Star in lieu of a second Silver Star Medal.

A graduate from the University of Nevada, Colonel Duplantis attained his present rank in November 1943.

MAJOR WILLIAM T. GLASS, USMCR

Major William T. Glass received his commission as second lieutenant, January 29, 1940. He was born February 4, 1918, the son of Mrs. Eileen Glass, and the late William T. Glass of Clifton, Texas.

Graduate of the University of Texas, Major Glass was in charge of C Company before taking over his post as executive with the 2d Battalion under Lieutenant Colonel Cushman.

On January 16, 1945, Major Glass was temporarily detached to the 3d Battalion, due to illness of Lieutenant Colonel Ferrill. He was attached to 1st Battalion as commanding officer for a short period returning to 2d Battalion upon the arrival of Lieutenant Colonel Jack F. Warner who took the helm of the 1st Battalion.

While serving with the Ninth Marines, 3d Marine Division, Major Glass participated in the campaign at Empress Augusta Bay, Bougainville. For his actions on Guam in 1944, he was awarded the Bronze Star Medal. He received a Gold Star in lieu of a second Bronze Star Medal as a result of gallant leadership during the Iwo Jima campaign.

On January 16, 1945, Major Glass was detached to the 3d Battalion, Ninth Marines. On February 1, 1945, he rejoined the 2d Battalion of the Ninth. During combat between March 6-15 he commanded the 1st Battalion of the Ninth, and rejoined the 2d Battalion.

MAJOR VALENTINE E. DIEHL, USMCR

A Columbia University graduate, Major Valentine E. Diehl of Baldwin, New York, joined the 2d Battalion as executive officer on April 15, 1945, after serving with Fleet Marine Force, Pacific.

Major Diehl received his commission on November 1, 1941, and was assigned to active duty May 5, 1945. Previous to joining the Ninth Regiment, Major Diehl completed one tour overseas as company commander in a Marine parachute regiment. He attended the Command and Staff school at Quantico and held posts in the personnel and Bn-3 offices.

Major Diehl obtained his Bachelor of Arts degree at Columbia, where he was also prominent in football.

MAJOR RICHARD ANTHONY POWELL, USMCR

Before taking over the Regimental Operations Section in September 1945, Major Richard Anthony Powell of Buffalo, New York, served as executive officer of the 2d Battalion under Lieutenant Colonel Wilbur Meyerhoff.

A veteran of Guadalcanal, Major Powell was with the Seventh Regiment, 1st Marine Division, on Samoa, Wallis Islands, and Australia, returning to the States to attend the First Command and Staff course at Quantico. The Major was a member of the 1st Candidates Class and 4th ROC before being assigned to the Seventh Marines.

Following Command and Staff School, Major Powell, a graduate of Syracuse University, reported to the Twenty-fourth Marines, 4th Division, at Camp Pendleton but failed to ship out with that unit due to a recurrence of malaria. Later he became an instructor with the Troop Training Unit, Training Command, Amphibious Forces, Pacific Fleet.

Major Powell came to the 3d Division on his second cruise—having completed twelve months overseas previously—as assistant G-3 (Division Operations Officer). Transferred to the Ninth Marines in July 1945, he was assigned to the 2d Battalion.

Wearer of the Presidential Unit Citation, with one star, Major Powell was a sales representative for Remington Rand before entering the Corps. At Syracuse he was a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity and Scabbard and Blade.

MAJOR NORMAN POZINSKY, USMCR

When Major Norman Pozinsky of New Orleans, Louisiana, joined the Ninth Marines on March 29, 1945, his records showed thirty-two months of previous overseas duty and three campaigns—Guadalcanal, Rendova, New Georgia, and the consolidation of the Solomon Islands.

Major Pozinsky, graduate of Tulane University, was a high-school instructor prior to entering the Corps in November 1940. In the Marines, however, Major Pozinsky has been strictly a "heavy-weapons" man.

From the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, he went to an AAA unit where he was CO of a battery, later advancing to the post of CO of an AAA group. Upon joining the Ninth, he was assigned duty as commanding officer of Regimental Weapons, later being called to take over the executive post of the 2d Battalion.

MAJOR EDWIN D. PARTRIDGE, USMCR

Major Edwin D. Partridge, USMCR, of San Diego, California, was battalion commander, 3d Battalion, for a short period during activation of the Regiment. He joined the Fleet Marine Force on November 19, 1941. He was born March 28, 1898; commissioned a second lieutenant in reserve in 1935, major in 1939 and lieutenant colonel in 1943. He served in the Marianas after his duty in the U. S. with the Ninth Marines. He holds the Bronze Star and Gold Star and letter of commendation.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL WALTER ASMUTH, JR., USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Walter Asmuth, Jr., was born in Washington, D. C., January 29, 1911.

He was appointed second lieutenant upon graduation from the United States Naval Academy in June 1932; a first lieutenant in July 1936; captain in March 1939; a major in May 1942, and was promoted to his present rank March 1, 1943.

Lieutenant Colonel Asmuth has served at several bases in this country, aboard the USS Arkansas, USS Nevada, and in China.

While in China Lieutenant Colonel Asmuth was commended for exceptional work at the American Embassy in Peiping during the disturbance during July and August of 1937. He holds the Bronze Star and Purple Heart.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL JESS P. FERRILL, JR., USMC

A native of Tampa, Florida, Lieutenant Colonel Jess P. Ferrill came overseas with the Ninth on January 24, 1943, and participated in the Bougainville and Guam campaigns.

Following a tour as company commander of the Regimental Weapons, he was appointed commander of the 3d Battalion. For meritorious services in the Guam operation, he was awarded the Legion of Merit.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL HAROLD CHARLES BOEHM, USMCR

Lieutenant Colonel Harold Charles Boehm was born in New Orleans, on January 26, 1916. Upon the completion of high school there, Colonel Boehm attended Tulane University before enlisting in the Marine Corps June 1, 1935.

Boehm received his commission as a second lieutenant in September of the following year. As a first lieutenant, he accompanied the 1st Marine Brigade (Provisional) to Iceland in the summer of 1941 as Bn-2 of the 3d Battalion, Sixth Marines, under Lieutenant Colonel M. G. Holmes. He remained with that battalion until the time of its return to the United States in February 1942, and joined the newly formed Ninth Marines at Camp Elliott. Although he had some reputation as an amateur boxer and as a singer, he had opportunity for the exercise of only one of these talents during his stay in the Far North.

Among the decorations he wears are a Gold Star, a Silver Star Medal, Navy Cross, and the Legion of Merit. His work at Iwo Jima was outstanding as commander of the 3d Battalion.

The Colonel has seen action at Bougainville, Iwo Jima, Guam, Empress Augusta Bay, while serving the 3d Marine Division.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL HAMILTON M. HOYLER, USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Hamilton Marshall Hoyler, commanding officer of the 3d Battalion, Ninth Marine Regiment, has been in the Marine Corps since 1939 and has spent approximately fifty months of his service overseas.

Awarded the Silver Star Medal for gallantry in action on Guam, Colonel Hoyler has seen duty with a defense battalion at Cuba, Pearl Harbor, Tulagi and the New Hebrides, the 3d Marine Raiders at Bougainville; the Fourth Regiment during the liberation of Guam and the 3d Division at Iwo Jima.

Colonel Hoyler came overseas for the first time in February 1941 and did not return until October 1944—forty-five months later.

He returned for the second time in March 1945, after a four-month leave in the United States, to participate in the Iwo Jima campaign.

Colonel Hoyler fired his first shots at the Japs on December 7, 1941. He was at Pearl Harbor when the Rising Sun's warriors pulled their sneak attack.

Leading a night attack against infiltrating Japs, who threatened an artillery position, Colonel Hoyler and his men smashed a superior enemy force, upset well planned strategy and left more than 250 enemy dead strewn throughout the area. It was for this leadership and courage that he was awarded the Silver Star Medal.

In addition to the Silver Star Medal, Colonel Hoyler has the Purple Heart Medal, awarded after he had been wounded at Bougainville; the Asiatic-Pacific ribbon with campaign stars for Bougainville, Guam, and Iwo Jima; a Presidential Unit Citation and American Defense Medal.

He was graduated from Columbia University in New York City in 1937 and spent the following year in Europe.

MAJOR WENDELL WILSON ANDREWS, USMC

With three major campaigns to his credit—Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Saipan-Tinian—Major Wendell Wilson Andrews of Miller, South Dakota, after serving as regimental operations officer became the successor to Lieutenant Colonel Hoyler as commanding officer of the 3d Battalion of the Striking Ninth.

Major Andrews, graduate of South Dakota State College, joined the Marines on June 25, 1940; the Ninth Regiment on March 25, 1945. His duty in the Marines has been a colorful and varied one, having served with the 2d Division in Iceland on Guadalcanal, Tarawa and Saipan-Tinian, sharing honors with the Eighth, Sixth and Second Marines. Following Basic School, he attended Command and Staff School at Quantico.

The tall South Dakota basketball ace wears the Presidential Unit Citation. In college he was a prominent member of Blue Key and Scabbard and Blade.

MAJOR LINDLEY M. RYAN, USMC

Major Ryan was born on January 2, 1915, at Beatrice, Nebraska. He graduated from University of Nebraska in 1936 and in the same year was appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. After his duty with the Ninth Marines he served in Wallis Island and in Samoa before returning to the United States.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL MARLOW CLAIRE WILLIAMS, USMC

Lieutenant Colonel Marlow C. Williams was born July 5, 1913, at Indianola, Iowa.

He attended public school there, graduated from Roosevelt High School, Des Moines, Iowa, and from Iowa State College in June 1936. Williams accepted a commission in the Marine Corps on July 12 of that year.

He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for his actions against the enemy at Iwo Jima, and the Silver Star Medal while at Guam. While serving with the 3d Marine Division, he was wounded in the former engagement.

MAJOR DONALD B. HUBBARD, USMC

Major Donald B. Hubbard of Silver Spring, Maryland, executive officer of the 3d Battalion, is a veteran of the Guam and Iwo Jima campaigns. He was born in Alabama and went to school in North Carolina.

Having been wounded in the left shoulder on August 1, 1944, in the bitter fighting for Guam, Major Hubbard is the recipient of the Purple Heart, as well as having been awarded the Legion of Merit.

Major Hubbard joined the Ninth Marines on March 18, 1944, and commanded the 3d Battalion on Guam after Lieutenant Colonel Asmuth was wounded until wounded himself, ten days later.

Prior to joining the Ninth Marines Major Hubbard had two years' duty with parachute troops.

MAJOR MAURICE JOHN KELLY, USMC

Serving as executive officer, 3d Battalion, Major Maurice John Kelly of Astoria, Oregon, joined the Ninth Marines on April 17, 1945, following duty with the Troop Training Unit, Training Command, Amphibious Forces, Pacific Fleet, Coronado, California.

Major Kelly received his commission on November 1, 1941, and after completing ROC reported to the Office of Procurement, Portland, Oregon. From April 25, 1942, until July 1, 1943, he was with the Second Marines, 2d Marine Division, participating in the Guadalcanal campaign with that unit.

Graduate of the University of Oregon, where he was a member of the Varsity baseball club, Major Kelly wears the Presidential Unit Citation with one star. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. In civilian life he was in the lumber business.

Dear Colonel Kenyon:

My wife and I wish to express our appreciation for your kind letter of sympathy in the death of our son, Lt. Herbert G. Smith, of your regiment.

We know that it is quite a task for you to write personally to the parents of the boys who are lost in action, yet, if you could only realize the source of comfort that it brings to these parents, I am sure you would feel that your time is well spent.

We received information from his commanding officer that he made an excellent officer and at the time was commanding two companies in his battalion. We know that he was well trained and wish to thank you for the wonderful influence that his commanding officers had on his life.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Sincerely yours,

My dear Colonel Kenyon,

I wish to thank you for your letter extending your condolences for the death of my husband, Captain William C. Evers.

My pride in his work and in the part he took in the action on Iwo Jima has served in some measure to ease my loss.

Even those of us who have lost so much have a very great personal stake in the war's end, and to you and to your fellow members of the Marine Corps who must pursue the fight to the end, we send our prayers and well wishes.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Sir:

I received your letter and was very glad to get it. Your letter was written on my 26th anniversary and I received it on Mothers' Day so I will always value it. I have been expecting Bernard home but I have received no word from him since the 16th of April, so I hope he is on his way home or is all right.

Thanking you again I will close wishing you luck and my sincere gratitude.

Yours truly,
MRS. O. HARDING,

Dear Colonel,

Noxapater, Miss.,
8 July, 1945.

We wish to thank you for the nice letter telling about our dear Marine E. L., Jr., and want to say that he certainly believed in his Officers and all the Marines stood for. We have one other son who is a true Marine who was in the Pacific at the time of E. L. passing away, but is now assigned to Air Group 53 at Eagle Mt. Lake, Texas. He, as well as us is rather grieved at E. L. going but we are still true Marines and know you are doing a wonderful job, even though it costs lots. All good wishes for your continued success.

San Francisco, California.

Dear Colonel Kenyon:

Thank you so much for your personal, very sympathetic words of condolence in your letter of 27 April, 1945, in our loss.

We were always real proud of our son and we did believe that he was at least equal to and able with the next one and withal, a regular lad.

We will not rebel, sure God allows and ours is not to question; but it is most difficult to see other lads with less back of them and less purpose in life or seemingly so, to see them returned unharmed and then to think that our son was deprived of the joy and privilege of life for he was just a baby when he enlisted, hardly seventeen and God knows military life in the Marines in the South Pacific is not normal life for a courageous, ambitious, American youth!

The knowledge that he fell honorably has some support; but is oh so faint in the knowledge that in the political set up of the hour the move is not so much toward principal as toward power. Some times in such an experience one is most tempted to ask, how long will human life be traded for national standing and gold.

Understand that I am an American Legion man, a veteran of both wars and I do love our country. I want right to be the master of might and as a minister of the Gospel I am trying, by God's help and Grace to influence and pray that right may win.

Very sincerely and your comrade,

MERRILL H. FOX

Dear Colonel H. N. Kenyon:

I wish to thank you for your thoughtfulness in sending me your condolences in the loss of my son, PFC Carl G. Sorensen.

It is a great comfort to me to know that my son was able to serve under such a fine commanding officer. I know my son loved the service and tried to do his best.

It is very hard to lose my son but if in some way it may help to end this struggle I do know that in some way my son won the goal he aimed for to again see his loved ones safe and his land secure.

So now thanking you again for your kindness to his sister and myself I close and may God be with you and bring you safely back.

Sincerely yours,

MRS. OLGA SORENSEN (KOEHLER)

Morrisonville, Illinois.

June 14, 1945.

Howard N. Kenyon,
Colonel, USMC

Dear sir:

I received your kind letter of April 27, expressing your heartfelt sympathy to us in the great loss of our loving son, Louis, the last of May. And I want you to know we thank you very much for your kindness in writing us.

Yes, Louis' PFC Buddies wrote me as soon as they found out Louis' death, and said very much the same words you said: that PFC Young performed his duties in a highly commendable manner, and would be very sadly missed by one and all.

I guess you remember PFC Donald F. Hoiem. He got wounded about five days before Louis. And he said Louis did everything for his wounds he could do.

Yes, I realize my son died a hero's death. Yet it's so hard for me to get used to the word death. Just two years tonight we said good bye to that brave son of ours, not thinking it would be our last. But Louis was prompt in writing home, and I wrote him almost daily. So now I feel I've filled my part, while he was here. Now we are praying he, as many more such braves are at Heaven's rest.

I want to say again, I thank you for writing me, and if you should learn more of how my loving son died, or any news you feel you should tell me, please I'd appreciate your letter.

Now asking God to guide you on, that you, and yours will soon see Japan licked to the finish, I will say good bye.

Yours as a friend,

MRS. NORA YOUNG

P.S. I also have an older son fighting with the 96th Cav. on Okinawa now. He was on Leyte when PFC Louis gave his life on Iwo Jima, the two had not met since we all said good bye two years tonight. Joseph had planned to go see Louis, but was kept busy. PFC Joseph had three furloughs before going overseas.

20 June 1945.

Dear Colonel Kenyon:

Receipt of your letter of 28 April 1945 is herewith acknowledged.

I wish to thank you, your officers and enlisted men in extending condolences in the loss of my son, Private Herbert L. Hussey. I am very proud to know that my son served under a very honorable Commanding Officer as you.

May God bless you, your officers and the men directly under your immediate command.

Very sincerely yours,

MARION HUSSEY KAIPO

Dear Colonel Kenyon,

I wish to thank you and the officers and men of the Ninth Marines for the very fine letter of condolence and sympathy.

It is indeed a great comfort to know my Bill had such fine friends.

Most sincerely,

MRS. WILLIAM G. MOODY

God be with you all.
