PREFACE

In preparing the history of Jefferson County in World War II, the first consideration has been the preserving in some permanent form, the community's part in the war. First consideration is a story of each of the heroes who laid down their lives for their country's honor. These stories have been prepared from information secured from relatives and friends. Records in many cases are incomplete or unattainable. For the records secured, we wish to thank all who assisted. For the military records secured of the 2850 persons who wore their country's uniform during World War II, we wish to thank many persons throughout the county for their assistance, also the schools, churches, draft board and County Records office.

We wish to give credit to the following for their contribution;

General Krugar and General McClure for their photographs and military records.

Colonel Armitage for his article on Jefferson Proving Grounds, and the late Charles E. Heberhart for the list of property owners who sold their property to the U. S. Government to make possible the Proving Grounds.

Mrs. Dorthy Whisman for the story of O. P. A. in Jefferson County.

Mrs. C. Roger Walker for the story of the Jefferson County Red Cross.

Mr. Richard M. Johnson for the story of the Bond Drives.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF JEFFERSON COUNTY

Jefferson County is located in the South Eastern part of Indiana on the Ohio River, about forty miles up stream from Louisville. It is bounded by the following counties; Switzerland on the east, Ripley and Jennings on the north, Scott on the west, and Clark on the south west.

The first settlements began in 1807, with a few pioneers erecting cabins in the vicinity of Madison. In a few years many more frontiersmen followed, and within a few years Madison was founded. Jefferson County laid out and named for Thomas Jefferson. Soon the ten townships were surveyed and named about as they are today.

The pioneers were of colonial stock, coming from all the seaboard states, from the Carolinas, north to the New England states. They were of the typical rugged individualist type. Many of them had been Revolutionary soldiers and claimed land grants. Many came from the south because of their views about slavery. Many were pure adventurers, and many more came seeking opportunity. They all contributed to produce the typical American of today.

Most of the settlers were farmers, but Madison contained many business men who were ambitious and far sighted, as a record of some of the things they accomplished shows. In 1837 they built the first railroad west of the Allegheny mountains, they built ship yards, iron foundries, railroad cars, saddletree factories, spoke factories, starch mills, flour mills, woolen mills, cotton mills. They also built churches, schools and fine homes. They enjoyed a great river trade. They established newspapers and banks. For many years, Madison was the leading pork packing center in the world.

At Hanover, in 1827, Hanover College was founded, and in 1848 the Eluetherian College was founded at Lancaster in the northwestern part of the County.

During the Civil War, Jefferson County placed her full share of men in the Union Army, and did her part in all things in spite of a strong active group of so called Knights of the Golden Circle.

John Hunt Morgan raided through the western and northern parts of the County, visiting Graham, Lancaster and Monroe townships. He did the most damage at Dupont, where he burned railroad bridges over Big Creek and Graham Creek, burned railroad cars, looted the pork packing plant and encamped there overnight July 11, 1863. Upon leaving, he traded many worn-out horses for fresh ones. He then traveled east across Monroe township to the Michigan Road to Varsailles with his troop of 3,500 horsemen.

During the short Spanish-American War, many of the County's young men volunteered and saw service in Cuba and the Philippines.

In the first World War, Jefferson County's soldiers saw action in all the battlefields of Europe. There were twenty-seven Gold Stars, six of whom were killed in battle and the balance died of pneumonia or as the result of accident. The County was well organized and supported wholeheartedly the war effort. This was the war to end all war. This we all firmly believed and acted accordingly. When fighting ceased on that long to be remembered November 11, 1918, the whole nation went into a frenzy of rejoicing, Jefferson County along with the rest.

Following the first World War, Jefferson County went peacefully about its duties. The farmers producing crops of corn, wheat, hay, and tobacco, raising hogs, sheep and cattle, dairying becoming more prominent each year. Most of the old industries at Madison closed and new ones took their places. The population of the county remaining stationary at about twenty thousand.

TO JEFFERSON COUNTY'S GOLD STARS

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." How forcibly do these immortal words, uttered by the son of Galilee nearly two thousand years ago, bring home to us the patriotism and love of country of the sixty-two sons and one daughter of Jefferson County who laid down their lives for their neighbors and friends, for their country and for the oppressed peoples of the world.

Words cannot paint the story nor recount the debt of the sacrifice made by these heroes of ours. They freely gave their lives when the honor of the flag and the cause of humanity was at stake.

I wish I were able to say that which is in my heart in tribute to these fallen heroes of ours, that I might in some way lighten the burden of those who mourn their loss.

By their sacrifice they have shown to the world that American manhood and womanhood is just as brave as in the early days of our Country. They died for us and for our Republic. Let each of us so live and so serve the State and Nation as to preserve and make better the institutions for which they gave the last full measure of devotion.

SILENT GUNS

(Contributed by Elmer L. Crozier)

The guns are silent tonight, son
The battles fought, the victory won.
You promptly answered the call to arms
To free the world from war's alarms.

You learned to camp, to drill, to march,
To hold high the liberty torch,
To hide, to shoot, to do battle,
Listen to guns roar, the rifle's deadly rattle.

You left your happy home for shores afar
Where the despot lords of war
Were imposing their bloody sway
On nations that did not think their way.

You did your duty where ever placed
With a soldier's fortitude the dangers faced
In Africa, Italy, France, Germany and all
Never thinking that you would fall.

You thought of loved ones here in the state
Who for your return would anxiously wait
Until the cruel war was o'er
And you were safe on your native shore.

But fate decreed it was not to be
You sleep in a grave across the sea,
You fell while bravely fighting at the front
Your command bore the battle's brunt.

There is a vacant place at the table each day
As we bow our heads and silently pray
Giving thanks that the guns are silent tonight, son
The battles are fought, the victory won.

ALLEN, DON EARL

Don Earl Allen, Motor Machinist's Mate, First Class, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett E. Allen, 423 East Third Street, a veteran of almost four years of Navy service, was serving aboard the submarine Pompano, when it was reported overdue and failed to return from patrol operations in the Pacific Area. On August 2, 1943, the Pompano departed from Midway Island to patrol waters in the vicinity of Hokkaido and Honshu, Japan.

A letter received by Machinist Mate Allen's father from Secretary of the Navy Forrestal is in part as follows, "In view of the additional length of time that has elapsed since your son was reported missing, and because there have been no official nor unconfirmed reports that any of the personnel serving aboard the Pompano survived or were taken prisoners of war, I am reluctantly forced to the conclusion that he is deceased."

ANDERSON, IRVIN HENRY

Pharmacist Mate, Second Class, U. S. Navy, Irvin Henry Anderson was taken prisoner by the Japs shortly after Pearl Harbor and had been held in Balibid prisoner of war camp until October, 1944, when he was being transferred with other prisoners to Japan in an unmarked prison ship, which is believed to have been sunk by American gun fire.

Before the war his ship, the U.S.S. Blackhawk, operated in the area of the Philippines, and for several months Seaman Anderson served in a hospital in Manila.

While a prisoner of war, he wrote the following note, which was found by the army on Corregidor and sent to his Mother.

"My opinion of the war can surely be of little consequence, but perhaps I can express the feeling of faith that I have in my country, perhaps I can tell to those who may be interested that my morale is high and my belief in final victory is unshaken and my pride in the U. S. A. just as great as the day the war began.

"It has become my misfortune to become a prisoner of war but I know that somewhere my fellow countrymen are fighting and that they have a pride and faith in their country that cannot be shaken, and that they too, are confident of victory."

A footnote from H.B. Atkinson, Commander, Casualty Section, to Mrs. Anderson, said "You must be proud to realize your son was among those whose faith while imprisoned, and steadfastness to their country's ideals, will never be forgotten by the American people."
