Washington, D.C. Prepares for Deadeyes in July

Why attend the 59th annual 96th Infantry Division Deadeye Reunion in Arlington, Virginia?

To our very dear WWII Deadeye veterans, wives, families and friends:

I hope this Deadeye Dispatch finds you all well and in good spirits. After a busy week of finalizing the details of the 59th annual reunion to be held at the Holiday Inn Rosslyn in Arlington, Virginia, on Thursday, July 14 through Sunday, July 17, 2016, I considered, why attend the Deadeye Reunion this year?

I could mention the location the Holiday Inn Rosslyn which offers free parking, reasonable dining, and a breakfast buffet included with the room rate. In addition to the hotel's restaurant on the top floor with the panoramic view, the hotel also has a café which offers breakfast treats, ice cream, soup or sandwiches. Within a block and a half, is a Metro station should DC's many attractions beckon you.

Naturally, there are the usual reunion events: This year's tour includes a wreath laying at ANC (Arlington National Cemetery) at the 96th monument, as well as a stop at a DC museum with lunch and a final stop at the WWII memorial. Many of us remember its dedication and the fun we had staying at the same hotel and coordinating events over breakfast each day.

There is also the Beer Bust with a performance by the incredible singing and dancing duo, Letters from Home. They bring back the music and fashion of the WWII era and interact with the audience while honoring the WWII veterans present. They are worth the trip alone.

We will also hold the annual

Memorial Service on Saturday morning, a time to remember those who have gone on before us. We will sing some favorite songs and hear inspiring words from the speaker. It is a great time to remember why we reunite each year.

We will take the reunion picture at the hotel's ballroom: the veterans; the wives and widows; and finally, the group picture. Following the picture, we will be updated at a general membership meeting by Association President, Don Klimkowitz, with news of the association and Heritage Fund. Then the group will split to luncheons. The ladies' will meet to enjoy a "Walk Down Memory Lane" with Mary Eleanor Wood Smith guiding us back in time while enjoying "girl time." The ASTP group (and any other interested men) will meet as well with the same menu at a separate location to catch up on events since their last time together. Please feel free to invite your children to attend with you. A third luncheon group is available too for friends and family just wishing to have a group luncheon.

Saturday evening brings the banquet, the close to another precious reunion. Our speaker this year is Retired MG Jim Collins. We dress to impress, taking pictures with cherished friends we see perhaps only at reunions, but very dear nevertheless. Then before we know it, we are off to bed to get ready for the next day's travel home. Should you wish to arrive early or stay an extra day or two, please contact me so I can make sure the 96th group rate applies to your entire stay.

So why attend this year's reunion, besides the events listed above? Well, for me as the daughter of a Deadeye (and former Marjorie Main impersonator), there are two very important reasons: (1) it is the one time that our family gathers every year - this includes grandparents, parents (that's us kids now), and grandchildren (now all grown) and (2) it is the time that my other family gathers - friends that have been made over the years at reunions and visits outside of reunions, and also new friends I will make this year.

Travel has become challenging for the WWII generation; for those of us in the "Sandwich Generation," life is very busy with work and family obligations; and for the younger crowd, life is too fast with barely any time to stop or consider what opportunities (such as the reunion) will not always be available. So I urge all of you to gather once again, rehear old stories, renew friendships, make new friendships and step out of your usual routine to meet in Arlington in July to honor our WWII Deadeyes and remember their sacrifices which enabled us to enjoy the freedoms we take for granted.

I will close with some song lyrics from a while ago which came to mind while writing this article. I cannot guarantee sunny weather, but I do know attending a Deadeye Reunion is very good for your well-being! I hope to see you in Arlington in July,

Sincerely,
Annie Moroz Duncan,
Daughter of Mike Moroz,
382nd, Company L
(and 2016 Reunion Chair)

*Grab your coat and get your hat
Leave your worries on the doorstep
Life can be so sweet*

On the sunny side of the street

*Can't you hear the pitter-pat
And that happy tune is your step
Life can be complete
On the sunny side of the street*

REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES

Philippine

Presidential Unit Citation

Awarded to 96th Infantry Division
United States Army
20 October 1944 through 1 March 1945

For acts and services of exceptional gallantry and heroism rendered by its officers and men during the Leyte Campaign, from 20 October to 1 March 1945. The 96th Infantry Division landed with General Douglas MacArthur in Leyte on 20 October 1944. Capturing the critical terrain of Catmon Hill which was fiercely defended by elements of the 16th Infantry Division of the Imperial Japanese Army, the Division advanced through deep swamps and penetrated to Tubon-Tubon which was heavily infested by the enemy. After four days of attack, counterattack and heavy losses of personnel and equipment, the Division succeeded in defeating the enemy. Again, in December 1944, the Division participated in the counterattack against the 2nd Parachute Brigade, Imperial Japanese Army which was then assaulting the airfields and supply depots in Central Leyte Valley. By these achievements the 96th Infantry Division, United States Army, greatly contributed to the success of one of the decisive battles of World War II and earned the lasting admiration of the Republic of the Philippines and its people.

The applicant should present a 3-7 typewritten page essay that could be printed in a local newspaper or given as a speech to educate non-Deadeyes on the influence of the men who served their country in military service and then as productive members of their individual communities.

Here are some questions which could be answered via the essays:

- Do you know the reason for the term "Deadeyes"?
- Where did they fight?
- Can you find those sites on a map?
- Can you describe their strategic importance?
- What was their importance in the ending of the war in the Pacific?
- Are you aware of any "buddy" friendships your Deadeye maintained over the years?
- Can you relate a story that your Deadeye shared with you or your family?
- What are the ribbons and medals these soldiers received?
- What does the Presidential Unit Citation mean?
- How would you express, in one sentence, your appreciation to these men?

5. HOW-TO ADVICE

We would also like to have your best home remedy or "how-to" advice. When you are brainstorming, think about things like time-tried remedies for the younger generation. What to do for bee stings, how to clear water marks on a crystal vase, how to survive and remain a loving relationship with your spouse, child room safety, what makes a good, inexpensive gift for folks over 65, etc.

Any and all of this information can be brought to the reunion or mailed to me at this address:

Friday's Reunion Tour

- Arlington Cemetery
- Air & Space Museum
- World War II Memorial

We will be offering a tour on Friday that will begin in Arlington Cemetery at the 96th Infantry Division memorial. The memorial was placed in 1999 with a living tree, which has become quite prominent.

We had a wreath laying ceremony in 2005 when we last had the reunion in Washington and are honored to participate in a wreath ceremony again this year.

Afterward, we will tour the area to view as many other iconic monuments as we can from the bus. This will be followed by a visit and lunch stop at the National Air and Space Museum. Plan to eat lunch on your own here at the food court and view our many national artifacts on display.

Finally, we plan to visit the World War II Memorial where we will see the solemn splendor of the monument that represents the most significant event in modern times: the Allied victory in World War II over the Axis powers. No other event has done so much to shape the time that we live in, even to this day.

The price of the tour is for transportation only. The Air and Space Museum entry is free and lunch at the food court is on your own and not included in the tour price.

Following this we will return to the hotel to rest up and get ready for dinner and the Beer Bust.

Lou Groza: A noted NFL Star... and a Deadeye

Lou "The Toe" Groza was the rare combination of offensive lineman and kicker. He was also a Deadeye.

In 1943, Groza enlisted in the U.S. Army as WWII fighting and battle theatres intensified. After joining the Army Service Training Program, he was sent with the 96th Infantry Division to serve as a surgical technician in Okinawa in 1945.

While at war, Groza received a package from then Ohio State football coach, Paul Brown. It contained footballs and a contract to play on a team Brown was coaching in the new All-American Football Conference - the Cleveland Browns.

While Groza would eventually be known for revolutionizing the kicking position, he spent the majority of his 21-year career as an All-Pro offensive tackle.

Groza died in November, 2000. Today, the Lou Groza Award is presented annually to the top College Football Placekicker in the nation.

ONLINE 96th SITES

- The name of our website is: "96th Infantry Division Deadeyes Association" and the address is: www.96thdeadeyes.org
- The name of the Facebook Group is: "96th Division Deadeyes."
- Another good site that has a lot of historical information is: "Remember The Deadeyes" and the address is: www.rememberthedeadeyes.com/

On our Association website, the best source is the Home Page. There are numerous links in the "History of the 96th Infantry Division" section on the upper left side of the page. It provides details about the battles and other WWII info. Below the History Section is a link to "Recommended Reading" which is a list of books Don Dencker compiled that are related to the 96th. Also on the Home Page is a link to "Soldiers' Stories" which is mostly individual recollections.

Veterans' Day 2015

by William Richard Hill, Deadeye

Americans are proud of their veterans!

I have a beautiful memory of the day.

It was my personal pleasure to tell parts of my WWII story to the students of four schools on this Veterans' Day. There was a mix of students in first, fourth and eighth grades.

My presentation was for the most part respectful of their ages. In each school students, sang with me a few lines of the famous song, "My Buddy," honoring those who sacrificed their lives for their country.

Students were very respectful and I received many personal messages thanking me for my presentation and service to our country.

Over 300 students honored Veterans' Day 2015 with me!

Special thanks go to Carol Ford, Glenn Hine and Stephanie Gessner for making these presentations possible. They have served as guardians on the Indy Honor Flights and are special people in my life.

Oldest Army jeep finally gets some TLC

By Mark Phelan,
Detroit Free Press

Seventy-five years after it impressed the Army, the oldest known jeep is getting some much needed attention.

GP-No.1 is on display in the Veteran's Memorial Museum in Huntsville, Ala. The museum and the Historic Vehicle Association just finished verifying its history and documenting that GP-01 is one of five original test vehicles — two from Ford, two from Willys Overland and one from American Bantam.

Originally called the "Pygmy" and built and tested by Ford engineers in Dearborn and Detroit, GP-No.1 is the only one of those prototypes known to still exist in North America. The GP designation is believed by many to have hatched the name "jeep."

The Pygmy had features that remain prominent on Fiat Chrysler's Jeep brand today, including the upright grille with vertical slots that are literally the brand's trademark, Historic Vehicle Association president Mark Gessler said.

"The government didn't really know what it wanted," when jeep development began, Fiat Chrysler historian Brandt Rosenbuch said. The Army began work on specifications for a light four-wheel-drive reconnaissance vehicle in 1937 with American Bantam of Butler, Penn.

"Bantam deserves the vast majority of the credit for developing the basic concept and capabilities that became the Jeep," Gessler said.

Henry Ford was a staunch pacifist with little interest in the war brewing overseas, but he thought a little four-wheel-drive vehicle could be useful for agriculture, one of his passions. His more globally minded son Edsel used that opening to spearhead the GP-No.1 project, beginning a process that would see Ford become a vital supplier of wartime equipment.

"It's an icon of World War II and a symbol of wartime production by the auto industry," said Matt Anderson, transportation curator at the Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn. "It's also the grandfather of all SUVs. It's very rare to be able to trace a whole class of vehicles to a single one, but this is where it all began."

Willys built 362,894 wartime Jeeps, all at its headquarters plant in Toledo, Ohio. Ford built 285,660, initially at the Rouge plant in Detroit that today produces F-150 pickups. Ford later added Jeep production in several other plants around the country, including Louisville, Kentucky, where it still builds pickups and SUVs.

American Bantam got the short end of the stick, building just 2,676 Jeeps. The Army threw the little company a bone with a contract to build the trailers that hauled equipment behind Jeeps.

When soldiers from Headquarters Company, 15th Infantry come to a bad spot with their "Blitz Buggies," they just picked them up and move them. The Jeep was the latest in battlefield equipment early in World War II. (Photo: Army)

The Jeep remained in military service for decades, but it was popular with civilians before the guns of World War II even fell silent. Willys got special permission to begin building civilian Jeeps months before other automakers were allowed to switch from wartime production and resume their usual businesses.

"It was initially marketed as a farm vehicle," Rosenbuch said. "That's why the government allowed civilian production, to help get the economy up and running after the war."

Henry Ford donated GP-No.1 to the museum that bears his name in Dearborn in 1948. It remained there, getting surprisingly little attention, until the museum sold it and some other "minor" items from its collection in 1982.

History buff Randy Withrow of Huntsville snapped it up.

"It gave me a chill," he said. "I couldn't believe they'd auction it off."
