Award of Silver Star-----Section I

I--AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943 and pursuant to authority contained in paragraph 5, Section I, Circular 66, Headquarters First United States Army, 18 May 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following officers:

Colonel Joseph H. Harber, 015083, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. Assuming command of the 327th Glider Infantry on June 11, 1944, then engaged in action in the vicinity of Carentan, he planned and executed a successful attack on that city in the course of which he personally led a battalion under fire across the Carentan Canal to an exposed position on the outskirts of the city. Combining the action of this battalion with the remainder of his force, he led the first troops into the town and captured it on June 12. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Residence at appointment: Maryland.

Revised by G-3 - Nov 3, 1944.

* Colonel Howard R. Johnson, 015673, Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. Dropping by parachute at the head of his regiment in the early hours of June 6, 1944, he quickly gathered scattered elements of his regiment, then under enemy fire, and moved them to the La Barquette Dam on the Douve River which he seized and defended. In spite of bitter attacks by the enemy, he maintained his position for a period of 35 hours until contacted by friendly troops. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Residence at appointment: District of Columbia.

Colonel Robert F. Sink, 016907, United States Army, for gallantry in action. Dropping by parachute at the head of his regiment on June 6, 1944, he assembled his dispersed troops and secured an important causeway East of St Mere du Mont, in spite of strong enemy resistance. He then led his troops against the key town of St. Come du Mont, which was heavily fortified and defended. By his personal leadership and valor, he obtained the speedy capitulation of that key position. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Residence at appointment: North Carolina.

Lt. Colonel John H. Michaelis, 00328, Infantry, United States Army for gallantry in action. During the period June 10 to 12, his regiment, 502d Parachute Infantry, was engaged in a bitter struggle to secure the bridges across the Douve River north of Carentan. In the course of this action, the battalions became isolated on the south bank of the river. Lt. Colonel Michaelis exposed his life repeatedly under heavy fire to pass back and forth across the causeway to carry orders to his battalion commanders. His inspiring leadership led to the successful disengagement of his troops. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Residence at appointment: Pennsylvania.

Award of Silver Star ----- Section I

I -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-43, 22 September 1943 and pursuant to authority contained in paragraph 3, Section I, Circular 66, Headquarters First United States Army, 18 May 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following officers and enlisted men:

Brigadier General Anthony C. McAuliffe, 012263, Division Artillery, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 5 June 1944, Brigadier General McAuliffe, without having received formal instruction in parachuting, volunteered to drop with the parachute echelon of the Headquarters Battery of the Division Artillery of the 101st Airborne Division in order to organize his artillery expeditiously. Landing far from the prescribed drop zone, he organized the scattered individuals of his Headquarters and joined with elements of Division Headquarters south of St Marie du Mont. In conjunction with the latter, he led his artillery against the causeway at Pompeville and assisted in capturing the town and beach defile against strong enemy resistance. The speedy juncture of airborne and seaborne forces at this point was in large measure due to his leadership. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from District of Columbia.

Lieutenant Colonel Julian J. Ewell, 021791, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 5 June 1944, Lieutenant Colonel Ewell and his battalion parachuted into the Cotentin Peninsula, France, as part of the Division reserve. Upon parachuting to the ground, Lieutenant Colonel Ewell found that his battalion had been widely scattered. He quickly gathered one company of his battalion and small elements of other units, and personally led them against the town of Pompeville, the capture of which was essential to the successful landing of the amphibious forces. During the attack on Pompeville, Lieutenant Colonel Ewell continuously exposed himself to heavy enemy small arms and mortar fire, without regard to his own safety, in order to further the attack. His example and leadership so inspired the men of his force that the attack was successful in overcoming a superior number of the enemy in well organized positions at Pompeville and permitted the obtaining of troops from enemy encampments. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Kentucky.

Second Lieutenant George H. Craft, 01297163, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 11 June 1944, near Carantou, France, Lieutenant Craft personally led his platoon in an assault on the battalion objective. This assault was made across flat, open terrain in the face of heavy enemy machine gun fire from several well-located positions. His inspiring leadership and courage aided his men in the capture of the enemy position and the organization of a defense. He continually exposed himself to enemy fire, so that his men could locate enemy weapons and thereby knock them out of action. The holding of the battalion objective against strong enemy counter attacks by this platoon prevented the enemy from turning the left flank of the battalion as it occupied its objective. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Indiana.

Technician Fourth Grade Willie H. Webster, 34103227, Glider Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action against an enemy. On the night of 13 June 1944, near Mont Martin-en-Francaise, France, Technician Fourth Grade Webster moved under heavy enemy fire one mile to the aid station to secure litter bearers to evacuate heavy casualties. On the route back to the company, intense small arms fire was directed upon him and litter bearers. All but two aid men were forced to remain in position. Disregarding heavy enemy fire, he brought the two aid men through to the Company Post. With complete disregard for his own personal safety, Technician Fourth Grade Webster made three m. attempts to get the rest of the aid men through to the Company Post. As dawn, unable to get litters and aid men, he called members of the company carrying the wounded to the rear aid station, thereby saving many lives. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Tennessee.

Technician Fifth Grade Robert E. Wright, 15338735, Parachute Medical Detachment, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, a detachment of a crisis parachute attached and seized the town of Moleville, France, against the opposition of a battalion of enemy infantry supported by heavy weapons. Our casualties were extremely high. Technician Fifth Grade Wright found himself and one other surgical technician to be the sole remaining medical personnel from his group. Exposed to the fire of enemy snipers armed with automatic weapons, and mortar fire which was exploding in the immediate vicinity, he set up an aid station and gave vital treatment to more than 78 casualties. Carrying out a resupply mission, our casualties evacuated the town and it was recaptured by enemy forces. During the enemy recapture, he remained at his post until the town was re-taken by our forces and was wounded by mortar to field hospitals. His devotion to duty and courage under fire resulted in immediate necessary treatment for the many casualties, which undoubtedly saved many lives and shortened the convalescence of others. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Ohio.

Private Sam E. Rice, 35104435, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 7 June 1944, at Chaf de Pons, France, Private Rice's Company contacted their attack position and a concentration of enemy troops. During the attack, all routes were heavily treed, making it difficult to recognize the identification flag. Private Rice, on a company, carried a flag and seriously hindering further operations. Private Rice realized that further casualties were imminent, and action against the enemy was held up. He revealed the identity of his unit and recognized. With utter disregard for his personal safety, he left his position and moved in the direction of the enemy, and by waving his identification flag, he was successful in indicating his company to friendly troops. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from California.

Private Walter H. ..., 314417, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, near Turcuville, France, while advancing against the enemy in face of heavy machine gun fire, Private Sanderson and another soldier, displaying great courage and initiative, jumped over a hedge and set up their light machine gun on an open road, succeeded in knocking out the enemy machine guns and dispersing a large number of enemy cavalry. As a result of this deed, the enemy was completely disorganized and Private Sanderson's company was able to continue the advance. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Ohio.

Private David O. Gifford, 35540051, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, near Turquerville, France, while advancing against the enemy in face of heavy machine gun fire, Private Gifford and another soldier, displaying great courage and initiative, jumped over a hedge and set up their light machine gun on an open road, succeeded in knocking out the enemy machine guns and dispersing a large number of enemy cavalry. As a result of this deed the enemy was completely disorganized and Private Gifford's company was able to continue the advance. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Ohio.

First Sergeant (then Staff Sergeant) Bruno E. Schroeder, 18154768, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On the night of 13 June 1944, near Carantan, France, while moving to a new Command Post location, the command group of his regimental headquarters became separated from its supporting unit. First Sergeant Schroeder without regard for personal danger, led a voluntary patrol from the supporting unit through enemy territory under heavy fire, successfully located the command group, returned under enemy fire and led the support to the protection of the command group. First Sergeant Schroeder's action resulted in the successful establishment and protection of the Command Post of his regiment. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Texas.

Staff Sergeant Harry A. Olawson, 19104638, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, about two and one half miles east of Carantan, France, Staff Sergeant Olawson displayed outstanding courage as a volunteer of a group assaulting enemy well positions. Crossing a 283 foot bridge in the face of strong enemy machine gun and small arms fire, Staff Sergeant Olawson and his group forced the enemy to temporarily withdraw. This enabled his own forces to reorganize against enemy counter attack. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Arizona.

Staff Sergeant Fredrick A. Balleau, 15118280, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, about two and one half miles east of Carantan, France, Staff Sergeant Balleau displayed outstanding courage as a volunteer of a group assaulting enemy well positions. Crossing a 283 foot bridge in the face of strong enemy machine gun and small arms fire, Staff Sergeant Balleau and his group forced the enemy to temporarily withdraw. This enabled his own forces to reorganize against enemy counter attack. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Michigan.

Award of Silver Star ----- Section I

I -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 500-43, 22 September 1943 and pursuant to authority contained in paragraph 5, section I, Circular 66, Headquarters First United States Army, 10 May 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following officers and enlisted men:

✓ Major Martin R. Wisely, O336513, Medical Corps, United States Army, for gallantry in action against an armed enemy. On 11 June 1944, near Carentan, France, while his organization was pinned down by intense enemy machine gun and mortar fire, Major Wisely, with complete disregard for his own personal safety, moved in to the front lines administering first aid and removing the wounded, thereby saving the lives of many wounded soldiers. His calmness and disregard for personal danger were outstanding. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Virginia.

Major Paul A. Danahy, O331017, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 5 June 1944, he parachuted dropped by parachute in the vicinity of St. Jores, France, approximately ten miles from his appointed drop zone in heavily held enemy territory. He assembled all available forces in the vicinity and started overland to make contact with friendly forces. Enroute, the party met with heavy enemy resistance and under Major Danahy's outstanding leadership, engaged the enemy successfully at several points, destroying several enemy vehicles. By fairly and skillful employment of his small force, Major Danahy caused confusion to the enemy as to the strength of our forces in the area and disrupted enemy defense plans. Major Danahy's courage and determination was an inspiration to his men and enabled his party to return to the main forces on D+2 without the loss of a man. His actions were a credit to himself and to the military service. Entered military service from Minnesota.

✓ First Lieutenant John P. McGirr, O1169243, Armored Field Artillery, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 5 June 1944, Lieutenant McGirr's Artillery battery landed on the beach near Les Dunes de Merreville, France, and took up position near the sea wall. A concentration of enemy artillery fire falling on the battery set an ammunition truck loaded with 105 millimeter ammunition on fire. With complete disregard for his own safety, Lieutenant McGirr left the comparative safety of his trench and rushed to the burning ammunition truck. Despite heavy enemy fire and the hazards of the burning ammunition, he initiated successful firefighting operations and successfully unloaded burning artillery ammunition. His gallantry saved valuable ammunition and denied the enemy a smoking target on the beach upon which he could make his artillery adjustment. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from New York.

First Sergeant Edward Branley, 31003859, Armored Field Artillery, United States Army, for gallantry in action. His organization was in action on Red Section of Utah Beach on the east coast of the Cotentin Peninsula, Normandy, France on 6 June 1944. Disregarding any shock or possible injuries sustained from having been knocked down three times by enemy shell fire, Sergeant Branley, with utter disregard for his own personal safety, displayed superior leadership and extraordinary bravery under enemy artillery fire. During the landing of his organization on the beach, he exposed himself numerous times to heavy concentrations of enemy fire and possible explosions from a burning ammunition truck to assist and direct the movement of the battalion trains from the beach. By this magnificent display of gallant and courageous action, he saved valuable cargo and ammunition from destruction. He was an inspiration to all in his unit. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

Master Sergeant David G. Herman, 14099540, Chemical Warfare Service, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, Sergeant Herman was dropped by parachute about 12 miles west of Cherbourg, France. He immediately organized a group of Signal personnel into a tactical group and functioned as its leader. While enroute to rejoin his Division Headquarters, his group was pinned down by heavy enemy machine gun fire. Without regard for his personal safety, he attacked the enemy positions with hand grenades, disorganizing the enemy and allowing his party to withdraw around the flank of the enemy position. His courage and initiative was largely instrumental in the return of his group to the Division Area. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered the military service from Louisiana.

Private Edison Leach, 15094712, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. During an engagement at Casso Addeville, France, on 8 June 1944, a supply train carrying essential food, medical supplies and ammunition was attacked by enemy machine gun fire. Private Leach, a member of the supply train, ignoring his personal danger, led the supply train through a concentration of heavy enemy fire to safe terrain. In the course of the action he destroyed an enemy machine gun single handed. The supply train was thus able to reach its destination. Private Leach's conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Private Kenneth J. Moore, 19186161, Medical Detachment, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 7 June 1944, a detachment of American parachutists attacked and seized the town of Addeville, France, held by an enemy infantry battalion, reinforced by heavy weapons. Our casualties were extremely high and Private Moore found himself and a surgical technician fifth grade to be the only remaining medical personnel in his battalion. Despite the continued mortar and automatic weapons fire in the immediate vicinity, he assisted in setting up an aid station and giving vital treatment to more than 75 casualties. Carrying out a regimental order, our parachutists evacuated the town and it was reoccupied by enemy forces. During the enemy reoccupation, he remained at his post and continued assisting in the treatment of the wounded until the town was reoccupied by friendly forces and the wounded were evacuated to field hospitals. By his extreme courage and determined sense of duty, he was instrumental in saving many lives. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from California.

Private First Class Gerald J. Lorraine, 39104951, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, at Le Grand Chemin, France, an enemy battery of four 88 millimeter guns protected by machine guns, was firing at short range on the beach, greatly impeding the landing of Allied troops. Private Lorraine's battalion attacked the battery position, but was stopped by direct fire. Private Lorraine, with a small group of soldiers made an assault directly into the battery positions. Without regard for his personal safety Private Lorraine attacked the enemy with hand grenades and sub-machine gun fire. Several times he picked up grenades which had been thrown by the enemy and threw them back into the positions. Private Lorraine led his small group in the assault on successive positions until the guns were destroyed and silenced. His outstanding bravery in this action enabled his battalion to advance and gain its objective. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from California.

Private First Class Andrew M. Robbins, 39103577, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 12 June 1944, his platoon was advancing down a major road en route to Oronotan, France. About one mile from Oronotan, it came upon an important intersection and found it to be covered by a concentration of enemy machine gun, sniper and mortar fire. Private Robbins, realizing that the only point from which his machine gun could operate effectively was on the other side of the junction, braved the danger of enemy fire and crossed the intersection. He then set up his gun on top of a wall and took up the fire against the enemy. On two occasions his weapon was knocked to the ground by enemy fire but in each case he leaped to the ground, picked up the gun and returned it to its original position. Later he set up the weapon on top of a building in support of the defense against a strong enemy counter attack. Suddenly an explosion from an 88 millimeter shell lifted him from his position and hurled him to the ground with terrific force. Despite painful injuries, he lost no time in getting back to his position and immediately put the machine gun into action. His bravery and extreme devotion to duty made him instrumental in neutralizing the enemy from that sector. His actions were in accordance with the highest traditions of the military service. Entered military service from California.

Major Lawrence J. Logano, Jr., 022937, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On the morning of 6 June 1944, Major Logano was a member of a mixed detachment of paratroopers advancing on the small town of Pouppeville, France. When the advance guard was held up by enemy resistance on the outskirts of the town, Major Logano worked his way forward and with utter disregard of his own safety, under direct small arms fire of the enemy, personally directed the attack on the enemy position. While engaged in this action he was severely wounded. Despite his injury, he continued to direct the action until the enemy resistance was knocked out. His actions contributed materially to the gaining of the Pouppeville Causeway, assured the safe passage inland of large numbers of Allied troops, and the eventual establishment of the Allied beachhead in that area. Entered military service from California.

AWARD OF SOLDIER'S MEDAL

Under the provisions of paragraph 6, Army Regulations 600-45, a Soldier's Medal is awarded by the Commanding General, 101st Airborne Division, to the following named officer:

ROBERT G. GOODALL, FIRST LIEUTENANT, 326th Airborne Medical Company, United States Army. For heroism on the Second Army Maneuvers near Dixon Springs, Tennessee, on 13 July 1943. Acting as umpire in Operation 2, FIRST LIEUTENANT GOODALL noticed that a parachutist had landed in a nearby pond. With complete disregard for his own safety and fully clothed, he borrowed a knife from a nearby soldier and went to the rescue of the parachutist. The soldier having disappeared below the water, FIRST LIEUTENANT GOODALL went below the surface and succeeded in cutting him free from his harness and equipment. After bringing him to the bank he administered artificial respiration with the assistance of other soldiers until the rescued soldier regained consciousness. The heroism and quick thinking of FIRST LIEUTENANT GOODALL reflects great credit upon himself and the military service. Residence at appointment: Hermitage, Tennessee.

Award of Silver Star ----- Section I
Award of Purple Heart ----- Section II

I -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943 and pursuant to authority contained in paragraph 5, Section I, Circular 66, Headquarters First United States Army, 10 May 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following officers and enlisted men:

Major Douglas T. Davidson, Jr., 0403392, Medical Corps, United States Army, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 11 June 1944, Major Davidson voluntarily came forward from the Regimental Aid Station and led a group of litter bearers across the causeway leading into Caranten to evacuate a large group of wounded men. With utter disregard for his own safety, and being continuously subjected to fire of all types, Major Davidson walked down the middle of the road about 100 yards in advance of the litter bearers armed with nothing but a Red Cross Flag. Since the Red Cross Flag was not visible to the enemy along a major portion of this road, the enemy fire did not lift until Major Davidson had crossed the last of four bridges. He continued along to the enemy lines and stayed there until all of the casualties had been evacuated. This action undoubtedly saved the lives of about twenty seriously wounded men and served as an inspiration to the entire command. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Delaware.

Captain John L. Strauss, 0395942, Parachute Field Artillery, United States Army, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 8 June 1944, in the vicinity of Houaville, France, three companies of a parachute battalion were pinned down by enemy machine gun, rifle, and mortar fire. In the absence of the regularly assigned forward observer, who had become a casualty, the Battalion Commander attempted to control the supporting artillery fire, but due to the unfavorable terrain, lack of observation, and his own position, these attempts were unsuccessful. Captain Strauss, the Artillery Liaison Officer for the Regiment, voluntarily came forward, set up an artillery OP in an extremely exposed position in the third story of a barn immediately in rear of the front lines. With utter disregard for his own safety, and while under continuous enemy machine gun and rifle fire, Captain Strauss successfully directed the artillery fire which allowed the battalion to regain its advance and attain its objective. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Ohio.

First Lieutenant Leiford L. Johnson, 0415404, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 17 June 1944, in the area west of Caranten, France, "F" Company, Lieutenant Johnson commanding, was the basic company of a battalion attack. During the attack, the leading platoon was pinned to the ground in a exposed position by an extremely heavy and accurate concentration of enemy mortar fire. Lieutenant Johnson, with complete disregard for his own safety, moved to a forward position exposed to heavy machine gun and machine pistol fire from enemy positions 100 yards distant, took personal command of the platoon and led it to a more covered position. In the meantime, an enemy mortar platoon developed around the left flank and his platoon was cut off by heavy machine gun fire. Friendly tanks coming into the area came came under this heavy enemy fire. Lieutenant Johnson realizing that the tank commander was not cognizant of the situation left cover and with utter disregard for his own safety went to the tanks under aimed machine pistol fire from an enemy position some 75 yards distant, and personally directed the tanks in a successful attack on the position. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from North Carolina.

Technician Fifth Grade Thomas W. Stephens, 34235748, Medical Detachment, Glider Infantry, United States Army, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 11 June 1944, in the vicinity of Cherentan, France, Technician Fifth Grade Stephens successfully evacuated two men from an open field that was covered by enemy rifle and mortar fire. Several previous efforts had been made by litter bearers to evacuate these two men, but on each occasion the enemy fire had forced the litter bearers to retire. Technician Fifth Grade Stephens, working in an Aid Station, heard of the situation and volunteered to go out to the two men. With utter disregard for his own safety, Technician Fifth Grade Stephens made two trips through the open field and evacuated both of the wounded soldiers. On the afternoon of 15 June 1944, in the vicinity of Meautic, France, a man was wounded by a sniper in front of the unit outpost line. Although advised by the officer in command of the immediate area that the field in which this wounded man was lying was being swept by heavy machine gun and rifle fire, Technician Fifth Grade Stephens again volunteered to rescue the wounded man. He advanced beyond the outpost line and although frequently fired upon by the enemy, was successful in evacuating the wounded man. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Louisiana.

Private First Class Donald J. Kessler, 36289132, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, while advancing with his battalion towards the battalion objective, a wounded officer was observed in a position swept by enemy machine gun and mortar fire and unable to move. Despite this heavy enemy machine gun and mortar fire, Private First Class Kessler, realising the wounded officer's helpless condition, and realizing that his position was becoming increasingly dangerous, discarded his equipment, and with utter disregard for his own personal safety, left the cover of the hedge row and crawled through 100 yards of open fire swept ground to get the wounded officer and bring him back to the cover of the hedge row. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Wisconsin.

Private First Class Alama R. Whitfield, 34234011, Glider Infantry, United States Army, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 12 June 1944, Private First Class Whitfield was on a road reconnaissance in the vicinity of Segueville, France, with other members of his troop. The enemy ambushed the unit and opened fire from both sides of the road throughout the entire length of the column. Although the unit immediately took cover on both sides of the road, Private First Class Whitfield remained with machine gun mounted in his jeep and with complete disregard for his own safety, and in the face of white rifle machine gun and rifle fire, kept the enemy with him and directed continuous machine gun fire that the enemy placed down, thus enabling his unit to withdraw. Private First Class Whitfield remained at his gun throughout the entire action, which lasted approximately one hour. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Louisiana.

GO No. 12, HQ 101st AB Div, 4 July 44, (cont'd)

Private Ralph B. Casas, 39543741, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 7 June 1944, his company was making a flanking attack on a well equipped enemy defending an important objective about one mile from Nouansville, France. In the attack his platoon leader was seriously wounded in the upper hip and back by enemy machine gun fire. So severe were his injuries that he was unable to move and was lying in a position covered by enemy fire. Private Casas was, at the time, on the other side of a trail completely covered by fire from the enemy machine gun. Realizing that if not rescued immediately, his platoon commander would probably lose his life, Private Casas left his position and with utter disregard for his own safety, moved across the trail through the enemy fire and reached the wounded officer. In spite of heavy enemy small arms fire, he dragged the lieutenant to a defilade position where first aid could be given and evacuation was possible. By his display of outstanding courage and fearlessness, he saved his officer's life. His actions were in accordance with the highest traditions of the service. Entered military service from California.

Private Allan T. Emery, 19631401, Parachute Infantry, United States Army, for gallantry in action. On 11 June 1944, during an attack by his organization on Ocrestan, France, from the direction of Pont Du Dour, Private Emery displayed great courage in continuing to use 81 millimeter and 60 millimeter mortars in the face of heavy enemy fire from 88 millimeter guns, 80 millimeter mortars, and accurate enemy sniper fire. Heavy enemy resistance pinned down the assault companies at the bridge over Le Madelin river and a fierce battle ensued. He remained at his post, firing all available 81 millimeter and 60 millimeter mortar ammunition until the threat of enemy counter-attack was past. His continuance at his post, though several men were wounded beside him by enemy sniper fire, served as a gallant example of heroism for his comrades and greatly aided in repulsing the enemy counter-attacks. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from California.

II -- AWARD OF PURPLE HEART -- Under provisions of AR 300-45, 22 September 1943 an award, the Purple Heart is awarded to the following named enlisted men:

AWARD OF SOLDIER'S MEDAL

By direction of the President, under the provisions of Act of Congress approved 2 July 1926, (Pub. 8, 702 1926), and authority granted by Change No. 6, AR 600-45, dated 28 October 1942, a Soldier's Medal is awarded by the Commanding General, 101st Airborne Division, to the following named enlisted man:

Sergeant George R. Fullett (Army Serial No. 16085134), Company "B", 506th Parachute Infantry. For heroism on the Second Army Maneuvers near Dixon Springs, Tennessee, on 13 July 1943. While participating in a parachute jump with his company, Sergeant Fullett, upon nearing the ground, noticed that a parachutist had landed in a pond. Immediately upon landing on the bank of this pond, he quickly removed his equipment, and with utter disregard for his own safety, promptly swam to the soldier, who had by this time disappeared below the surface of the water. After unsuccessfully attempting to swim with the soldier to the safety of the banks, he swam to the soldier's parachute, which was dragging in the water, and then successfully assisted in bringing the soldier to the bank. The heroism and quick thinking of Sergeant Fullett reflects great credit upon himself and the military service. Residence at enlistment: Muskegan, Michigan.

BATTLE HONORS

Under the provisions of Section IV, Circular No. 333, War Department, 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in letter, Headquarters First United States Army, AFPO 230, U. S. Army, file 200.6 (A), subject: "Approval of Unit Citations," dated 31 August 1944, the following units are cited for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty.

The 101st Airborne Signal Company is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy between 6 and 11 June 1944, during the invasion of France. In the assault upon the European continent, elements of the 101st Airborne Signal Company landed in France in four echelons, by parachute, by glider, and by sea. In each instance, upon landing they were met by heavy enemy fire that inflicted numerous casualties. It was necessary that they fight their way as Infantry against stubborn and determined enemy resistance to reach the Division Command Post. Despite intense enemy artillery, mortar, machine gun and small arms fire and the loss of much vital equipment, communications with their rear echelon in England were established on the afternoon of D-Day, when a command net was also established. Members of the company, though repeatedly subjected to enemy fire, serviced equipment and re-equipped the Division units with communications equipment. During the fierce fight for the town of Carentan, constant wire communication was maintained between the command and all units. The wire section laid wire for 60 continuous hours without rest and under constant enemy fire, and then, with but two hours rest, they continued to lay new wire and maintain existing lines for an additional 36 hours. Though not equipped to handle other than assault wire, the section laid long lines of heavy wire with 1/4-ton trucks and trailers, laying the wire by hand. The courage, aggressiveness and devotion to duty shown by members of the 101st Airborne Signal Company under the most difficult and hazardous of conditions are worthy of the highest praise, and are in keeping with the highest traditions of the Armed Forces.

The Military Police Platoon, 101st Airborne Division is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy between 6 and 11 June 1944, during the invasion of France. In the assault upon the European continent, the Military Police Platoon, 101st Airborne Division, was committed in three echelons, arriving by parachute, by glider, and by sea. Despite the heavy enemy antiaircraft, mortar, machine gun and rifle fire encountered by all echelons, they fought their way against stubborn enemy resistance to the previously designated Division Command Post. Upon arrival they assisted a small force of parachute troops in attacking the town of Pouppeville, France. They not only cleared the area of enemy snipers, but acted as assault infantry troops in destroying organized enemy resistance. As soon as the tactical situation permitted, they established and operated the initial prisoner of war enclosure for the Division, and took charge of traffic control and control of civilians in occupied areas. Though subjected to constant enemy artillery fire, the personnel of the Military Police Platoon, 101st Airborne Division, conducted themselves in an exceptionally meritorious manner, and in accordance with the highest standards of the military service.

Battery "A", 81st Airborne Antiaircraft Battalion, is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy between 6 and 11 June 1944, during the invasion of France. Battery "A", 81st Airborne Antiaircraft Battalion, landed in the vicinity of Hiesville, France, at approximately H minus 2-1/2 hours of D-Day. The landings were made on small fields which in many cases contained devices to prevent a successful airborne invasion, and upon landing these units met heavy machine gun and rifle fire. Securing the greater portion of their equipment in spite of the heavy enemy fire, which involved great danger to every individual, the battery proceeded to a previously selected location and made contact with the friendly parachute troops whom they were to support. Until this contact was made, the personnel of Battery "A" fought as infantrymen even though their training as such was limited. As the primary antitank defense of the Division, in direct support of the infantry units, the battery successfully engaged enemy armored forces in counterattacks in the vicinity of Carentan and destroyed three Mark III tanks. Although suffering many casualties prior to the engagement in the assault on Carentan, the personnel of Battery "A" conducted themselves in an exceptionally meritorious manner and accomplished their mission of establishing direct antitank support for the infantry units of the Division. Their actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service.

Battery "B", 81st Airborne Antiaircraft Battalion, is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy between 6 and 11 June 1944, during the invasion of France. Battery "B", 81st Airborne Antiaircraft Battalion, landed in the vicinity of Viesville, France, at approximately H minus 2-1/2 hours of D-Day. The landings were made on small fields which in many cases contained devices to prevent a successful airborne invasion, and upon landing, these units met heavy machine gun and rifle fire. Securing the greater portion of their equipment in spite of the heavy enemy fire, which involved great danger to every individual, the battery proceeded to a previously selected location and made contact with the friendly parachute troops whom they were to support. Until this contact was made, the personnel of Battery "B" fought as infantrymen, even though their training as such was limited. Their actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service.

The 326th Airborne Medical Company is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy between 6 and 11 June 1944, during the invasion of France. The 326th Airborne Medical Company was committed to action in the invasion of Europe by parachute, by glider, and by sea. Though the parachute and glider echelons met a heavy resistance upon landing, they regrouped and created a hospital in the vicinity of the Division Command Post, and, with the arrival of the seaborne echelon, the hospital was expanded and became completely operative. By working under the most hazardous conditions for extended periods of time, the 326th Airborne Medical Company successfully collected, treated and evacuated to the beach a total of almost 1,000 patients on D-Day, D plus 1, and D plus 2 during which time there was no other facility available to the Division. Drivers and aid men performed many heroic acts in evacuating wounded and injured from the front lines, often exposing themselves to heavy artillery and mortar fire, as well as small arms fire. The officer and enlisted personnel of this unit functioned in a superior manner, going without food and sleep for extended periods and carrying out treatment and evacuation when it seemed humanly impossible for them to carry on because of fatigue and overwork. Their actions are in accordance with the very highest standards and reflect credit on the military establishment of the United States.

The 326th Airborne Engineer Battalion is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action against the enemy between 6 and 11 June 1944, during the invasion of France. When the first echelon of the 326th Airborne Engineer Battalion was landed by parachute at H minus 5 hours of D-Day, because of the widely scattered drops and because none of the elements landed on their designated drop zone, they attached themselves to the various parachute infantry elements nearby and for the ensuing 36 hours fought as Infantry in order to reach their designated assembling points. In carrying out their assigned engineer missions, they participated in every major engagement of the entire Division. After the seaborne elements of this unit arrived and the unit as a whole went into operation, they undertook task after task under the most hazardous and difficult conditions and all were accomplished outstandingly and with contempt for the danger involved. The successful assault on Carentan by parachute infantry was made possible by the construction and maintenance of a bridge across the Douve River by the 326th Airborne Engineer Battalion. Where they could not build bridges, they ferried either by pontoon boat or raft; they operated ingeniously and improvised wherever necessary in carrying out not only their normal duties, but whatever tasks were at hand and required assistance. Their actions were instrumental in obtaining decisive results and are in accordance with the highest standards of the military service.

XI — COMMENDATION — The following named officers and enlisted men of the 506th Parachute Infantry are commended for meritorious service in action. On 26 September 1944, in Holland, their supply convoy of twenty-two vehicles was halted by enemy fire from both flanks, forcing all personnel to seek cover by the roadside. All movement was restricted by enemy small arms fire. Enemy artillery fire began destroying vehicles forward of the convoy. Immediate appraisal of the situation prompted these men to leave their protective cover, return to the vehicles, turn them around, and take them to safety. As a result of these actions, twenty of the twenty-two loaded vehicles were saved. The remaining two were cut off by enemy tanks and destroyed.

First Lieutenant Richard A. Fort 0-462569 FA

RECOMMENDATION -- The following named enlisted men of units indicated were recommended for meritorious service in action. On the night of 24 September 1944, near Vessel, Holland, wire communications between Division Headquarters and the 327th Infantry Regiment had been severed by a large force of enemy tanks and trucks. It was vitally important that wire communication be re-established. In spite of the enemy force, intense darkness, and unfamiliarity with the roads and terrain, these men laid wire around the flank of the enemy positions, and communication was again established before daybreak.

The 101st Airborne Division Headquarters and Headquarters Company is cited for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty in action on the northern coast of Normandy, France. Before daybreak on 6 June 1944, the parachute and glider echelon of this division landed in the vicinity of St. Come-du-Mont, France. They were widely dispersed and encountered heavy enemy fire from well-entrenched positions. Many fierce and vicious battles were fought by small detachments of airborne soldiers and strongly emphasized as the parachutists and glider men moved to assemble and establish a command post. Numerous acts of gallantry and self-sacrifice were observed and successful efforts of the officers and men of Headquarters and Headquarters Company. Although this unit was chiefly composed of clerks, technicians and specialists, usually not considered as combat troops, they wiped out many enemy pill boxes, artillery positions and other installations. Under extremely difficult conditions they established the Division Command Post at the pre-designated location, established contact with the scattered elements of the Division and organized them into a unified command which successfully accomplished its mission of insuring the establishment of the beachhead Utah. The second glider echelon landed near Hiesville, France, on the evening of D-Day. Despite heavy enemy resistance encountered in the landing fields, this group successfully reached the Division Command Post and organized the command group then operating the command post. The combined efforts of Headquarters and Headquarters Company in establishing and protecting the Division Command Post in the face of bitter enemy resistance enabled the Commanding General and his staff to formulate and direct the successful execution of the plans for the Division.

The 501st Parachute Infantry Regiment is cited for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty in action in the initial assault on the northern coast of Normandy, France. In the early morning of 6 June 1944, the 501st Parachute Infantry descended by parachute in the swamps in the vicinity of Carantan, France. Widely dispersed during the descent the regiment suffered heavy casualties from determined enemy resistance. Small groups assembled whenever possible and fought their way to the assembly area. On route many enemy strong points and pill boxes were liquidated through acts of gallantry and disregard of self by individuals of the regiment. According to plans the bridges and crossings of the Douve River were seized and held in the face of heavy enemy fire. This prevented the enemy from bringing up reinforcements to prevent the beach landing of the assault forces of the VII Corps. The determination and gallantry of the regiment protected the south flank of the VII Corps, enabled a rapid inland advance of the assault troops, and insured the establishment of the Allied beachhead in France.

The 502d Parachute Infantry Regiment is cited for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty in action in the initial assault on the northern coast of Normandy, France. The 502d Parachute Infantry descended by parachute in the vicinity of St. Pierre-de-Vareville, France, on 6 June 1944. During the drop by parachute the personnel of the regiment were widely dispersed in small groups and were widely dispersed. Many casualties were

The determined action of the 506th Parachute Infantry made possible the successful landing and rapid advance inland of the seaborne assault troops, and assured the establishment of the Allied beachhead in France.

The 506th Parachute Infantry Regiment is cited for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty in action in the initial assault on the northern coast of Normandy, France. On the morning of 6 June 1944, in the vicinity of St. Come-du-Mont, France, the 506th Parachute Infantry descended by parachute in the early morning. Elements of the regiment were widely spread, preventing a rapid assembly of the unit. To reach the assembly area small groups had to battle through well fortified positions. Many acts of gallantry and self sacrifice were performed by the officers and enlisted men in reducing pill boxes and heavily fortified enemy positions. Just prior to the landing of the seaborne forces the high ground overlooking the beaches was seized and held by the 506th Parachute Infantry. Immediately thereafter, in the face of determined and fierce enemy resistance, the regiment seized and kept open the main causeway leading to the beaches. This action led to the successful and rapid advance inland of the seaborne forces and assured the establishment of the beachhead in Western Europe.

The 377th Parachute Field Artillery Battalion is cited for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance of duty in action in the initial assault on the northern coast of Normandy, France. Making an early morning descent by parachute in the vicinity of St. Martin-de-Varreville, France, on 6 June 1944, the 377th Parachute Field Artillery Battalion was widely dispersed initially due to a bad drop. The battalion suffered heavy casualties from enemy fire delivered from strongly fortified positions. With less than one-fifth of the battalion strength, the 377th Parachute Field Artillery Battalion recovered one 75mm gun and immediately brought it into support of the hard-pressed infantry. Some members of the battalion, not being able to reach their assembly area, fought with infantry units. Others who were dropped miles from their drop zone fought in individual groups, harassing the enemy and disorganizing their forces for many days until they contacted our own troops. The determined action of the 377th Parachute Field Artillery Battalion made possible the successful landing and rapid advance inland of the seaborne assault troops and assured the establishment of the Allied beachhead in France.

AWARD OF SILVER STAR — Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following named personnel for gallantry in action against the enemy in Holland:

FIRST LIEUTENANT SILEPTER BLACKMON, O 413 246, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 22 September 1944, his battalion was attacking the town of Schijndel, Holland, when an enemy force estimated at one hundred men supported by 20mm cannons and 88mm guns was reported advancing toward the battalion's right flank. Lieutenant Blackmon was ordered to move his platoon to meet and block this force. He made contact with the enemy, disposed his men, and, without regard for his personal safety, remained in an exposed position directing his platoon's attack while under extremely intense shelling. He was on one occasion knocked off his feet by an 88mm shell fragment which struck his helmet and was later painfully wounded when a 20mm shell knocked his carbine from his hand. Lieutenant Blackmon refused to be treated or evacuated until he had finally stopped the enemy attack and accomplished his mission. His personal bravery and sound judgment inspired his men to continue the fight against overwhelming odds. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Georgia.

First Sergeant Kenneth J. Whalen, 6 861 477, Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 25 September 1944 in the vicinity of Vechel, Holland, an enemy mortar barrage knocked out the machine gun crews of the company to which he was attached. Reinforcements were sent up to the line but suffered heavy casualties, including the loss of all officers, causing the remaining elements to become disorganized. Learning of the situation, First Sergeant Whalen volunteered to go forward and reorganize the platoon. He advanced 300 yards under heavy enemy artillery, mortar, and small arms fire, and reorganized a defensive line. He remained in this position for several hours directing the men, thereby holding the line against strong enemy counterattacks. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Wisconsin.

Staff Sergeant William J. King, 35 044 105, Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 7 October 1944 in the vicinity of Ophersdon, Holland, his platoon was subjected to heavy machine gun fire from an enemy position in a nearby house.

position from which he could approach the enemy strong point without being discovered. Reaching the house, he threw hand grenades into the position, knocking out the enemy gun and setting the house on fire. Although slightly wounded in this action, he returned to his squad and further exposed himself to the enemy fire in order to direct the fire of his men upon the enemy. When an enemy battalion supported by tanks launched another counterattack, he moved up and down the lines personally selecting targets and directing the fire of his squad. During this action, he also acted as artillery observer, and adjusted fire on the attacking force. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Kentucky.

Staff Sergeant Alexander Spurr, 15 331 136 (then Private First Class), Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 25 September 1944, during an engagement with the enemy in the vicinity of St. Oedenrode, Holland, his squad leader was wounded while crawling up a ditch. Staff Sergeant Spurr assumed the duties of squad leader for his mortar squad. He ran one hundred yards in the face of enemy small arms fire, jumped into the ditch where his wounded squad leader lay, treated him, and removed him to a position of safety. Observing three enemy tanks approximately seventy-five yards to his front, Staff Sergeant Spurr organized his mortar squad and directed its fire on the tanks. Although the tanks reached positions as close as seventy-five feet from his men, he so skillfully directed their movements that they were able to evade the fire of the tanks. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Indiana.

Sergeant Gordon W. Yates, 39 254 828, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 6 October 1944 in the vicinity of Opheusden, Holland, a numerically superior enemy force attacked the position of his unit. The artillery barrage of the enemy was so heavy and continuous that communication lines were being severed repeatedly. Sergeant Yates worked laboriously under intense enemy fire to repair the lines. He remained on the front lines until the unit supply of ammunition became dangerously low. Despite the intensity of the enemy fire, he voluntarily returned over open terrain, secured mortar and machine gun ammunition from the ammunition dump, and, burdened with ammunition and food for part of the fighting force, returned safely to the front lines. His success in repairing vital lines of communication and securing ammunition under adverse conditions contributed greatly to the annihilation of the attacking enemy force. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Arizona.

Corporal William R. Canfield, 38 393 712, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 30 October 1944, near Heteren, Holland, he volunteered as a member of a patrol to cross the Neder Rijn into enemy territory and reconnoiter inside the enemy lines to a distance of at least five miles, and remain for thirty hours in order to get identifications and dispositions of at least one enemy unit confronting the 101st Airborne Division. Knowing full well the distance to be traveled, the time the patrol was to remain in enemy territory, and the danger involved, Corporal Canfield cheerfully accepted the position of second in command, and also volunteered to carry the 3.0 radio set and act as radio operator. Despite the added weight of the radio, he maintained the speed equal to the other members of the patrol and kept the formation intact at all times. Upon reaching a house which they used as an observation post, Corporal Canfield established and maintained communication with his regiment on the south side of the river for twenty hours. Remaining in this observation post on the Arnhem - Utrecht road during daylight hours, Corporal Canfield supervised the capture of many German prisoners who wandered unsuspecting into the building. While returning to our own lines with its prisoners, the patrol encountered an enemy strong point well entrenched. With complete disregard for his personal safety, Corporal Canfield, armed with a sub-machine gun, rushed to the head of the group and forced the surrender of the entrenched enemy single handed before it had time to sound the alarm. Largely through his courage and aggressive leadership, the patrol was able to return to friendly lines with much valuable information of the enemy's strength and dispositions, and with thirty-two prisoners taken without the loss of a single one of his comrades. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Oklahoma.

00 44, No. 101st Airborne Division, 101st Airborne Division, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 6 October 1944, his company had its command post in a farmhouse in the vicinity of Elst, Holland. When enemy mortar and artillery fire covered the area around the house, two men were wounded by shell fragments and lay helpless in an open field. Technician Fifth Grade Hall immediately went to the aid of his comrades, although the enemy barrage was very heavy at the time, and carried them to the shelter of a brick wall. While giving a blood plasma to one of the casualties, an enemy 88mm shell hit the wall and the falling bricks broke Technician Fifth Grade Hall's leg. Despite his painful injury, he continued the treatment of his comrades. Only after the other wounded men were carried to safety did he consent to be carried to the command post. When he was returned to the farmhouse he learned of two other men lying wounded in the basement. He again disregarded his own injury, and insisted that he be carried to where he could treat these wounded men. When provisions had been made to evacuate the wounded, he would not leave until all other casualties had been evacuated. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Rhode Island.

Private First Class Edward S. Pernusch, 16 156 333 (then Private), Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 10 October 1944 in the vicinity of Opheusden, Holland, Private First Class Pernusch, armed with a Browning Automatic Rifle, was in a defensive position in a ditch. The enemy had succeeded during the hours of darkness in reaching and occupying a ditch fifteen yards to his front and parallel to it. From this position the enemy was able to deliver effective fire on friendly troops, and was infiltrating through the main line of resistance. Private First Class Pernusch, seeing that the grazing fire of the enemy in front prevented his platoon from checking the enemy infiltration, and realizing that his own flat trajectory fire could not reach the enemy in the ditch, left the cover of his foxhole, moved fifteen yards to the ditch in front, and with complete disregard for his personal safety, advanced up the ditch spraying the enemy with fire from his weapon, killing seven men and wounding many more. This courageous action diminished enemy fire on his platoon, enabling it to repulse the enemy attack. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Wisconsin.

Private Donald G. Baker, 19 138 265, Airborne Signal Corps, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 19 September 1944 the Division Command Post in the vicinity of Zen, Holland was attacked by the enemy. Private Baker crawled to a position 300 yards beyond front lines under heavy enemy machine gun and artillery fire in order to reach a position from which he could deliver accurate rocket launcher fire on an enemy machine gun emplacement. Having silenced the machine gun he returned to his own lines under cover of darkness and procured two captured enemy machine guns which had to be assembled before use. As he was completing the assembly of one gun the enemy renewed the attack. Private Baker quickly instructed a comrade how to operate the weapon and then assembled the other machine gun and manned it himself. Through his courage, aggressiveness, and skill in the use of foreign weapons the enemy attack was stopped, thus saving the Command Post. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from California.

Private Abe Levin, 36 326 168, Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 7 October 1944 his company was in a defensive position near Opheusden, Holland, when the enemy launched a strong counterattack. Although exposed to enemy artillery and mortar fire, Private Levin set up and fired his 60mm mortar until enemy 88mm gun fire knocked out his weapon. He then picked up a rifle and joined other riflemen in the assault. Seeing a nearby Browning Automatic Rifle team knocked out of action, Private Levin immediately retrieved the automatic weapon and fired it until he ran out of ammunition. Again without a weapon, he ran to his company command post where he secured the parts necessary to repair his mortar. He then returned to his former position, repaired the mortar and opened fire on the enemy. His courageous actions aided greatly in repelling the counterattack. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Illinois.

AR 600-45,
22 September 1943, the Silver Star is awarded to the following named man for gallantry in action against the enemy in France:

Private First Class Lloyd R. Smith, 32 595 959, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 22 September 1944 his battalion was subjected to strong enemy opposition during an attack near Vechol, Holland, and was forced to withdraw and reorganize. Learning that a comrade was wounded before the withdrawal, Private First Class Smith and another aid man crawled forward one hundred yards with a litter to where the wounded man was lying. The enemy at this time opened up with machine gun and 75mm gun fire. Private First Class Smith and his companion, disregarding the danger of the enemy fire, carried the wounded man to a position of safety, thereby saving him from death or capture. In a later action, he was mortally wounded while attempting to reach two wounded scouts. Throughout these actions, Private First Class Smith displayed outstanding qualities of courage and devotion to duty. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from New Jersey.

III — AWARD OF SILVER STAR — Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following named officer for gallantry in action against the enemy in France:

Captain Paul M. Cote, 01 286 087 (then First Lieutenant), Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944 his battalion landed by parachute near Hiesville, France, and was assigned the mission of protecting the Division Command Post. The drop was scattered due to heavy cloud formations and anti-aircraft fire, and only a small group of approximately eighty-five men were in the assembly area. The group was directed to attack and hold the town of Pouppeville so that the advance of seaborne forces would be unhampered. During the attack, Captain Cote, the S-2, took over the duties of S-3, in addition to his own, and personally reconnoitered the area before the attack was initiated. He frequently carried messages to attacking platoons and on several occasions assisted the platoon leaders by going from man to man and encouraging them to move forward. Although continually exposed to sniper fire, he personally directed the fire fight thereby aiding materially in bringing about a quick coordinated attack which forced the enemy to surrender. At one time he personally neutralized a heavily fortified enemy strong point with hand grenades and carbine fire. During the entire action he displayed inspiring leadership and high devotion to duty. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Michigan.

IV — AWARD OF SILVER STAR OAK LEAF CLUSTER — Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, having been awarded the Silver Star by former order, an Oak Leaf Cluster is awarded to the following named officers for gallantry in action against the enemy in Normandy, France:

Lieutenant Colonel Julian J. Ewell, 021 791, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 8 June 1944, his battalion was attacking enemy positions in the vicinity of St. Come-du-Mont, France. When the assault companies became disorganized and subjected to heavy enemy mortar and artillery fire, Lieutenant Colonel Ewell personally supervised the reorganization, despite heavy enemy fire, and directed the attack in securing an important road intersection. Moving to a forward position exposed to enemy fire, he directed the fire of his men and led them in an attack on a strongly defended hill. Following the capture of the hill the enemy made determined attacks to repel friendly forces, but Lieutenant Colonel Ewell, personally coordinating the attack of one of his companies and a force of three light tanks, enveloped the enemy's flank and enabled the Division attack to move so rapidly that it forced the enemy to withdraw, leaving behind great quantities of equipment and supplies. Lieutenant Colonel Ewell's courage and leadership were an inspiration to all in his command and his actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Georgia.

...serving with the Army of the United States, and distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 12 June 1944 he was leading his battalion in its advance to the regimental objective which was the high ground south of Mont Martin-en-Graignes, France. The enemy in that sector were well entrenched and fired on Lieutenant Colonel [redacted] and his men at very close range. There was considerable hand-to-hand fighting. He fought with his men and on one occasion personally accounted for two of the enemy. Reorganizing his forces, he continued on, contacted elements of another division, and with this added manpower, launched an attack and captured the town. He then pushed to the regimental objective, secured the high ground south of his town and organized it for defense. Lieutenant Colonel [redacted] frequently exposed himself to enemy fire in order to check the positions and coordinate the fires of his command. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from [redacted].
