I -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following named personnel for gallantry in action against the enemy in Normandy, France:

FIRST LIEUTENANT RALPH B. GEHAUF, O1 295 535, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 10 - 11 June 1944, in the vicinity of Carantan, France, Lieutenant Gehauf volunteered to reconnoiter a forward route through enemy positions across the Douve River. During the night he succeeded in crossing four bridges along the route under enemy fire. After crossing the fourth bridge he and his patrol were pinned down by enemy fire. Sending three messengers back to the battalion with information as to the location and strength of the enemy in the locality, Lieutenant Gehauf and the remaining men in the patrol continued to collect information regarding enemy machine gun positions and other enemy emplacements. The following day when his battalion was ordered to attack, Lieutenant Gehauf led the battalion column in the assault, and, despite heavy enemy fire, was able to cross the bridges. Although pinned down a second time, he directed artillery fire on enemy installations which he had spotted the previous night. By directing effective artillery fire, Lieutenant Gehauf enabled his battalion to infiltrate across the river and successfully attack with the bayonet the following morning. During this attack Lieutenant Gehauf was wounded and forced to be evacuated. His outstanding courage, initiative, and inspiring leadership were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Maryland.

Private Donald W. Brininstool, 16 108 741, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 6 June 1944, he was in charge of a group of nine men attacking in the vicinity of Raveville, France. This group was subjected to heavy enemy fire from a platoon of enemy riflemen reinforced by a machine gun located in a well entrenched position. Realizing the importance of the continued advance of the main body, Private Brininstool immediately led his small force against the numerically superior enemy. Through the aggressiveness and initiative of Private Brininstool, ten of the enemy were killed, thirty were captured, and an ammunition dump, two reconnaissance cars, and one staff car were captured. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Michigan.

II -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR (Posthumous) -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, the Silver Star is awarded posthumously to the following named personnel for gallantry in action against the enemy in Normandy, France:

CAPTAIN FRED A. OWENS, O1 295 795, (then First Lieutenant), Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 7 June 1944, in the vicinity of Carantan, France, his regiment was in a defensive position around the vital canal locks; when enemy troops of unknown strength were observed crossing open ground toward the concealment of the woods, Captain Owens took a machine gun and three volunteers and crossed the open ground to meet and halt them. When he opened fire, the enemy climbed trees to locate its source. Captain Owens, standing erect in full view, sprayed the trees with machine gun fire, holding the weapon in his hands. The gun jammed twice and the shortage of ammunition forced the group to withdraw. By skillful displacement with only thirty rounds of ammunition, Captain Owens and his group were able to draw the enemy forward until they came in range of the fortified positions on the defensive line. Shortly afterward, the enemy, a battalion in strength, surrendered. Through the outstanding courage, prowess and valiant leadership displayed by Captain Owens many lives were saved and the enemy were prevented from reaching a position from where they could have placed effective fire on the vital defensive positions. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Ohio.

FIRST LIEUTENANT DONALD C. ALEXANDER, O 402 857, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 13 June 1944, Lieutenant Alexander's platoon was base platoon for his company in an attack on well prepared enemy positions on commanding ground. Due largely to the aggressive leadership of Lieutenant Alexander, his platoon pushed rapidly ahead despite heavy enemy fire. A strong enemy counterattack developed on the left flank of the platoon. Heavy enemy automatic weapons and mortar fire pinned the entire company to the ground. A friendly tank in support of the company appeared on the left of the position, and, not realizing the situation of the company, continued toward the front. Lieutenant Alexander, with complete disregard for his personal safety, left his covered position and ran thirty-five yards to the side of the tank, through heavy machine gun fire coming from the enemy seventy-five yards away. In an effort to contact the personnel inside the tank he ran along side of the tank for about three minutes, beating on the hull with his weapon to attract the attention of the tank crew. During this entire time enemy small arms fire was ricocheting off the tank. Lieutenant Alexander succeeded in contacting the tank commander, advising him of the situation. Aided by the tank, his company was able to repel the counterattack and continue on with the mission. In subsequent action Lieutenant Alexander was killed while leading his platoon. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Tennessee.

Master Sergeant Conrad E. Russell, 35 044 463, Airborne Signal Corps, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. Master Sergeant Russell performed in an outstanding manner during the Normandy invasion. As Division Wire Chief, Master Sergeant Russell led his wire platoon into the operation, dropping by parachute during the night of 5 - 6 June 1944. Although his platoon suffered fifty percent casualties, Master Sergeant Russell succeeded in organizing the Division Wire Communication system with the remainder of his men, augmented by some additional men untrained in the principles and procedures of wire communications. So well did he lead this group of men that the wire communication system of the Division was able to handle most of the message traffic between commanders and staffs of units of the Division. During the attack on Carentan and the subsequent move of the Division Command Post to that area, he succeeded in keeping wire communications intact by the use of spiral form cable, which his platoon had not used before. Due to Master Sergeant Russell's careful and active personal supervision of all the men of his platoon, they quickly learned how to use this unfamiliar equipment. Supervision of his wire team made it necessary for him to visit each team during the process of their wire laying, and he kept constantly on the job with little thought of sleep or rest during the first two weeks of the operation. During the period while the Division was in Normandy, Master Sergeant Russell personally supervised the laying of approximately one thousand miles of wire communication lines. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Indiana.

I -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following named personnel for gallantry in action against the enemy in Holland:

LIEUTENANT COLONEL PATRICK F. CASSIDY, O 351 262, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 17 September 1944, in the vicinity of (St. Oedenrode, Holland, he landed by parachute at the head of his battalion. In the shortest possible time, he assembled his battalion and moved to the vitally important communication center of St. Oedenrode. By skillfully deploying his troops, Lieutenant Colonel Cassidy succeeded in driving out all of the enemy in the vicinity and securing the vital road junction during the first day of action. During the ensuing three days, he personally directed the defense of this position against strong enemy counterattacks. By his resourcefulness, knowledge of military tactics, and by his untiring devotion to duty he rendered a vital contribution to the consummation of this successful attack against a key communication center and thereby facilitated the advance of the British Second Army to the north. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Washington.

CAPTAIN ROBERT J. MACDONALD, O 431 586, Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 4 October 1944, in the vicinity of Opheusden, Holland, under heavy mortar and artillery fire and under cover of total darkness, he engaged the enemy in hand to hand combat and succeeded in driving them from the positions which he had been ordered to occupy. Unable to make a reconnaissance of the area during the daylight hours, he and two enlisted men went forward to reconnoiter likely enemy approaches in order to effectively organize his positions. While returning through enemy occupied territory, he engaged an enemy patrol, killing four, capturing one and causing the others to flee. On his return to his sector he organized a defense and prepared it so effectively that he was able to withstand a large scale enemy dawn attack. The enemy attacked his positions repeatedly over a period of three days but failed to penetrate his main line of resistance. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Minnesota.

FIRST LIEUTENANT RAYMOND L. BROCK, O1 298 021 (then Second Lieutenant), Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 18 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, as mortar platoon leader he placed himself in the forward observation post and with complete disregard for his personal safety, continually exposed himself to fire in order to locate enemy targets for his platoon. When friendly troops withdrew to a more advantageous position, Lieutenant Brock remained in his position for more than thirty hours directing devastating fire on the enemy. As a result of his diligence and untiring effort seven machine guns, two 88mm guns and two 20mm guns were rendered useless to the enemy. Each time the enemy prepared for an attack Lieutenant Brock's mortar fire inflicted such heavy casualties on the enemy that they broke off the attack before reaching his position. His heroic determination to destroy the enemy and his disregard for his own safety aided immeasurably in halting a strong enemy attack, caused a large number of enemy casualties, and so inspired his men that they held a vitally important position against greatly superior forces. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from California.

FIRST LIEUTENANT RICHARD L. CAMPBELL, O 450 092, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 17 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, learning that his battalion was surrounded by the enemy and dangerously low in ammunition, he attempted to replenish their supply despite the great danger involved. Loading a quarter ton truck and trailer, he started for the battalion area, driving over roads swept by enemy fire. When machine gun fire forced his vehicle off the road, Lieutenant Campbell crawled along ditches, through the enemy lines, and reached friendly troops. Organizing a combat patrol of several riflemen, he fought his way back to the ammunition vehicle, knocking out two enemy machine guns en route, and successfully returned with the ammunition. He made two more trips under the same conditions. When his vehicle was destroyed by enemy fire, he secured another vehicle and continued to resupply his battalion. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Tennessee.

FIRST LIEUTENANT ROBERT H. CARLOCK, O1 324 507, Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 23 October 1944, in the vicinity of Opheusden, Holland, he was in command of a platoon assigned the mission of contacting the enemy on the west side of the town. Leading his platoon through the town which was heavily mined, he was fired upon by an enemy force of approximately fifteen men. The danger of the mines in the area caused hesitancy among his men, but Lieutenant Carlock boldly began his approach toward the enemy alone. The men, inspired by this courageous demonstration, followed and successfully attacked the enemy outpost, capturing ten prisoners. Retiring to the village, the platoon was subjected to heavy mortar and artillery fire. Lieutenant Carlock again led his men through the mined village and toward the dike near the Neder Rijn River. Again subjected to enemy fire, the platoon was forced to retire to the road in order to direct artillery fire upon the enemy. Despite the enemy fire, Lieutenant Carlock remained in an exposed position and directed the artillery fire. When some of his men were wounded in this action, aid men were sent for but these were also wounded by exploding mines. Lieutenant Carlock administered aid to all the wounded men. His inspiring leadership and courage were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Arizona.

FIRST LIEUTENANT JESUS M. CORTEZ, O1 311 472, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 21 September 1944, in the vicinity of St. Medarode, Holland, his platoon was given the mission of driving the enemy back from the western edge of the town. With an indomitable fighting spirit, Lieutenant Cortez led his platoon. He executed this offensive mission with conspicuous energy and gallantry. During the action in order to enable his platoon to continue its advance, Lieutenant Cortez leaped on a lead tank and directed the fire of the tank's cannon and machine guns against the enemy positions. In this exposed position he came under heavy enemy fire, but miraculously escaped injury. When the enemy's firepower had been sufficiently reduced by the fire from the tank, he led his men in a bayonet assault against the enemy, personally killing two of the enemy at close range with his carbine. Lieutenant Cortez, by his leadership, fortitude and devotion to duty, inspired his men to the extent necessary to achieve their objective and, in so doing, acted in keeping with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Arizona.

FIRST LIEUTENANT LAWRENCE T. HUGHES, O 415 265, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 22 October 1944, in the vicinity of Bodewaard, Holland, he was commanding the regimental demolition platoon which had been ordered to clear all mines and booby traps from two roads in the vicinity. During the first afternoon a new enemy mine was encountered, the "R" mine, and in attempting to neutralize it the assistant platoon leader, the platoon sergeant and five other men were killed. Lieutenant Hughes immediately ordered his men to cease work until he could experiment with the new mine. With complete disregard for his own safety, he moved forward into the mine field and began neutralizing the mines, despite the fact that he was totally unfamiliar with this type of mine. During the next five days the platoon, under the supervision of Lieutenant Hughes, cleared mines from an area of five square miles in front of the outpost line of resistance which was thickly sown with enemy mines and booby traps of all types. Crossing uncleared fields, he was always working with the group encountering the most dangerous work. During this operation he lost eleven men from his platoon. Through his judgment, initiative, and foresight he gained the complete confidence and admiration of his men. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Tennessee.

FIRST LIEUTENANT MERVIN R. RICHARDSON, OI 164 041, Parachute Field Artillery, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 9 October 1944, in the vicinity of Dodewaard, Holland, enemy artillery scored five direct hits on the house in which Lieutenant Richardson was observing, forcing him to take cover in the basement. Needing height to observe effectively, he left the protective cover of the basement to crawl fifty yards under heavy enemy artillery fire to a higher position on the bank of a railroad where he could observe and adjust his own artillery fire on the enemy. The enemy followed up their artillery barrage with a strong attack estimated at four tanks and a battalion of infantry. Lieutenant Richardson remained in his exposed position, often standing erect in view of the enemy in order to adjust artillery fire. By his professional efficiency and personal exposure to enemy fire, he rendered outstanding assistance in making it possible for the artillery to give the close support to the infantry which was necessary for successful operation. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Oklahoma.

FIRST LIEUTENANT JACK A. RIGGINS, O 386 895, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 19 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, his battalion while in an attack on the bridge over the Wilhelmina Canal, was forced to withdraw. During the withdrawal Lieutenant Riggins directed devastating mortar fire on the enemy from an exposed forward observation post, which became the target of most of the enemy fire in the area. For two hours Lieutenant Riggins remained at his post, constantly exposed to enemy fire. Although his radio operator and runners became casualties, he continued to direct fire on the enemy, silencing several guns and breaking up repeated attempts to counterattack. His action allowed the reconstitution of the battalion position. Lieutenant Riggins' determination, courage and devotion to duty exemplify the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Arkansas.

Sergeant Joseph J. Slabinski, 33 133 138, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 18 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, while in a defensive position, he observed a squad of the enemy, supported by two machine guns, infiltrating through the left flank of his platoon. Ignoring personal danger, Sergeant Slabinski left his dug-in position and moved forward to close with the twelve enemy single-handed. Upon reaching a point approximately fifty yards from the enemy, he was joined by two other comrades from his platoon. Ignoring the enemy's superiority in numbers, he closed with the enemy and destroyed the entire enemy group. His example won the admiration of all who witnessed the action. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Technician Fourth Grade Frank J. Carpenter, 39 275 644, (then Private First Class), Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 5 October 1944, in the vicinity of Driel, Holland, his battalion was pinned down by enemy artillery fire. Seeing an enemy tank approaching his position, Technician Fourth Grade Carpenter, although a radio operator, left the cover of his fox-hole and under enemy fire made his way to an abandoned British antitank gun. He located ammunition for the gun and without the aid of sights and despite the fact that he had never fired a weapon of this type before, scored three hits on the approaching enemy armor setting it afire, thus preventing the enemy from overrunning his position. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from California.

Corporal Nathaniel F. Ellis, 14 054 925, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 24 October 1944, in the vicinity of Mien, Holland, he displayed conspicuous courage in entering an uncharted minefield to go to the aid of two seriously injured comrades who had been injured by stepping on anti-personnel mines. Working with skill and haste, Corporal Ellis, probing the ground with his trench knife, oblivious of his own danger, removed some thirty mines and cleared a hasty path through the field. He then acted as a guide for stretcher bearers and assisted in removing his seriously wounded comrades from the dangerous area. Although he had several narrow escapes from detonated mines, Corporal Ellis continued his task with coolness and skill, materially aiding in saving the lives of his comrades. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Mississippi.

Private First Class Fredrick J. Becker, 17 180 982, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 30 October 1944, in the vicinity of Meteren, Holland, he volunteered as a member of a patrol to cross the Neder Eijer River into enemy territory and reconnoiter inside the enemy lines to a distance of at least five miles to get identifications and dispositions of at least one enemy unit confronting the Division. Reaching a house which the group used as an observation post, he assisted in the capture of several prisoners. In order to provide transportation for the group to the river bank, he assisted in capturing a vehicle, effecting the surrender of ten SS men who were in the vehicle without firing a shot. When the terrain prevented further use of the vehicle, the patrol continued on foot, and, simulating an enemy platoon, marched through an enemy held town. En route to the river bank, the patrol encountered an enemy strongpoint well entrenched. With complete disregard for his personal safety, Private First Class Becker ran forward and effected the surrender of the well-armed force of the enemy. Largely through his courage and aggressiveness, the patrol was able to return to friendly lines with much valuable information of the enemy strength and dispositions, and with thirty-two prisoners taken without the loss of a single one of his comrades. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Kansas.

Private First Class Ted R. Decker, 32 476 300, Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 7 October 1944, in the vicinity of Gheausden, Holland, when the first gunner of his 60mm mortar squad was killed, he took up the gunner's position and continued to fire the mortar from an exposed position in an open field until all ammunition was expended. He then joined a platoon to his front, taking up a position as a rifleman firing from a railroad grade. In a kneeling position he fired on the enemy, killing three and forcing four others to withdraw. Wounded in this action, he was evacuated, but insisted that he be permitted to join a litter team into enemy territory to evacuate a wounded officer and three enlisted men, thereby saving their lives. The cool and courageous manner in which Private First Class Decker conducted himself, oblivious of his own danger, demonstrated the highest degree of combat efficiency. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from New York.

Private Robert S. Doiel, 39 560 839, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 18 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, Private Doiel's spirit, determination, and courage were responsible for the capture of fifteen prisoners and the success of his platoon. As first scout for his platoon, Private Doiel, disregarding enemy fire, advanced boldly and aggressively to within one hundred yards of the enemy. While crossing an open field he was fired upon by several enemy riflemen and hit in the shoulder. Although he was wounded, Private Doiel remained upright and continued to advance placing fire on the enemy, killing two of them. His bold actions made him a target for nineteen of the enemy who were located in ditches to his immediate front and allowed two comrades to slip up and place flanking fire on the enemy position. When Private Doiel saw the enemy pinned down he immediately went forward and ordered them to surrender. Close fighting followed. In spite of his wound, Private Doiel picked up a pistol and aided in the fight. He was wounded a second time, but after his wound was bandaged he returned to the platoon as a fighting member. While the platoon was moving with their prisoners to join the rest of the company it came under a terrific mortar barrage and Private Doiel was wounded for the third time. His actions throughout the engagement were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from California.

Private Carroll F. Gott, 38 503 967, Parachute Field Artillery, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 9 October 1944, in the vicinity of Dodewaard, Holland, he was driver for a forward observer team in support of an infantry company. When the enemy launched an attack on the company, the forward observer party was in position in a nearby house, with radio their only means of communication between the infantry and the supporting artillery battalion. When the radio ceased to function, Private Gott on his own initiative returned to the town to obtain another. Despite heavy fire from enemy 88mm and 105mm guns, he carried his radio one thousand yards over open terrain to the observation post. When enemy fire cut the line between the forward observer and the radio operator, Private Gott again exposed himself to heavy fire and took up a position half way between the radio operator and the forward observer, relaying fire orders verbally. Private Gott remained in this exposed position for two hours under fierce enemy fire, enabling the forward observer to adjust artillery fire on the advancing enemy, repulsing the enemy threat and inflicting several enemy casualties. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Arkansas.

Private George R. Tobinas, 13 079 639, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 18 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, while in a defensive position, he observed a seriously wounded officer well forward of his front lines. Although himself wounded in the ankle and arm, Private Tobinas was determined to rescue the officer. Shouting to his comrades to hold their fire, in the face of intense rifle and machine gun fire, he advanced toward the wounded officer. He was forced to halt several times to take cover from enemy fire and rest because of the pain of his own wounds. Upon reaching the wounded officer he lifted him to his shoulder and carried him to a place of safety. By his unselfish conduct and indomitable courage, Private Tobinas set an inspiring example for all those who witnessed his heroic actions. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Private Roland J. Wilbur, 16 149 543, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 29 October 1944, he volunteered to accompany a patrol across the Neder Rijn River in Holland, fully aware of the great danger involved. Crossing the river in rubber boats, the patrol reached the other side and marched several miles into enemy territory to a house which they used as an observation post. Private Wilbur assisted in the capture of several prisoners who strayed into the house. In order to obtain transportation for the patrol and its prisoners to the river bank, Private Wilbur assisted in the capture of a vehicle with ten fully armed SS men, effecting the surrender of the SS men without firing a shot.

On the way to the bank of the river, Private Wilbur guarded the prisoners and prevented them from escaping. When the terrain prevented further use of the vehicle, the group, simulating an enemy patrol, walked through an enemy held town. During the march, an enemy force was aroused by the patrol, but Private Wilbur ran forward with complete disregard for his personal safety and effected the surrender of the entrenched enemy force without firing a shot. Through the courage and aggressiveness of Private Wilbur, the patrol was able to reach its own lines with prisoners and valuable information. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Michigan.

On 7 October 1944 in the vicinity of Opheusden, Holland, he was leader of a 57mm antitank gun squad occupying a position well forward of the infantry defense line. When the enemy attacked with infantry supported by three tanks, his gun was left to face the brunt of the attack. In the face of enemy tank, mortar and small arms fire, Sergeant Cullen directed the fire of his gun at the lead tank, despite the dangers which had caused other troops to withdraw, and destroyed the enemy armor approximately one hundred fifty yards from his position. He continued to direct his fire on the other tanks until he had expended all his ammunition. He then moved forward firing a rocket launcher until the second tank was in flames. On 18 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, his platoon was in close contact with the enemy. Seeking a position where better observation might be gained over the enemy and more effective fire delivered, Private Kessler crawled forward under enemy observation and heavy fire from a 20mm gun. Ignoring the deadly fire from this flak gun, he continued to advance until he located an advantageous position even though it offered scant concealment. For eight hours he fearlessly and courageously withstood repeated enemy attacks from an exposed flank and at the same time directed machine gun fire on the enemy. Not until Private Kessler's platoon was safe from enemy attacks did he return to a more covered position. In a later engagement, displaying the same tenacity of purpose, he lost his life. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Connecticut.

Private William F. Podulski, 6 948 894, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. Scorning personal safety, Private Podulski pushed forward across an open field in the face of heavy and intense enemy fire to destroy the enemy gun. Before reaching the gun, he was seriously wounded. Undaunted and with unflinching devotion to duty he crawled forward to a position from which he was able to destroy the entire enemy position with hand grenades. I -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, the Silver Star is awarded to the following named personnel for gallantry in action against the enemy in Holland:

Staff Sergeant Marell V. Abeene, 39 321 983, Glider Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 26 September 1944 his company was assigned the mission of holding a vital bridge in the vicinity of Vechel, Holland. When the enemy launched a strong attack his squad was forced to withdraw approximately two hundred yards to a position affording a better field of fire. During the withdrawal, four members of the squad became isolated from the rest of the group. After placing his men in defensive positions, Sergeant Abeene crawled forward under the intense mortar and machine gun fire of the enemy and brought the isolated men back to the main body. Later, when enemy fire had caused heavy casualties among the members of his squad and forced the remainder of the men to withdraw, leaving its machine gun, mortar and ammunition behind, Sergeant Abeene again exposed himself to enemy mortar and machine gun fire and retrieved the mortar and ammunition. Through his outstanding bravery and high devotion to duty he was instrumental in defending an important bridge against the enemy and saving the lives of several of his men. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Oregon.

Staff Sergeant Roy W. Nickrent, 16 016 297, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 19 September 1944 the enemy launched a strong attack on the positions of his company in the vicinity of St. Oedenrode, Holland and presented a serious threat to the canal bridge near the town. Cognizant of the critical situation, Sergeant Nickrent voluntarily mounted a crippled British tank, and with complete disregard for his personal safety, led the tank into action against the enemy, directing the fire of the 75mm gun in the tank and relaying the location of enemy gun positions to his company, despite the large amount of enemy mortar, artillery, and small arms fire. He then dismounted from the tank and sprayed the ditches with his sub-machine gun. During this action he was instrumental in destroying two anti-aircraft guns and one ammunition truck, and effected the surrender of eighteen of the enemy. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Illinois.

Technician Fifth Grade Vincent Laino, 20 107 105, Airborne Engineers, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 17 September 1944, he set up and manned a light machine gun as a part of the defense of the bridge over the canal. When the enemy launched an attack and blew the bridge, Technician Laino, although exposed to enemy fire, accounted for several enemy soldiers and destroyed an enemy ammunition truck. Later, when another position was subjected to an attack of enemy heavy mortar fire which wounded him in one eye and temporarily blinded him, Technician Laino, by employing his sense of touch he was able to locate the enemy mortar and neutralize it, thereby saving his own life.

II -- AWARD OF SILVER STAR (Posthumous) -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, and pursuant to authority contained in Section III, Administrative Procedure, XVIII Corps Airborne, 19 September 1944, the Silver Star is awarded posthumously to the following named personnel for gallantry in action against the enemy in Holland:

FIRST LIEUTENANT NICHOLAS C. SCHLITZ, OI 283 320, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 18 September 1944, in the vicinity of Best, Holland, he penetrated into an enemy strongpoint with his platoon effecting a disorganization of the enemy defenses. Another platoon in the attack was held up in their advance by a terrific enemy artillery barrage. Lieutenant Schlitz, realizing that his platoon would suffer heavy casualties if they remained stationary, personally led his platoon forward into the enemy defenses thus avoiding the enemy barrage. During this penetration he was killed by an 82mm mortar shell. However, through his judgment, initiative, and foresight he gained the complete confidence and admiration of his men which was responsible for the task which the platoon might not have otherwise achieved. By his sound tactical decision he succeeded in gaining his objective with a minimum loss to his platoon. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from North Carolina.

Private First Class Donald G. Harms, 39 315 642, Parachute Infantry, while serving with the Army of the United States, distinguished himself by gallantry in action. On 22 September 1944, his company was moving by truck to new positions near Uden, Holland when it was subjected to an attack by enemy artillery. The men were forced to leave the trucks and set out on foot. Enemy infantry and armor suddenly launched an attack on the company. Realizing the seriousness of the situation, Private First Class Harms jumped into an abandoned jeep and towed an antitank gun to a position within range of the enemy. Despite heavy fire from an enemy tank, he moved the gun into position and helped man it. This gun disabled the tank. He then went forward, still under fire, and evacuated two wounded men. His aggressive actions were of great assistance in breaking up the enemy attack and enabling the company to set up a defense, thereby saving many lives and several trucks in the supply column. His conduct was in accordance with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Oregon.
