I. AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 21, Headquarters Fifteenth United States Army, dated 4 March 1945, the Silver Star is awarded to:

Lieutenant Colonel John W. Paddock, 020913, Coast Artillery Corps, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Landing by glider in the airborne operation across the Rhine River, Lieutenant Colonel Paddock, with complete disregard for his own safety unloaded his glider and took his seriously wounded glider pilot to an aid station. To reach the aid station, it was necessary to go over a mile through territory still infested with the enemy. Lieutenant Colonel Paddock then fearlessly moved about the landing zone under fire, encouraging his men and guiding them to their assembly area. Later, upon finding his own command post under fire from an enemy strongpoint in a house, he personally led an attack on the house which resulted in heavy casualties to the enemy. His gallant action and coolness under fire were an inspiration to all and were in keeping with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Oregon.

II. AWARD OF BRONZE STAR MEDAL (Posthumous) -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 21, Headquarters Fifteenth United States Army, dated 4 March 1945, the Bronze Star Medal is awarded posthumously to:

Second Lieutenant John L. O'Brien, 01181393, Field Artillery, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Landing by parachute in enemy territory, Second Lieutenant O'Brien bravely undertook to reach some equipment bundles that had been dropped in an area under enemy fire. Seriously wounded, he then directed his men in an attempt to reach the equipment. When their efforts failed, he alone then attacked an enemy machine gun that had been hampering his movements and those of men in the area. His unhesitating bravery and selfless devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest standards of military conduct. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

III. AWARD OF BRONZE OAK LEAF CLUSTER TO BRONZE STAR MEDAL -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 21, Headquarters Fifteenth United States Army, dated 4 March 1945, the Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to Bronze Star Medal is awarded to:

General Order, Number 47, Headquarters 17th Airborne Division, APO 452, U. S. Army, 8 June 1945, continued:

Staff Sergeant Frank T. Tomascin, 35291660, for heroic action against the enemy near Ruthen, Germany on 7 April 1945. Staff Sergeant Tomascin was a member of a reconnaissance patrol that was pinned down by enemy fire. Although the patrol was confronted with a numerically superior enemy force, he repeatedly exposed himself to obtain observation for the direction of artillery against the enemy positions. Throughout the action, Staff Sergeant Tomascin's calmness under fire and his staunch fortitude in a precarious situation were worthy of the highest praise. His conduct was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Ohio.

IV. AWARD OF BRONZE STAR MEDAL -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 21, Headquarters Fifteenth United States Army, dated 1 March 1945, the Bronze Star Medal is awarded to:

Lieutenant Colonel Edward F. Kent, 029909, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy at Bulmer, Germany on 31 March 1945. In the attack on the town of Bulmer, Lieutenant Colonel Kent's battalion was temporarily halted by a numerically superior defensive force. Lieutenant Colonel Kent personally went to the foremost positions, organized a continuation of the assault, directed close support artillery fire from exposed positions and encouraged his men to overcome the determined enemy resistance. He was almost continually subjected to enemy rifle, machine gun and, at times, artillery fire. Nevertheless he displayed excellent judgment and a cool bravery that was in keeping with the highest standards of military traditions. Entered military service from New York.

Name: Serial no. AMEND. BY GOF 28 -- 12 June 45

Captain (then First Lieutenant) Paul M. McGuire, 0377150, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Flamierge, Belgium on 7 and 8 January 1945. In bitter fighting against determined enemy resistance, Captain McGuire's battalion had been isolated from the main body by strong enemy counter attacks. The battalion was under heavy pressure from the enemy and was precariously low on supplies. Captain McGuire voluntarily took a truck load of ammunition to the isolated men passing through the enemy lines and over territory heavily patrolled by enemy forces. His actions called for high courage and exhibited a high sense of duty against discouraging odds. His conduct was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from New Mexico.

First Lieutenant William F. Graves, 0535077, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Shortly after landing by glider in the airborne operation across the Rhine River, First Lieutenant Graves and one platoon of men were surrounded by a numerically superior enemy force. Without artillery support, First Lieutenant Graves continually exposed himself to heavy enemy fire to direct his men into the most effective firing positions, causing the enemy to be turned back in disorder after heavy casualties were inflicted. His determined leadership and courage made possible his platoon's heroic stand against determined enemy attacks. His actions were in accordance with the highest traditions of military service. Entered military service from Texas.

First Lieutenant Paul N. Lindsey, 01181649, Field Artillery, for heroic action against the enemy near Munster, Germany on 3 April 1945. First Lieutenant Lindsey was artillery observer with an infantry battalion that was being held up by a strong enemy force entrenched in concrete emplacements and using anti-aircraft guns as artillery. Selecting an observation post that was only two hundred yards from the enemy positions, First Lieutenant Lindsey skillfully directed artillery fire. Despite his exposed position, he remained at his post until all enemy resistance.

had been overcome. His action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the armed forces. Entered military service from Mississippi.

First Lieutenant Richard Ober, 0536983, Field Artillery, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. First Lieutenant Ober was acting as an artillery observer for an infantry battalion when the unit came under extremely heavy enemy mortar fire. Without regard for his own safety, First Lieutenant Ober crawled to a point only 150 yards from the enemy positions and directed artillery fire. Although his position was exposed and under fire from the enemy, he remained at his post until the objective was secured. His heroic action was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from New York.

Second Lieutenant Paul R. Berger, 0106168, Coast Artillery Corps, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. After landing in enemy territory, Second Lieutenant Berger and one of his men attacked two enemy artillery pieces that were blocking an important road. While his man remained in position and delivered bazooka fire at the enemy guns, Second Lieutenant Berger made two trips across terrain exposed to heavy enemy machine gun fire to secure ammunition. His courageous act was instrumental in the elimination of the enemy artillery and the opening of the area. His conduct was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from California.

Staff Sergeant Donald R. Garvin, 32661726, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Staff Sergeant Garvin was wounded during the descent by parachute in enemy territory. Despite his wounds, he refused treatment until many more seriously wounded had been treated. He then procured horses and wagons from nearby farms and organized an evacuation train for the injured personnel. His initiative and aggressiveness and his unselfish efforts in caring for his wounded comrades were in keeping with the highest standards of military conduct. Entered military service from New York.

Technician Fifth Grade Burl C. Arms, 36332984, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Technician Fifth Grade Arms parachuted into enemy territory and landed with others of his unit amidst heavy enemy resistance. A bundle of vital medical supplies and equipment had also been dropped by parachute and had lodged in a tree near the drop zone. With complete disregard for his own safety, Technician Fifth Grade Arms made his way across open terrain under heavy enemy small arms fire to reach the equipment bundle. He then climbed the tree in full view of the enemy, cut loose the equipment bundle and returned with it across the fire swept field. His action called for high courage and was in keeping with the highest traditions of the armed forces. Entered military service from Illinois.

Private First Class Robert L. Grubbs, Jr., 33842875, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Private First Class Grubbs landed by parachute in enemy territory and joined a small group of other men in an assault on an enemy held house. The house was stormed and taken against heavy enemy resistance, but it was located very near an enemy artillery battery and came under direct fire from the artillery as soon as it was occupied. Despite several direct hits by the artillery, Private First Class Grubbs climbed to the second floor of the building and returned the fire with a bazooka. He remained in this position until the enemy fire was neutralized and the defense of the area secured. His action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the armed forces. Entered military service from Maryland.

General Orders Number 47, Headquarters 17th Airborne Division, APO 452, U. S. Army,

Private First Class Arthur A. L. Slawski, 33720514, for heroic action against the enemy near Hussmanshof, Germany on 24 March 1945. Private First Class Slawski was a medical aid man in an artillery battery during the airborne invasion of Germany. Prior to landing his glider came under enemy machine gun fire and he was wounded in both feet. Despite his wounds, he continued with his duties after landing until all the initial casualties had been cared for. He then reported to an aid station to have his own wounds treated. His courage in continuing his duty under handicap was in keeping with the highest traditions of military conduct. Entered military service from Maryland.

Private First Class George S. Traylor, 34831177, for heroic action against the enemy near Bottrop, Germany on 7 April 1945. The battery to which Private First Class Traylor belonged was subjected to heavy enemy fire and unable to maneuver. With bold initiative Private First Class Traylor drove his vehicle under enemy fire to the exposed gun positions, hooked on a gun and maneuvered to a place of safety from which the guns could again be put into operation. His courageous act inspired the remainder of his battery to similar action and the entire unit was able to reach positions from which it would bring fire on the enemy. His conduct was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Georgia.

I. AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 21, Headquarters Fifteenth United States Army, dated 4 March 1945, the Silver Star is awarded to:

Lieutenant Colonel Kenneth I. Booth, O24519, Field Artillery, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Lieutenant Colonel Booth's artillery battalion was part of a combat team during the airborne invasion of Germany. Due to navigational error, the infantry element of the team was dropped some three miles from the artillery battalion. Despite the lack of infantry support, Lieutenant Colonel Booth heroically directed his unit in overcoming intense local enemy resistance and succeeded in assembling the guns of his unit in a minimum of time ready to support the general attack. Unmindful of his own safety, he moved about the drop zone directing his men in silencing enemy resistance and in organizing defenses for his isolated unit. His conduct under fire and superb leadership contributed materially to the unqualified success of the airborne operation. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

II. AWARD OF BRONZE OAK LEAF CLUSTER TO SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 21, Headquarters Fifteenth United States Army, dated 4 March 1945, the Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster to Silver Star is awarded to:

Captain John T. Joseph, O1288063, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Immediately after landing by parachute in the airborne invasion of Germany, Captain Joseph organized a small group of men and led them in an assault on an enemy held woods bordering the landing zone. The group came under fire from five enemy artillery pieces, but despite the superiority of fire power, Captain Joseph led his group to close with the enemy and he personally knocked out the nearest gun with grenades. Under his inspiring leadership, the small band quickly overran the entire area and neutralized all the enemy positions inflicting heavy casualties and taking nearly two hundred enemy prisoners. Captain Joseph's dauntless courage and gallant conduct under fire were in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Georgia.

commander, First Lieutenant Wurtz assumed command and was given the mission of intercepting an attacking enemy column. With little time to prepare either a plan of defense or the defenses themselves, he skillfully deployed his men and, by his heroic example, encouraged them in repulsing determined enemy attacks. His superb leadership and high personal courage in the face of the enemy were in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Oklahoma.

Sergeant Kenneth L. Christian, 37460814, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Upon landing during the airborne invasion of Germany, the glider in which Sergeant Christian was riding was hit by enemy artillery and destroyed. Escaping from the glider, he joined an artillery crew and took charge of one howitzer bringing it to bear on enemy positions surrounding the landing zone. After several rounds of counter fire, an enemy artillery piece was knocked out and the crew fled into a woods. Sergeant Christian led an assault into the woods in pursuit of the enemy. His aggressive and fearless action contributed materially in overcoming local enemy resistance. His conduct was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Nebraska.

Sergeant Louis P. Koski, 33671683, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. Upon landing by glider during the airborne invasion of Germany, Sergeant Koski heroically led his men in an attack on enemy artillery emplacements that were causing heavy casualties on the landing zones. One such emplacement he attacked and silenced alone and then led his men in storming a second. His aggressiveness and fearless leadership did much to overcome local resistance. Following this action, Sergeant Koski then directed his men in salvaging ammunition and supplies from gliders that had landed in the area. He returned to his own glider and retrieved ammunition although the field was covered with enemy small arms fire and the glider itself was burning. His conduct throughout the action was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Corporal John W. Ulness, 37568686, for heroic action against the enemy near Essen, Germany on 13 April 1945. Corporal Ulness was a member of a squad that crossed the Ruhr River and established a bridgehead against heavy enemy resistance. The enemy counter attacked the squad repeatedly, in an attempt to wipe out the bridgehead, but the stubborn defense of Corporal Ulness and his comrades repulsed every attack. The heroic action of Corporal Ulness in attacking and destroying an enemy observation post contributed materially to the success of the maneuver. His conduct was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Minnesota.

Technician Fifth Grade Arthur A. Scid, 32113111, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. During the airborne invasion of Germany, Technician Fifth Grade Scid landed with two other men immediately in front of an enemy artillery position supported by infantrymen. Despite the intense fire that was brought to bear on them, Technician Fifth Grade Scid led the charge on the enemy position. So rapid was the action and so accurate the fire that the enemy artillery piece was silenced within a few minutes after the men had landed. The rapid liquidation of this artillery position greatly reduced the casualties of men assembling on the drop zone. The action of Technician Fifth Grade Scid was in keeping with the highest standards of military conduct. Entered military service from New York.

After having been recently transferred to a rifle company, Captain Hielke assumed command of the company during action near Wesel, Germany. With great personal courage and unusual tactical skill, he maneuvered the company through heavy fighting against the enemy. On one occasion he led his men against a heavily defended wooded area resulting in a large number of casualties to the enemy. Captain Hielke's great personal courage and unhesitating devotion to duty were in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from California.

First Lieutenant John F. Bailey, 01313707, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy on 30 January 1945 near Hossingen, Luxembourg. First Lieutenant Bailey showed great heroism in voluntarily going to the rescue of a wounded man. To reach the wounded man it was necessary to traverse open ground under direct observation and fire from heavily entrenched enemy positions in the edge of the Siegfried Line. His action was in keeping with the highest standards of military conduct. Entered military service from Georgia.

Technician Fourth Grade John W. Sheniga, 33081304, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. During the airborne invasion of Germany, Technician Fourth Grade Sheniga landed by parachute about thirty yards from an enemy anti-aircraft position. Without removing his parachute, he began firing on the position with his carbine. His actions brought the fire of the position upon himself. Despite the vast superiority in fire power, he managed to crawl close enough to the enemy weapon to silence it with grenades. His aggressive and heroic action was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

When he and his group were pinned down by intense enemy machine gun fire, he directed two men to attack the enemy position from the flanks. Then with utter disregard for his own safety and armed only with a pistol, he advanced toward the machine gun to keep attention away from the flanks. This maneuver, which cost him his life, enabled the two men on the flanks to attack with hand grenades and force the surrender of the machine gun crew. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Sergeant Charles A. Webster, 35450001, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Hussmanshor, Germany on 24 March 1945. He observed an enemy strongpoint from which fire was being directed against incoming gliders and troops already aground. Without regard for his own safety, he rushed the enemy position and directed their fire upon himself. Although mortally wounded by his heroic act, Sergeant Webster enabled his battery to assemble and quickly render artillery support to the infantry units. Immediately after landing by glider during the airborne invasion of Germany, he unloaded his jeep and had completed wire communications to his assigned battalion within two hours. He and his group then volunteered to carry ammunition during an enemy attack, and without rest or sleep, they hauled ammunition from the gliders to points where it was needed for 24 hours. With utter disregard for his own safety, Private First Class Schapp moved his machine gun into an exposed position to knock out the artillery firing upon them. During the ensuing action he was seriously wounded by the enemy fire. His courageous devotion to duty was worthy of the highest praise. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Private Manuel M. Alvarez, 37342538, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany on 24 March 1945. After landing by glider in enemy territory during the airborne crossing of the Rhine River, Private Alvarez was wounded in the shoulder but continued with his squad for three hours before accepting medical aid. I. AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 35, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Silver Star is awarded to:

Private First Class Edward G. West, 16040835, Coast Artillery Corps, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Flanzouille, Belgium on 8 January 1945. Private First Class West acted as leader for a bazooka team that held its fire until the leading one of the eighteen attacking tanks was less than thirty yards away. They then opened fire, fired seven rounds in spite of intense fire from the tanks and knocked out the lead tank. The gallant action of Private First Class West and his companions slowed the tank attack and allowed many of the infantry to withdraw. His intrepid action was in keeping with the highest traditions of the Military Service. Entered military service from Illinois.

Captain Horace J. Cofer, O-1288860, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Vindafontaine, France, on the night of 28-29 June 1944. On the night of 28-29 June 1944, the 507th Parachute Infantry was dug in about two miles south of Vindafontaine, Normandy, and were being shelled by the Germans from a hill just beyond Protot. When a shell landed near the slit trench in which Captain (then First Lieutenant) Cofer and another officer had taken cover, both men were wounded. Captain Cofer, with complete disregard for his own safety, crawled back into the trench and carried the other officer to safety away from a white phosphorus grenade which had burst. His heroism was in keeping with the highest traditions of the Military Service. Entered military service from Georgia.

Captain John W. P. Graham, O-396663, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy at Rhein Horne Canal, Bottrop, Germany, on 6 April 1945. When Captain Graham with two men was making a daylight reconnaissance of the Rhein Horne Canal preparatory to a crossing the following night, German snipers opened fire on the party severely wounding one of the enlisted men. With complete disregard for his personal safety, Captain Graham ignored heavy small arms and automatic weapons fire and a painful sprained knee, and carried the wounded man over two hundred yards of nearly flat terrain, which was under heavy fire, to a covered position where he could administer first-aid to the wounded man. He then helped carry the man for one-half mile to a place from which he could be evacuated by motor. His actions saved the man's life, and were in accord with the highest standards of the Military Service. Entered military service from Virginia.

General Orders Number 52, Headquarters 17th Airborne Division, APO 452, U. S. Army, 10 July 1945, continued:

First Lieutenant Willard E. Chambers, O-1302429, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Dasburg, Germany, on 28 January 1945. First Lieutenant Chambers, Platoon Leader, was leading his platoon in a night attack against an enemy force of unknown strength and disposition and was pinned down by cross-fire. He disregarded his personal safety in locating the enemy machine gun by going forward of the platoon while under heavy fire. After determining the exact location of the enemy gun, he returned to his platoon and directed machine gun and mortar fire on the position, silencing the gun and killing two of the enemy. His actions were in keeping with the highest standards of the Armed Forces. Entered military service from Ohio.

II. A PAIR OF BRONZE OAK LEAF CLUSTER TO BRONZE STAR MEDAL -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 35, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Bronze Star Medal having been previously awarded, the Bronze Oak Leaf Cluster is awarded to:

Lieutenant Colonel Charles J. Tirres, -204300, for heroic action against the enemy near Schornbeck, Germany, on 27 March 1945. When the advance of the battalion was halted by a road-block along the main highway from Nesol to Munster, Germany, Lieutenant Colonel Tirres, while under heavy artillery, 20mm AA and automatic weapons fire, personally deployed the battalion reserve and with complete disregard for his own safety led and directed the assault on the enemy positions. His coolness under fire and continuous advance served as an inspiring example for his men who pressed on to their objective and accomplished their mission. His actions were in accord with the highest traditions of the military service.

III. LEAD OF BRONZE STAR MEDAL -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 35, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Bronze Star Medal is awarded to:

Lieutenant Colonel Allen G. Miller, II, O-20342, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Nesol, Germany, on 24 March 1945. Landing by parachute in the airborne operation across the Rhine River, Lieutenant Colonel Miller, with complete disregard for his own personal safety, quickly assembled a large group of his men who had missed the drop zone and personally led them to the assembly area. At this time it was necessary to pass through two miles of enemy territory. He constantly encouraged his men and personally led them on two distinct assaults, knocking out machine gun nests each time. His coolness under fire and his heroic action were an inspiration to all about him, and his initiative and leadership were in accord with the highest traditions of the Military Service.

First Lieutenant Joseph Koryllo, O-1824745, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Nesol, Germany, on 24 March 1945. Immediately after landing in the drop zone, First Lieutenant Koryllo assembled all the available men of his platoon and led them to the assembly area while under heavy small arms fire. On moving the designated area he observed an enemy machine gun and supporting riflemen on the drop zone. After placing his men in position to fire on the enemy, First Lieutenant Koryllo completely disregarding his personal safety, assaulted the position while exposed to heavy fire. His assault resulted in the capture of the machine gun and inflicted six casualties on the enemy. This act of personal courage and bravery was an inspiration to the men of his command and was in accord with the highest standards of the Armed Forces. Entered military service from Minnesota.

General Orders Number 52, Headquarters 17th Airborne Division, APO 452, U.

Private First Class Garrine D. Piccolo, Jr., 32424465, Medical Co. for heroic action against the enemy near Diersfordt, Germany, on 24 March 1945. In complete disregard for his personal safety, Private First Class Piccolo led his men to a covered position and comparative safety to go to the aid of five wounded men on open terrain which was exposed to heavy machine gun and small arms fire. After giving as much assistance as possible under fire, he fearlessly assisted and carried the men to a covered position where he could complete the first-aid treatment and evacuate the men to an aid station. His actions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the Military Service.

Lieutenant Colonel Paul F. Smith, O-444090, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Wesel, Germany, on 24 March 1945. After his battalion had been dropped on the wrong drop zone, Lieutenant Colonel Smith organized the scattered battalion and personally led them in an attack on Diersfordt Castle which had been mentioned in briefing as the best OP and strongpoint in the area. Although heavy fire soon held up their advance, Lieutenant Colonel Smith moved among his men without regard for his personal safety, inspiring them to hold their positions and bring fire on the enemy positions in and around the Castle. The fearless actions of Lieutenant Colonel Smith were largely responsible for the success of his men bringing heavy fire on the enemy which enabled another unit to approach and assault the Castle successfully. His actions were in keeping with the highest standards of the Military Service.

Corporal Albert S. Perry, 39032976, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy at Marnack, Luxembourg, on 26 January 1945. While operating a regimental OP at Marnack, Luxembourg, Corporal Perry heard noises in a house about two hundred yards to his front. Next morning he requested assistance from a platoon to investigate the house. This assistance was refused by the platoon sergeant as being too dangerous. Then, with complete disregard for his personal safety, Corporal Perry advanced by himself knowing that the area was heavily mined and booby trapped and that this position had repulsed several attacks. He entered the house and while searching it he heard noises in the cellar. He captured one German soldier on the stairs and seven more in the cellar along with one machine gun M2. This action eliminated a roadblock which had held up an advance and enabled our troops to advance without casualties. His actions were in keeping with the highest standards of the Military Service. Entered military service from California.

Captain L. Harvey, O-1284367, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Diersfordt Castle, Germany, on 24 March 1945. Immediately after landing from the parachute operation, Captain Harvey organized a group of men to clear the drop zone while under intense enemy small arms fire. His aggressive and courageous leadership in clearing the area south-east of Diersfordt Castle was largely responsible for destroying eight field pieces, capturing forty Germans, and killing about twenty and annihilating a bicycle group of approximately thirty men. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the Military Service.

Private First Class Andrew Sunyak, 33275663, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near La Haye Du Puit, France, on 8 July 1944. When the First Battalion of the 507th Parachute Infantry relieved a unit of the 325th Glider Infantry on the forward slope of La Poterie Ridge, two Staff Officers and a Company Commander were reported seriously wounded while making a forward reconnaissance. Private First Class Sunyak, with complete disregard for his own personal safety, volunteered to cross open terrain which was under direct enemy observation, and under a murderous barrage of artillery, mortar, automatic weapons, and small arms fire to rescue the three seriously wounded officers. After rescuing these officers, and while the enemy was still counterattacking, and seriously threatening the battalion, Private First Class Sunyak again volunteered to run the gauntlet of enemy fire, and successfully led the reserve company into position. His unswerving devotion to duty, intense loyalty, and dauntless courage led to the saving of three officers' lives, and was highly instrumental in the battalion repelling the fierce enemy counterattack. His actions were in accord with the highest standards of the Military Service. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

They continued on in the woods and again attacking under heavy enemy fire assaulted and captured an 88, two flack guns and twelve enemy, although Second Lieutenant Eskin was severely wounded. With the aid of the enlisted man he rounded up his platoon, organized a defensive position and refused to be evacuated until the company came up. When their wire communication was knocked out their position became critical. Technician Fifth Grade Hamrin, with two other men from the Communications Section, set out to repair the line, but before they had progressed very far they were pinned down by flat trajectory 88 fire. His two comrades - too shell-shocked to continue on and complete the mission - were left behind and Technician Fifth Grade Hamrin set about to repair the line on his own. He continued on across the river despite the heavy mortar barrage and accomplished his task. On his return trip, Technician Fifth Grade Hamrin improved the condition of this vital line by strutting most of it overhead. Technician Fifth Grade Hamrin's fortitude, perseverance and diligence were of the highest during the whole campaign and in keeping with the highest traditions of the service. Entered military service from California.

Private First Class Andrew Sanyak, 33275663, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Anduvilles-la Hubert, France, on 6 June 1944. When Private First Class Sanyak landed by parachute in a flooded area behind enemy lines, he immediately extricated himself from his chute and equipment and proceeded to a defilement position on high ground. From this position he threw grenades at two of his comrades who had also landed in very deep water and were unable to free themselves from their parachutes. He immediately left his defilement position and with absolute disregard for his own safety, ran and even through intense enemy automatic and small arms fire to assist the two drowning men to free themselves from their chutes. His unwavering devotion to duty, dauntless courage, and initiative led to the saving of these two men's lives. His actions were in accord with the highest standards of the military service. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

First Lieutenant Milton F. Hasters, 01558053, Corps of Engineers, for heroic action against the enemy on 8 February 1945 near Dussburg, Luxembourg. On 8 February 1945 while this unit was serving with the 17th Airborne Division in the vicinity of Dussburg and Hosingen in Luxembourg, this organization was assigned the mission of erecting a Bailey Bridge over the Our River at Dussburg. The proposed bridge site was a half or three quarters of a mile in front of our forward infantry positions and was subject to enemy small arms and mortar fire on a constant basis. The enemy positions were only a few feet from the bridge site. First Lieutenant Hasters volunteered and made a daylight reconnaissance of the bridge site. He succeeded in crawling to within a few feet of the bridge site and obtained information invaluable to the assigned mission. Although the actual crossing was later made elsewhere due to a change of plans, the actions of First Lieutenant Hasters would have made a material difference in the probable outcome had plans not been changed. Entered military service from California.

I. AWARD OF SILVER STAR (POSTHUMOUS) -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 95, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Silver Star is awarded posthumously to:

Private First Class Joseph R. Downing, 6916262, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy at Larvill, Belgium, on 21 January 1945. When Private First Class Downing and another enlisted man became separated from the first patrol into Larvill, Belgium, they joined with a French paratrooper to continue clearing the town. Upon receiving information from civilians that about 30 Germans wanted to surrender, they went to take them prisoner. As they approached the Germans, the Germans took cover and opened fire on the three men, severely wounding Private First Class Downing. He immediately took cover in a nearby ditch and opened fire on the Germans, shouting to his comrades to fall back while he kept them under fire. His self-sacrifice in continuing to provide covering fire saved the life of the other enlisted man although it cost his own. His actions were in accord with the highest traditions of the Airborne Forces.

Private Carl W. Struthers, 3769300, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Flaminville, Belgium, on 12 January 1945. Private Struthers was a member of a bazooka team which was in a company attack on a woods outside of a Belgian town. As Private Struthers advanced, his bazooka was struck by pieces of flying shrapnel that tore holes in the tube. At this point German tanks started counter-attacking. Both Private Struthers and his team-mate knew that the tanks must be stopped. They also knew that their weapon might blow up in their faces due to the holes torn in it. Nevertheless, without thought for personal safety, they fired in an attempt to stop the tanks. The weapon blew up and both were instantly killed. This gallantry is recorded in company successfully to repulse the German counter-attack. The Military Service ranks the gallantry of Private Struthers among its proudest traditions. Entered military service from Iowa.

Private Ray J. Spencer, 37706873, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Flaminville, Belgium, on 12 January 1945. Private Spencer was a member of a bazooka team which was in a company attack on a woods outside of a Belgian town. As Private Spencer advanced, his bazooka was struck by pieces of flying shrapnel that tore holes in the tube. At this point German tanks started counter-attacking. Both Private Spencer and his team-mate knew that the tanks must be stopped. They also knew that their weapon might blow up in their faces due to the holes torn in it. Nevertheless, without thought for personal safety, they fired in an attempt to stop the tanks. The weapon blew up and both were instantly killed. This gallantry is recorded in company successfully to repulse the German counter-attack. The Military Service ranks the gallantry of Private Spencer among its proudest traditions. Entered military service from Colorado.

Private William H. Fritchard, 16093911, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Flaminville, Belgium, on 12 January 1945. When the patrol in which he was a member was subjected to intense machine gun and small arms fire which killed or wounded the light machine gun crew, Private Fritchard voluntarily exposed himself to the heavy fire to man the machine gun. With complete disregard for his own safety he placed the machine gun in a position knowing that the enemy would concentrate their fire on his position. He continued to fire as long as possible until the patrol had reached a covered position. As he attempted to follow the patrol he was killed by the intense enemy fire. His unflinching courage and willing self-sacrifice for his comrades were in accord with the highest traditions of the Airborne Forces. Entered military service from Canada.

General Order Number 55, Headquarters 17th Airborne Division, APO 452, U. S. Army, 16 August 1945, continued:

Staff Sergeant Edward H. Kriebel, 39237166, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near St. Martin O. Verrville, France, on 6 June 1944. When his platoon was pinned down by enemy machine gun fire, Staff Sergeant Kriebel crawled forward and alone silenced two enemy machine gun nests. This action completed, he then continued on and set fire to and destroyed a German ammunition dump. His gallant action silenced the enemy position and inspired his comrades enabling them to complete their mission. His action was in accordance with the highest standards of Military Service. Entered military service from California.

II. AWARD OF SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 35, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Silver Star is awarded to:

Staff Sergeant Richard A. Oliver, 12073324, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy near Bastogne, Germany, on 25 January 1945. Staff Sergeant Oliver volunteered to cross himself and draw enemy machine gun fire. Having succeeded in this mission, he continued on and singlehandedly fixed out an enemy machine gun nest. Under intense enemy fire he gallantly moved forward and fired his rifle grenades, stunning the enemy, and then rushed in and killed them with his machine grenades. His actions were in accordance with the highest standards of the Military Service. Entered military service from New York.

Technical Sergeant Norman W. Harris, 19095953, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy on LaPoterie Ridge, Normandy, France, on 5 July 1944. Technical Sergeant Harris was Platoon Sergeant, Third Platoon, Company "D", which was holding a defensive position it had occupied during the night after infiltrating through the enemy's positions. When the Germans surprised the left flank company of the battalion by attacking from the woods in the left flank company's rear, threatening the entire battalion's position, Technical Sergeant Harris whose platoon leader had just been wounded, gathered a small group of men from within his own platoon and led a daring, surprising surprise counter-attack on the attacking enemy's flank, stunning the enemy long enough for the battalion to organize a defense to meet the onslaught. Technical Sergeant Harris, displaying the example of fine courage and initiative, rushed at the enemy's flank, his Tommy gun spraying death to many startled Germans. With Technical Sergeant Harris as an example, the rest of his group spirited by his aggressiveness followed, and their fire brought a tragic end to many of the bewildered enemy. This group withheld the enemy attack until the battalion was prepared to meet it on an equal basis. Out of ammunition, the group withdrew under Technical Sergeant Harris' covering fire to the newly established defense line that their daring counterattack had made possible. Technical Sergeant Harris' initiative and coolness in a time of crisis was the determining factor in saving the battalion's position on LaPoterie Ridge. Entered military service from Washington.

III. AWARD OF BRONZE STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 35, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Bronze Star Medal is awarded to:

Private Thomas G. Baker, 13100000, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Bastogne, Germany, on 24 January 1945. On the night of 24 January 1945, Private Baker volunteered to lead a night combat patrol of which he was volunteer leader. Making three rounds, Private Baker entered the unbreached enemy position, located in the rear of the house, and sent in a message to the rear of the house. As he was preparing to force entry, a German officer called him out. Private Baker killed the officer, and then proceeded to these and other rooms, pushing the enemy back into the rear of the house. He then proceeded to his own back across the river without a loss. Private Baker's gallant and courageous initiative in this voluntary mission was a source of inspiration to the entire patrol and his action probably saved the lives of many of the patrol members. Entered military service from Washington.

General Orders Number 55, Headquarters 17th Airborne Division, APO 452, U. S.

Technician Fourth Grade Julius J. Cox, 37921618, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near St. Germain, Germany, on 20 January 1945. Acting on his own initiative, Technician Fourth Grade Cox located and drove a jeep up a road which was under continual fire from German mortar and artillery pieces. The only "ammunition" Technician Fourth Grade Cox consisted of high explosives which were needed to fix a road block. In obstructing the flow of supplies to the attacking First Battalion, acting on the strength of the information given by a "sniper" near by, Cox's own initiative and courage were of the highest character. In doing with the same number of the military service, he performed an extremely risky job in delivering ammunition, medical supplies and other supplies held up by the road block. Entered military service from Michigan.

Corporal Charles J. Becker, 12987793, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Caranten, France, on 9 June 1944. Under intense enemy small arms fire, Corporal Becker, risking his own personal safety, swam back across a canal to save the life of another enlisted man who was trapped, in an attempt to cross the canal. This heroic action saved the life of the man and enabled the patrol to move on and successfully accomplish the mission.

Private First Class Gordon G. Barrett, 36975175, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Sattrop, Germany, on 8 April 1945. When the enemy attacked our bridgehead across the Rhine, Private First Class Barrett took every possible advantage of opportunity during the night to bring automatic rifle fire on enemy positions and several times while under heavy fire crawled near enemy positions to throw grenades. His countless courage in the face of heavy enemy fire was instrumental in repelling the enemy assaults. When at dusk a light it was discovered that he had crawled out a machine gun position, a bazooka position, and killed six enemy soldiers at least four. His actions were in accord with the highest traditions of the Military Service. Entered military service from Michigan.

Captain Thomas R. Bennett, O-412853, Medical Corps, for heroic action against the enemy near Vogel, Germany, on 17 March 1945. Having landed by parachute near the DZ, which was covered by a small arms fire, Captain Bennett immediately scoured his aid bundle and, risking his personal safety, moved across the DZ and set up a temporary aid station in the edge of a wooded area. The casualties in the DZ continued to increase and Captain Bennett coolly and calmly moved from man to man administering medical treatment and supervising the removal of the wounded to the aid station. His actions were in accord with the highest of military standards of the Army of the United States.

Staff Sergeant Michael Zapf, 33116035, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Dabburg, Germany, on 25 January 1945. Staff Sergeant Zapf courageously drew out enemy fire thereby exposing enemy gun positions. Exposing himself again he boldly charged the enemy positions and knocked out one machine gun and two more. His action greatly aided in the capture of nearby machine gun positions. His conduct in this action was in keeping with the high standards of the United States Army. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Captain Gordon L. Wright, O-381132, Medical Corps, for heroic action against the enemy near Walden, Germany, on 21 March 1945. When the 124th Medical Infantry Regiment made its glider landing, the enemy had territory near Walden, Germany, on 21 March 1945, the gliders carrying Regimental Medical Detachment were well exposed. Captain Wright, Assistant Hospital Steward, 124th Medical Infantry, for his own safety, and to prevent the enemy from capturing the machine gun and other enemy fire to the machine gunners, still under heavy enemy fire, he extracted the machine gun from the machine gun position in carrying the machine relative to the machine gun position. His actions were in keeping with the high standards of the United States Army. Entered military service from Virginia.

General Order Number 55, Headquarters 17th Airborne Division, APO 452, U. S. Army, 16 August 1945, continued.

First Lieutenant Leonard T. Roberts, O-1044653, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy at Oran, Germany, on 11 April 1945. With complete disregard for his own personal safety, First Lieutenant Roberts led a squad of his platoon across a blockaded bridge which was under intense fire from 20mm flak guns, 88's, mortars and automatic weapons. After the crossing, First Lieutenant Roberts repeatedly exposed himself to enemy fire in order to establish strong points; he personally assisted in evacuating casualties; recrossed the bridge and returned with his squad for the night; he directed mortar fire which silenced one machine gun and another fire. When a man was wounded by snipers, First Lieutenant Roberts led a rescue party which retrieved and evacuated the wounded man. He later recrossed the bridge again and returned with a company of ammunition. Although he could have delegated most of these tasks to anyone in his command, he preferred to take the risks involved. His actions resulted in securing a bridgehead across the Rhine River. His devotion to duty and cool leadership while under fire contributed immensely to the maintenance of the high morale of his unit.

Staff Sergeant Orville E. Paris, 37149351, Infantry, for heroic conduct in action against the enemy near North Steele, Germany, on 17 April 1945. When the attacking elements of Company "D" were held up by heavy fire from two MG's 42, Staff Sergeant Paris went forward with a 300 radio to adjust mortar fire on the positions. He took up a position on a slag pile and without regard for his personal safety exposed himself to the enemy to draw their fire to himself. After one gun fired upon him he adjusted fire on it and destroyed it and then exposed himself again drawing fire on himself from the other gun. After locating it in this manner, Staff Sergeant Paris adjusted fire and destroyed the gun. His gallant actions were responsible for the destruction of two machine guns and the advancing Company "D" troops. The action was in keeping with the highest standards of military service. Entered military service from South Dakota.

Staff Sergeant Richard A. Oliver, 12079324, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near La Haye Duault, France, on 4 July 1944. During the attack on Hill 95, between 1000 and 1200 hours, before a combat patrol which Staff Sergeant Oliver was a part of could consolidate their gains by setting up a defense, the enemy counter-attacked in a large force with superior fire power. Staff Sergeant Oliver had his machine gun set up and aimed it while the patrol set up a defense. Staff Sergeant Oliver covered the actions of his patrol by keeping up a constant fire holding the enemy back for a short time. His gun was damaged without rifle support and stuck out away from friendly forces. Although severely wounded, Staff Sergeant Oliver stuck to his gun knowing full well the importance of his position. This action entitled him for the highest award and bravery. Entered military service from New York.

Staff Sergeant Stephen M. Liberty, 3005015, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Oran, Germany, on 11 April 1945. Although Staff Sergeant Liberty sustained his ankle in landing, he went forward with a 300 radio in an attacking company to act as a forward observer for the mortar platoon. With complete disregard for his own safety he exposed himself to enemy fire in order to adjust fire on the enemy continuously throughout the day he remained under fire both the day and night. His heroic actions were recognized with the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star Medal. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star Medal for his actions. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star Medal for his actions. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star Medal for his actions.

Staff Sergeant Clayton V. Hoffman, 3602110, Company "D", 17th Airborne Division, for heroic action against the enemy near Oran, Germany, on 19 August 1945. Upon landing he was seen nearby struggling to extract himself from his equipment. He was entered by bushes and utilized a machine gun about 75 yards away. Staff Sergeant Hoffman rushed through a ball of fire and his equipment in order to help his men. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star Medal for his actions. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star Medal for his actions. He was awarded the Purple Heart and the Bronze Star Medal for his actions.

unflinching courage, devotion to duty and utter disregard for his own safety when going to the aid of his helpless comrades, knowing that five American soldiers had been killed, won him the admiration of all and was greatly responsible for the success of the British in their part of liberating the vicinity of Lohuy, France. Entered military service from Texas.

Technician Fourth Grade Boyd R. Fritts, Jr., 15118218, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Worms, Germany, on 24 March 1945. Immediately after landing across the Rhine River, Technician Fourth Grade Fritts assembled a group of eight men while under enemy fire and attempted to lead them to the assembly area. After a short advance they were pinned down by heavy machine gun fire from their right flank. He then skillfully withdrew the men to a covered position by ones and two and led them to the assembly area by a covered route, capturing fourteen of the enemy on the way. He then reported the exact location of the machine gun to the mortar platoon which put the position out of action. His unhesitating action in taking command of the group and his skillful and resourceful leadership was an inspiration to all the men under him and was in accordance with the highest standards of the military services. Entered military service from Kentucky.

Technical Sergeant Loy F. Durfee, 37006476, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy near Haltom, Germany, on 31 March 1945. Technical Sergeant Durfee exposed himself to intense sniper fire to personally place the men of his platoon in firing positions and divide their fire in such a manner as to completely neutralize the enemy fire, allowing our troops to occupy positions which had been denied them on their objective. Later, during the same day, Technical Sergeant Durfee again exposed himself to heavy enemy fired artillery bursts, automatic weapons, and other small arms fire during a counter-attack by a far numerically superior enemy force, to personally place the men and weapons of his platoon in positions and assign fields of fire which enabled the outnumbered platoon to repel the counterattack with heavy losses to the enemy and light losses to his own troops. During this counterattack the only route of withdrawal was denied by intense enemy fire and the platoon was threatened with annihilation until Technical Sergeant Durfee's action secured its positions. Entered military service from Wyoming.

Award of Silver Star (Posthumous)	Section I
Award of Silver Star	Section II
Award of Bronze Star	Section III
Award of Certificate of Merit	Section IV
Award of Purple Heart	Section V
Recession	Section VI
Amendment	Section VII

I. AWARD OF THE SILVER STAR (POSTHUMOUS) -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 35, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Silver Star is awarded posthumously to:

Technical Sergeant John W. Early, 15101921, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy at Bastogne, Germany, on 7 February 1945. With complete disregard for his personal safety and despite warnings of his comrades, Technical Sergeant Early exposed himself to the full fury of the enemy's devastating firepower to cross 800 yards of open terrain and bring aid to six of his men who had been seriously wounded. Under constant observation by the enemy, he moved through a hail of small arms and artillery fire without once faltering to reach his destination and return with aid. Upon attaining his own position he was killed by a direct hit of an artillery shell. His action was in keeping with the highest standards of the Military service. Entered military service from Indiana.

II. AWARD OF THE SILVER STAR -- Under the provisions of AR 600-45, 22 September 1943, as amended, and pursuant to authority contained in Memorandum Number 35, Headquarters XVI Corps, dated 25 June 1945, the Silver Star is awarded to:

Staff Sergeant Paul P. Blood, 39237628, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy on 3 July 1944 near La Haye du Puit, France. As part of an attacking battalion, Staff Sergeant Blood's platoon was pinned down by a well-concealed enemy machine gun in a hedgerow. As lead scout, Staff Sergeant (then Private) Blood was pinned down well in lead of the platoon, and was nearest to the enemy. As soon as the platoon picked up the fire, Staff Sergeant Blood rushed toward the hedgerow to get himself out of line of fire by getting almost beside the weapon. Before the enemy could shift to meet the new situation, Staff Sergeant Blood had tossed a white phosphorous grenade into the position, and when the grenade went off Staff Sergeant Blood crept his ID into the smoke. The enemy was eliminated and the forward movement of the platoon went on without delay. Staff Sergeant Blood's action was of the highest in military standards. Entered military service from Oregon.

Sergeant Stanley Borkowski, 36450323, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy on 6 June 1944 near Arfreville, France. Sergeant (then Private) Borkowski, while acting as an advance lookout for his patrol which was holding a vital roadblock on a bridge across the Harderot River, observed a large enemy force supported by three tanks approaching his patrol's position. After alerting his patrol to the imminent danger, he returned alone in the face of almost certain death to his former position. After allowing two tanks to pass his concealed position, Sergeant Borkowski knocked out one tank with a gas grenade and killed the entire crew as they attempted to escape. The enemy became confused by this unexpected attack and halted to loiter. Sergeant Borkowski's unselfish and heroic act performed regardless of the knowledge that he faced almost certain death typifies the aggressive spirit of the United States Airborne Forces. Entered military service from Michigan.

First Sergeant Banner J. Ballock, 37295338, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy on 4 January 1945 near Namur, Belgium. When his company was ordered to attack a strategic hill, First Sergeant Ballock, then company supply sergeant, was ordered to remain in the old Company CP located in a farmhouse at the outskirts of Namur St. Etienne, Belgium. As his company moved to the attack sudden and intense enemy small arms and artillery fire inflicted heavy casualties and pinned the remainder of the company to the ground on a ridge approximately 450 yards forward of First Sergeant Ballock's position.

First Sergeant Bellock, observing the engagement and seeing several wounded members of his company lying helpless and exposed on the crest of the ridge voluntarily left his position of safety and calmly made his way to the scene of action. In full view of the enemy and at the height of the barrage, he evacuated a seriously wounded man to the rear. He returned to the ridge at least three additional times, each time with a hail of small arms and artillery fire falling about him, and evacuated other wounded members of his organization. First Sergeant Bellock did not desist in his efforts to rescue the wounded until he himself had been wounded. This gallant, heroic and entirely voluntary performance by First Sergeant Bellock in the face of extremely adverse and hazardous conditions reflects the highest traditions of the United States Army.

Private First Class James H. Shelbourne, 36458532, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy ICA 76371, 76372, on 21 March 1945. Private First Class Shelbourne, a company aid man, landed with his company by parachute behind enemy lines. Three members of his company were seriously wounded and lying on an exposed ridge about 100 yards away in direct line of enemy fire. After having sought shelter in a ditch from the intense enemy small arms and mortar fire sweeping the landing zone, Private First Class Shelbourne observed the critical situation in which the wounded men had been placed. With utter disregard for his own safety and entirely on his own initiative, Private First Class Shelbourne left his position of relative safety and calmly made his way to the crest of the ridge across 100 yards of exposed terrain in direct view of the enemy and under withering small arms and mortar fire. On reaching the men he administered first aid and immediately evacuated the most seriously wounded of the three. On two successive occasions he again returned to the ridge, at all times under continuous and relentless enemy fire, and removed the two remaining wounded members of his company. This gallant and heroic act on the part of Private First Class Shelbourne undoubtedly saved the lives of his comrades and is in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Airborne Forces. Entered military service from Texas.

Sergeant Albert A. Kurtz, 32258031, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy on 14 June 1944 near Bastogne, Belgium. When his company, the assault company of the Second Battalion, was held up in an attack, Sergeant (then Private) Kurtz charged forward alone on his own initiative through intense machine gun fire from a well-entrenched enemy strongpoint. Hurling a hand grenade into the enemy position and pushing up and throwing back an enemy grenade, he killed the gunner and wounded his assistant. When the wounded enemy tried to shoot him, Sergeant Kurtz killed the shooting enemy from a completely exposed position. As a result of Sergeant Kurtz's unselfish gallantry and intrepid initiative, his company was able to continue its advance without further enemy interference in that sector. His actions reflect the highest credit upon himself and the United States Airborne Forces. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Staff Sergeant Robert L. Triplett, 31206162, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy on 9 January 1945 near Flersbierge, Belgium. Staff Sergeant Triplett (then Private First Class) and a few men were occupying a house in the outskirts of Flersbierge, Belgium, when an enemy force of approximately sixty infantrymen supported by five tanks launched an attack against his position. Instantly sensing the gravity of the situation and the possibility that all might become prisoners or casualties, Staff Sergeant Triplett, without orders and on his own volition, raced out into the open field in front of the advancing enemy and ordered the enemy to throw away their weapons and surrender. The enemy, recovering from their first moments of surprise, opened fire on him at a range of approximately 35 yards. Staff Sergeant Triplett immediately returned their fire, killing a number of the enemy and disorganizing the remainder. Supporting fire from his comrades in the house enabled him to withdraw to its relative safety, but his action had halted and disorganized the enemy that time. Staff Sergeant Triplett in the face of overwhelming odds and in anticipation to his comrades an attack that to repulse a strong counterattack. His actions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Army.

Private First Class Doe, with utter disregard for personal safety, crawled to the Germans, started them of their weapons, and at the point of a gun, forced them to crawl the 100 yards to the place the patrol was waiting. Taking twenty four prisoners, and displaying a very high standard of military conduct in the face of the enemy, Private First Class Doe won an inspiration to his fellow men in the platoon. Entered military service from California.

Technician Fifth Grade Robert C. Condo, 38497249, Ordnance, for heroic action against the enemy on 24 April 1945 near Weisel, Germany. Technician Fifth Grade Condo was injured when the motor on which he was riding crashed in landing behind enemy lines. He insisted he was the only qualified man present with his particular skill he refused to be evacuated although in great pain and experiencing great difficulty in moving about. He performed his duties under these conditions for two days and did not desist until ordered by the officer in charge to report to the Division Clearing Station for treatment and evacuation. On 8 January 1945 Private First Class Collins carried badly needed water and communications equipment in the bitter cold through a heavy concentration of tank, artillery and rocket fire to the forward elements of his company. He then remained to direct and assist in the evacuation of wounded. Again on the 10 and 11 February 1945, Private First Class Collins, with complete disregard for his own safety, repeatedly crossed the Our River under automatic weapons and artillery fire to deliver food and ammunition to two companies which were holding a bridgehead in Germany. Observing several wounded men lying in the field, Staff Sergeant Cook, with total disregard for his own safety, returned to the field with artillery and small arms fire falling about him and evacuated his wounded comrades. His courageous action on the occasion reflects great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces. Entered military service from Washington.

Private First Class James G. Curran, 11051825, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy on 10 June 1944 near Ste Marie d'Alsace, France. Lieutenant Colonel Edward F. Kent, 120909, Infantry, for gallantry in action against the enemy at Haltern, Germany, on 30 March 1945. His battalion had occupied Haltern after fierce fighting. The enemy returned with two tanks and had managed to re-occupy some of the houses on the west edge of town. Lieutenant Colonel Kent ordered two companies to retake that portion of town. Enemy artillery fire started falling on the troops and they became intermingled, took cover and control was lost. Lieutenant Colonel Kent, with complete disregard for his own safety, immediately went forward, exposing himself to enemy fire and directed our artillery fire on the tanks. He then rallied his troops and again secured the western portion of the town. His personal courage in the face of enemy fire and his sound judgment of tactics were an inspiration to his men. His actions were in keeping with the highest traditions of the Armed Forces. Entered military service from New York.

Enemy resistance had been exceptionally heavy and in several instances the battalion had been pinned down by fire. On each of these occasions Lieutenant Colonel Smith, with complete disregard for his own personal safety, exposed himself to enemy fire and continuously moved from one flank to the other, maintaining absolute control of his battalion. His personal courage and sound knowledge of tactics served as an inspiration to the officers and men of his battalion and resulted in taking the objective with a minimum delay and casualties. His actions were in accord with the highest standards of the Military Service. Entered military service from Massachusetts.

First Sergeant Reed's unselfish and gallant act at the risk of his own life unhesitatingly saved the lives of many comrades and typifies the highest standards of the Parachute Infantryman. Entered military service from Washington.

Private First Class Walter F. Mikulicz, 33080916, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy on 16 June 1944 near Arraville, France. Private First Class Mikulicz volunteered to go on a one man patrol through enemy territory to obtain information as to enemy strength and dispositions. He successfully completed his mission and brought back information which was of great value in planning his unit's plan of attack. His success on this mission was due entirely to his own bravery and gallantry under enemy observation and fire. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Staff Sergeant William Lewis, 6900003, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy on 24 June 1944 at Diersdorf, Germany. Staff Sergeant Lewis, in a heroic effort to relieve the situation, moved his squad to the extreme left of the enemy strongpoint and attacked the position in an effort to relieve the pinned down units. Voluntarily moving to the front of his squad through intense enemy fire, he directed the attack and directed such effective fire upon the enemy positions that heavy casualties were caused and the remaining 250 enemy surrendered. This gallant and intrepid leadership was the deciding factor in his company's successful accomplishment of its most difficult mission and typifies the spirit and resolute determination of the United States Parachute Infantryman. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

Private First Class Robert B. Phillips, 3800000, Infantry, for heroic action against the enemy on 27 June 1944 at Diersdorf, Germany. While a squad of 25 men was pinned down by intense enemy machine gun fire, Private Phillips, in a heroic effort to relieve the situation, moved his squad to the extreme left of the enemy strongpoint and attacked the position in an effort to relieve the pinned down units. Voluntarily moving to the front of his squad through intense enemy fire, he directed the attack and directed such effective fire upon the enemy positions that heavy casualties were caused and the remaining 250 enemy surrendered. This gallant and intrepid leadership was the deciding factor in his company's successful accomplishment of its most difficult mission and typifies the spirit and resolute determination of the United States Parachute Infantryman. Entered military service from Pennsylvania.

On 12 September, 1943, General TAYLOR left [redacted] and was met off [redacted] by an [redacted] which took him to [redacted], where he travelled through hostile territory, in the face of [redacted] for the fulfillment of his mission. General TAYLOR, in [redacted] for the mission, did so with complete disregard of the imminent danger involved and without thought of personal safety. ALFRED W. IRELAND, (O-35113), Captain, Infantry, 82nd Parachute Infantry. For gallantry in action on the 12th day of 9th, 1943, 5 miles West of [redacted]. Captain IRELAND commanded a small group of men, and under intense rifle and machine gun fire moved to the right flank of his unit and organized effective flanking protection against an enemy envelopment. During an enemy counter-attack, when tanks were starting to overrun the position, Captain IRELAND, with utter disregard for his own safety, exposed himself to enemy fire in order to rally nearby troops. During the period, Captain IRELAND moved about talking to the men, issuing orders where necessary, and taking appropriate action to make the defense effective. The leadership ability, initiative, and coolness under fire shown by this officer in his gallant actions was an inspiration to all. Entered military service from Baltimore, Maryland.

THOMAS H. HIGGINS, (ASN 13054417), Corporal, 82nd Parachute Infantry. For gallantry in action on the morning of 12th, 1943. Corporal HIGGINS and about 40 members of the 82nd Parachute Infantry, advancing ahead of an infantry battalion to which they were attached, attacked a hill about 5 miles South of [redacted]. This hill was defended by a company of Germans, but despite heavy opposition the hill was taken. Before it could be fully reorganized, the Germans counter-attacked with the support of four 88mm tanks. During this action an enemy tank stopped within fifteen yards of Corporal HIGGINS position and began to fire its cannon at the slit trenches and gun emplacements on the hill. Corporal HIGGINS exposed himself to the fire of the tank, and threw a grenade at the tank. It burst just under the cannon and the explosion caused the gun to cease firing, and the tank withdrew from the hill. After two tanks were knocked out and others damaged, the enemy withdrew. Corporal HIGGINS and other members of his party used only small arms and one antitank grenade launcher against tanks, cannon, and machine guns. Entered military service from Conshohocken, Pennsylvania.

Private HARRIS held and helped drive back a superior force of the enemy while under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire of German Infantry and in the face of counter-attacks led by German Mark VI tanks. Private HARRIS armed with only a bazooka crawled forward to within sixty (60) yards of an advancing Mark tank and after firing one (1) short round placed his second, third and fourth rounds in the body and turret of the tank. CARL L. DAVIS, Sergeant, 35135917, 82d Glider Field Artillery Battalion. For gallantry in action 30 October 1943, near [REDACTED]. Close by was another stack of ammunition in wooden cases. ROBERT L. DICKERSON, O-23615. Captain, Infantry, Company "E", 82nd Airborne Division, 82nd Airborne Division. For gallantry in action on 12/28/43, about five miles from HENDERSON, Kentucky. Commanding Company "E", 82nd Airborne Division, in its first engagement, he successfully defended a salient 800 yards into enemy lines against a bold and aggressive foe through eight hours of continuous attack. Although seasoned artillery observers were forced to withdraw from the locality, and he was deprived of artillery support, Captain DICKERSON remained in his forward Command Post, in a position declared untenable by the forces he relieved. By his own high courage, indomitable will and inspiring leadership, he encouraged his out-gunned and out-numbered company to stand fast and repel repeated enemy assaults aimed to dislodge them. Under concentrated hostile machine gun, mortar, and artillery fire, he held the salient and enabled his battalion to accomplish its mission. Entered military service from HENDERSON, KENTUCKY.

I ----- AWARD OF THE SILVER STAR

Under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, as amended, a Silver Star is awarded to the following named individuals:

MARK J. ALEXANDER, O-411045, Lieutenant Colonel, Infantry,  Parachute Infantry. For gallantry in action on  1943, about one mile from . Lieutenant Colonel ALEXANDER, commanding 2nd Battalion,  Parachute Infantry, led his forward company to clear prepared German positions south of the  river. When the company attempted to cut off and destroy 480 Company in detail, he took personal command of leading elements of 480 Company and vigorously attacked the enemy's right flank, thus surprising and wiping out their entire force south of the . He personally captured two Germans armed with machine pistols. Lieutenant Colonel ALEXANDER conducted these decisive operations under heavy enemy rifle, machine gun, mortar and artillery fire and by example inspired his men to drive the Germans across the river and clear the route north for the continued advance of the  army. Entered military service from LAWRENCE, MISSOURI.

LESLIE L. ROBERTS, O-436234, Captain, Infantry,  Parachute Infantry. For gallantry in action on  1943, in the village of . Throughout the daylight hours of  1943, Captain ROBERTS displayed outstanding gallantry in leading his command. He was ordered to seize and secure the village and upon completing this mission, was heavily counter-attacked by the enemy. Heavy artillery and mortar fire began to fall on the village and the enemy attacked from the right flank and from the front, completely covering the village with automatic small arms, artillery, and mortar fire. Having lost all means of organic communication, Captain ROBERTS resorted to the use of runners and under heavy shell fire moved among his men, rallying them and giving them direct orders. By his cool persistence and total disregard for his own safety, he avoided confusion, reorganized his company and successfully resisted the enemy counter-attack. Entered military service from NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA.

LESLIE W. LADLEY, O-492200, Sergeant,  Parachute Infantry. For gallantry in action on  1943, about one-quarter mile from . Sergeant LADLEY, upon being surrounded by Germans, in order that the men with him could be safely led to friendly occupied terrain, led his volunteers to discover the exact positions of friendly and enemy troops. He performed this task with entire disregard for his personal safety. He was hit at heavy enemy machine gun and rifle fire. In determining the enemy's location he threw rocks into their positions causing them to reveal their locations by bringing fire on himself. Through the fearless efforts of Sergeant LAZENBY and one other enlisted man who accompanied him, the twenty men were safely guided to friendly troops. Entered military service from NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

WILLIAM F. HALL, 13014506, Private,  Parachute Infantry. For gallantry in action on  1943, about one-quarter mile from . Private HALL, an officer and twenty men were surrounded by the enemy while engaged in cutting enemy artillery communication wires on the outskirts of the enemy-held town of . Realizing their precarious position, Private HALL and another enlisted man volunteered their services in an effort to locate friendly troops. Private HALL borrowed a .45 caliber pistol for close fighting, then with disregard for his personal safety, worked his way out into the open where he was subjected to heavy artillery and machine gun fire. At times he was close enough to enemy positions to hear their attempted conversations over telephones, the wires of which his crew had cut. He was successful in locating friendly troops and directing his comrades to safety. Entered military service from PULASKI, VIRGINIA.

II-----AWARD, POSTHUMOUS, OF THE SILVER STAR

Under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, as amended, a Silver Star is awarded posthumously to the following named individual:

DAVID L. PACKARD, O-1206172, 1st Lieutenant, Infantry,  Parachute Infantry. For gallantry in action on  1943, about one-half mile from . Lieutenant PACKARD, Patrol Leader, voluntarily and with total disregard for his own safety, exposed himself to hostile automatic weapons fire, thereby distracting the attention of the enemy from his scouts who were unable to approach within effective position of enemy weapons and neutralize them. This action of 1st Lieutenant PACKARD made it possible for his platoon to continue its advance. His actions displayed a courage and devotion to duty which gave no thought to self in the performance of his task. Lieutenant PACKARD was killed during this action. Next of kin: His mother, Mrs. Tyle E. Cunningham, Connecticut State Hospital, MIDDLETON, CONNECTICUT.

III-----AWARD OF THE SOLDIER'S MEDAL

Under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, as amended, the Soldier's Medal is awarded to the following named individual:

GALVIN E. REEVES, Staff Sergeant, AS 6290497, Company 430,  Parachute Infantry. For heroism on the  day of  1943, near the city of . The life of a civilian worker, engaged in moving barrels of gasoline, was endangered when his clothing caught fire from the flame of a gasoline drum which had ignited. Sergeant REEVES, without regard for personal safety, rush to the assistance of the civilian, threw him on the ground and held him there until an army blanket was brought. Sergeant REEVES then wrapped the blanket around the worker and smothered the fire. In doing so, Sergeant REEVES was burned about the head and both arms. His heroic action saved the life of the worker. Entered military service from WART LE WICK, KANSAS.

CITATION OF 3RD BATTALION, 504TH PARACHUTE INFANTRY REGIMENT

Announcement is made of the Citation of the 3rd Battalion, 504th Parachute Infantry Regiment, by the Commanding General, FIFTH ARMY, as follows:

"THE 3RD BATTALION, 504TH PARACHUTE INFANTRY REGIMENT, is cited for outstanding performance of duty in action, on the Anzio Beachhead, Italy, during the period 8 to 13 February 1944. This battalion had just been relieved from front-line duty in a critical sector of the beachhead, when a vicious German attack was launched against a nearby British unit. The battalion was recommitted to action at once, and one company was dispatched to reinforce the British unit and to hold a sector in danger of being overrun by the Germans. Although this company was soon surrounded and isolated by the enemy, it held the vital ground courageously and stubbornly for the succeeding 24 hours against continuous and determined hostile attacks. Meanwhile, the remainder of the Battalion, which had launched a counterattack, succeeded in re-establishing contact with the surrounded company on the morning of 10 February. During the counterattack which effected this relief the 3rd Battalion displayed the highest type of individual and coordinated combat skill to drive the enemy from strongly entrenched positions on dominating terrain. An immediate strong German counterattack drove the battalion from its newly won position before it had time to organize the ground for defense, but with fighting determination the attack was resumed and all objectives were regained. The position secured, the 3rd Battalion joined with elements of a British Division to block a highway and to protect a vital sector of the beachhead against flanking attack. During the following five days this difficult and hazardous task was accomplished in a highly successful manner. Officers and men of the 3rd Battalion consistently distinguished themselves by aggressive patrolling, exceptional initiative, and great individual courage. As a result of the 3rd Battalion's tenacious and intrepid action, a severe enemy threat to the security of the beachhead was eliminated.

/s/ MARK J. CLARK
Lieutenant General, U. S. Army,
Commanding."

For three successive days he personally organized and effected the delivery of food, water and ammunition to the front line troops under intense artillery and small arms fire, during which period his vehicle was hit with shrapnel several times. With disregard for his personal safety, Captain HARRISON maintained a constant flow of supplies which enabled the forward troops to operate at maximum efficiency and accomplish their mission with commendable success. Entered military service from NORFOLK, NEBRASKA.

subject to intense crossfire by enemy machine guns from the flanks. Lieutenant DIGAN, without regard for his own safety and exposing himself to enemy gun fire, carried reserve ammunition to the forward machine guns on the hill several times. While attempting to carry ammunition across open terrain to a machine gun position, he was seriously wounded in the neck. During treatment of his wounds, Lieutenant DIGAN made several attempts to get up and carry ammunition to the gun, but was too weak to do so. He died an hour later. Lieutenant DOMINA was in charge of hand grenade instruction on the Hand Grenade Range at Camp Pendleton, California. The class was in position about fifteen yards from the Quarry into which it was throwing live grenades. One student became confused and threw his grenade along the firing line into the center of the class.
